9 AVENGING DRY RAIDERS SEIZE TOWN OFFICERS

Follows Arrest of Agents as Drunk.

McGregor, Ia., July 12.—[Special.]—George Parsons, United States prohibition administrator for northern Iowa, led a squad of eight agents into Clayton county today to retaliate for the hostile reception accorded two of his men who attempted a raid at the close of an American Legion convention at the neighboring village of Marquette last Wednesday.

"They can't beat up federal agents, then toss them in jail and expect to get away with it," Parsons was quoted proclaiming.

Parsons first sent his men into the home of McGregor's constable, C. D. Phelps. The protesting constable was hustled into Parsons' car.

Place Mayor in Irons.

The raiders next invaded the home of Mayor J. F. Walter, who had just returned from his office. Expostulating over the "outrage," the mayor was manacled before he could don his coat, placed in another car, and the motorcade of raiders started for Marquette, a mile north, as the villagers gaped at their two principal officials being carried away in irons.

At Marquette Parsons' men first visited the police station, where they seized Constable Frank Burton. Another prisoner taken at Marquette was Ernest Lang.

Taken to Dubuque.

Mayor Walker and Phelps were released on bond when arraigned before United States Commissioner Jess W. Green in Dubuque late tonight. They are charge with interfering with federal prohibition officers and also charged with attempting to rescue confiscated liquor, after seizure had been made by the officers. Barton and Lang, the latter a mechanic who is alleged to have struck one of the dry agents, during a mêlée in Marquette Wednesday night, had not had bonds set late tonight.

Warrants for arrest of the men were issued by United States Commissioner Jesse W. Green of Dubuque. Other warrants are out.

Say Agents Were Intoxicated.

The series of incidents which incensed Parsons began late Wednesday night when two Dubuque agents, Reuben H. Taylor and H. H. Kirschman, strode into Goldy Johnson's place, a billiard hall in Marquette.

The American Legion's seventh district convention had been held at the Marquette opera house during the day and a score or more of the delegates were congregated at Goldy's. The Legion men afterwards asserted that Taylor and Kirschman were intoxicated.

There were mutterings of disapproval as the agents shouldered the customers from the bar, maintained in the rear of the poolroom. The grumbling swelled to a roar as the agents confiscated Goldy's stock of alleged intoxicants and started him to the door.

Arrested by Constable.

Sensing the hostility, the agents drew their guns as they backed towards their car with the prisoner between them. The Legion men made a rush in which the agents were disarmed, their prisoner freed, and most of their evidence destroyed.

A mile south at McGregor the agents stopped to consider the situation. Constable Phelps found them in a restaurant, showed his star, and announced they were under arrest for illegal parking, driving without lights, and intoxication.

Unawed by their display of federal badges, Constable Phelps marched both to the village jail where they were held until 4 p. m. the following day when Mayor Walter was ready to open court. The constable submitted his evidence, the prisoners entered vehement denials and the mayor pronounced sentence.

Held in Jail and Fined.

Kirschman was fined $99.99 for reckless driving. Taylor was fined $75 for intoxication. Both agents announced they would appeal, whereupon the mayor remanded them to custody of Sheriff Larson to the county jail at Elkader. Constable Phelps delivered his prisoners to the sheriff, who promptly released them on their own recognizance. They departed hastily for Dubuque.

The following morning Administrator Parsons came to Clayton county from his headquarters at Fort Dodge. He interviewed Mayor Walter and Constable Phelps, advising them, they said to drop the charges unless they were seeking further trouble. Both defied Parsons, it is reported.

BOBBY COMES FROM BEHIND AS OTHERS FALTER

Shoots 287 to Take Open Golf Title.

BY HOWARD BARRY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Minneapolis, Minn., July 12.—Bobby Jones today won the National Open golf championship for the fourth time by coming from behind in the morning round with an amazing 68 and following up with a 75 in the afternoon for a 72 hole total of 287.

A wild roar rose from 12,000 spectators who were swarming over the lawns and fairways of the Interlachen Country club as he sank a thirty-five foot putt for a birdie on the last green.

Pressing close behind him came 42 year old MacDonald Smith, who got home with a 70 for a total of 289. Then followed Horton Smith, 292; Harry Cooper, 293, and Johnny Golden, 294.

His Twelfth Major Title.

Bobby now has won twelve major golf titles. He has taken the United States open and amateur four times each, the British open three times, and the British amateur once.

Only once before in the history of the National open has any one made a lower score than Bobby made today. Chick Evans did this in 1916 at Minikahda, where he shot a 286.

Seldom before has Jones been under such pressure with so brilliant an array of professionals challenging him at every stroke. He was crowded back in the early rounds but lay always within striking distance of the lead and, as his challengers cracked one by one beneath the terrific strain, he moved forward with that iron self-possession which has gone so far toward making him the greatest golfer in the world.

Others Rise, Then Fall.

One by one the professionals had swept by him, and one by one they had tottered to their downfall. After Jones apparently was at the top of the field with his 71 of the first day—last Thursday—Wilfred Cox had come up and tied him. Then Tommy Armour had passed him with a 70, and a few minutes later Mac Smith had done the same.

Then Horton Smith catapulted to the front in the second round while Harry Cooper and Charles Lacey had crowded into second place beside Bobby. That was on Friday. And pressing right behind him were those experienced campaigners, Walter Hagen and Johnny Farrell.

Bobby Stands Alone.

But today Cox and Lacey are all but forgotten. Farrell and Hagen finished far back. Harry Cooper and Horton Smith faltered. Mac Smith came back gamely after slipping for two rounds, and at the top stands the one and only Bobby Jones.

Time and again on that last round the gallery believed he was cracking. After that superhuman 68 of this morning it seemed impossible that any man could stand the strain, But always in time of stress, the coolest man of the entire 12,000 was Bobby Jones.

Unmoved by "Breaks."

When his niblick shot from the trap on the 13th failed to clear a steep embankment and trickled back to his feet, the crowd gasped, knowing that he would now go four over par on this last round, but Bobby only let his hands come to rest upon his hips and stood looking silently down upon the ball with his bronzed face masking whatever emotion he was experiencing.

All this time he knew that Mac Smith and Harry Cooper were pressing right at his heels and four strokes over par might be fatal.

Then again on the 17th when he sliced his drive into a grove of trees at the edge of a lake, the gallery murmured that now surely he would go to pieces. Thousands went stampeding through the heavy rushes in search of the ball though no one had seen just where it went.

Finally one was found buried in the mud and sedge grass at the edge of the lake. Gallery and officials milled about wildly as thousands came storming in to see what was about to happen.

Not His Ball.

Again Bobby Jones was the only one to retain his self possession.

"I think we'd better make sure that that's my ball," he said calmly.

He reached down into the mud and water, drew out the little sphere and

"Dear Judge:

FINDS SON, 15, HIS ONLY CHILD, SUICIDE IN HOME

Frank McDermott, 42 years old, a switchman with the Chicago Junction railroad, last night returned from his work to find his 15 year old son, James, lying in bed dead. He had shot himself in the head with a .38 caliber revolver. McDermott was as mystified as were the police.

"I can't account for it," he said. "He was always happy and good natured. I was going to take him to Riverview park Sunday. He was looking forward to it. I had bought him a whole new outfit—suit, shirt and hat."

McDermott sobbed as he told his story to the West North avenue police. James was his only child. His wife, Elizabeth, died six years ago.

Crowd Caught in Car Under River; 60 Die

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, July 12.—[U.P.]—A street car, jammed with early morning workers, hit an open drawbridge at high speed today and leaped out into space, dropping into 20 feet of water in the Rio Chuelo.

Between 60 and 70 persons lost their lives. Divers had recovered 56 bodies late today.

Four persons, including the conductor and a woman passenger, were picked up as they struggled in the water, and were taken to a hospital. Most of the other victims had no chance. The doors and windows were closed and the packed mass of humanity was carried under the river to drown.

Traveling at High Speed.

The scene of the disaster was in the suburb of Barracas, three miles from the center of the city. The drawbridge had been opened to permit the passage of a tug towing a small steamer.

From available evidence, it appeared that the car approached the bridge at high speed, traveling around a slight curve and up an incline which prevented the motorman from seeing that the bridge was open.

Divers brought up the ticket box of the car, showing 76 fares paid. It was believed some of the victims had been standing on the rear platform and had been swept down the river by the swift current. All the bodies recovered were jammed inside the car. There was hope that a few of those on the platform might have been swept to the banks of the river down stream and escaped with their lives.

Divers Bring Up Bodies.

The four who were rescued were picked up by the tug. The police and fire departments arrived on the scene and, with the aid of sailors from the port, divers were soon descending to the car. They brought up body after body, piling them in heaps on the deck of a fire department tug.

The car was traveling at such speed that it launched straight into space and landed upright on the bed of the stream, only the trolley pole showing above the water. Divers found all doors and windows closed.

The passengers were found tangled inside, many of them locked in a death grapple, and it was necessary to send as many as two and three bodies to the surface together, the divers being unable to loosen the tightly clenched hands.

Thousands of workmen lined the banks of the narrow stream, fearing that relatives and friends were among the victims.

The accident occurred at 6:20 a. m. The victims were workers from Lanus and other suburbs, en route to the industrial district of La Boca.

4 DIVE INTO LAKE AS CABIN CRUISER BURNS; RESCUED

Three men and a young woman had to don life belts and leap in the lake two miles off Fullerton avenue at 10 o'clock last night when the 35 foot gasoline cabin cruiser in which they were riding caught fire and burned to the water line. They were rescued by a passing speedboat. None was injured.

Hundreds of motorists saw the blazing boat, the flames being visible for miles. THE TRIBUNE switchboard was kept busy for two hours answering calls.

The passengers are Harry Reisman, owner, who described himself as "in the printing business," living at 620 Addison street; Charles Herrington of the same address; Henry Hovelmeier of Ocean Springs, Miss., Reisman's guest, and Miss Nonie Faber, whose address was not obtained. Reisman said he thought the fire started from the exhaust, igniting a loose connection. He and his party were in the water for thirty minutes before being rescued.

GANGSTER IN AUTO CRASH IDENTIFIED AS 'FUR' SAMMONS

John Doe, who early yesterday morning smashed his new automobile into the car of Edgar Tooke, 1164 South Elmwood avenue, Oak Park, and drew a gun and threatened to blow Mr. Tooke's brains out when the latter protested, last night was identified at the detective bureau as James [Fur] Sammons, gangster, rapist, murderer and former convict.

Sammons was arrested by county highway police at Morton Grove, near where the accident occurred. The charges against him include assault with an automobile, assault with a deadly weapon, leaving the scene of an accident, carrying concealed weapons, and driving while intoxicated.

He refused to give his name, saying only that he had been "visiting my old friend, Joe Saltis, at Saltisville, Wis."

Sammons, named by the Chicago crime commission as one of "the 28 public enemies," is wanted in Baltimore for participation in the $47,500 pay roll robbery for which Willie Niemoth is now serving a sentence. A fugitive warrant was served on him last night.

Auburn, Me., July 12.—[U. P.]—Because they drank up all his home brew while being entertained at his home in Gauthiersville, Charles Gauthier shot and wounded Henry Niskanen and his son.

Trace Slaying of Police Spy to 'Killer' Burke

Fred Burke, robber and killer, whose crimes have caused the posting of rewards totaling $75,000, stood charged yesterday with the murder of Thomas Bonner, 7353 Yale avenue, who was seeking to trap Burke for the reward. Bonner was shot in his home early Thursday morning as he told his slayer, "You've got me wrong on that, pal." Mrs. Bonner, who was a few feet away and saw the murderer and his companion, said her husband was killed by "that arch-fiend."

According to the information obtained by Chief of Detectives Norton and Capt. Michael Lee of the Englewood police, Bonner had driven up to northern Michigan last Sunday night to visit Burke. Burke has been a hunted fugitive for years, but more particularly since his picture was identified as that of one of the participants in the Valentine day massacre of seven members of the Moran gang. Since then he has been identified as the killer of Policeman Charles Skelly at St. Joseph, Mich., last December.

Bonner's Death Warrant.

The announcement in a newspaper last Sunday that the police were watching a place on 79th street in the expectation that Burke would visit there was considered to be Bonner's death warrant. As it was explained yesterday this announcement convinced Burke that Bonner was a stool pigeon.

Philip R. McDonnell, 501 West 79th street, a druggist, occupied the premises Burke was expected to visit. Chief Norton said he has questioned McDonnell and Mrs. McDonnell since the Bonner murder, but he refused to reveal whether Mrs. McDonnell is related to Burke or if it is true that Burke's first wife was Mrs. McDonnell's sister.

Bonner Meets Burke.

Bonner, said by the police to have been a minor racketeer who dabbled in alcohol, drugs, confidence game schemes and acted occasionally as the "locater" for a gang of safe blowers, was acquainted with McDonnell, according to the police, and through McDonnell became acquainted with Burke.

Burke has been a bank robber for years, according to the police. He was believed to have been implicated in the murder of Frank Uale [Yale] in New York and because of that accomplishment was thought to have been hired to stage the extermination of the "Bugs" Moran gang in Chicago. He was identified as one of the two killers who wore police uniforms at the massacre.

Every policeman in the country was on the watch for Burke but his whereabouts remained undiscovered until Policeman Skelly tried to stop his automobile on the streets of St. Joseph. After killing Skelly Burke was the object of a redoubled search. That is when Bonner began to take an interest in Burke, according to the police.

Killer Flees to Refuge.

As the facts were pieced together, the events that followed were these:

Burke fled to a cottage in Michigan, forty miles east of Muskegon and forty miles north of Grand Rapids. A nearby town is Newaygo and the refuge was between Hess lake and Bigelow creek. The place was fenced

RAIN FORECAST TO BRING RELIEF TO CHICAGOANS

Hot Wave Claims 170 Lives in Midwest.

The Heat Wave

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| St. Louis | 104 | Des Moines | 98 |
| Indianapolis | 100 | Davenport | 100 |
| Milwaukee | 98 | Kansas City | 100 |
| Peoria | [illegible] | Keokuk, Ia. | 100 |
| Springfield, Ill. | 100 | Cincinnati | 98 |

Relief from the mid western heat wave was in sight last night. The death toll for the full week of 100 degree temperatures, as tabulated from the Associated Press and other reports last night was 170.

Chicago, previously spared from abnormally high temperatures, got a share of the scorching weather yesterday afternoon when the mercury soared to 97 at 4 o'clock, an all time record for the date. The previous record was 96 degrees, recorded on July 12, 1897.

While deaths by the dozen were occurring in other inland cities, only one death and one prostration were reported here.

Harry Fishman, 45 years old, 5503 Gladys avenue, collapsed at Homan avenue and Roosevelt road last night as a result of the heat and died a short while later.

Theodore Kaponick, 19 years old, 1532 North Washtenaw avenue, collapsed on the sidewalk near his home about 3 p. m. Attendants at the county hospital pronounced his condition not serious.

Cooler Weather Due Today.

The Chicago weather forecaster, C. A. Donnel, predicted unsettled and cooler weather for the city today. The wind, Mr. Donnel said, will resume the northeast direction it maintained most of the week and the lake breeze will hold the temperature below 80. Rain is likely today and it will be followed by fair and moderately cool weather tomorrow, the forecaster said.

The scorching wind, which Mr. Donnel blamed for the extreme temperature here, sent hundreds of thousands to the shady parks, forest preserves, and beaches. Fifty thousand were packed on the sands at Oak street beach; 75,000 at Clarendon beach, 50,000 at Jackson park, and 14,000 at Diversey beach. The water temperature was 72 degrees, ideal for bathing.

Lifeguards Rescue Scores.

Lifeguards hauled out scores of bathers who had gone beyond their depth and revived a few overcome by heat. Within a period of 15 minutes at Jackson Park beach last evening guards rescued two small girls at the point of drowning.

Twelve year old Rose Raplan, 5048 Indiana avenue, was stricken with cramps after diving from a pier and had sank a second time when the guards dived and brought her up. Ten minutes of artificial respiration revived her.

The second girl, Edith Collins, 15 years old, 1047 East 92d street, fainted as she hit the water in diving. The guards quickly brought her ashore and she was revived after half an hour and sent home.

Heat maddened dogs caused two other casualties. Her pet terrier, Rex, bit Diana Bernstein, 18 months old, on the left arm and both hands as she played with the animal on the back porch of her parents' home at 1953 North Claremont avenue. The infant was innoculated against rabies at St. Elizabeth's hospital and the dog was held under observation at the municipal pound.

Three year old George Tamber Jr., 646 North Oakley boulevard, was bitten on the left leg by the dog of Miss Mary Husak, a neighbor.

Heat Wave Breaking.

An indication that the general heat wave throughout the middle west was breaking was seen last night when the temperature in western Nebraska dropped from about 100 degrees to the 70's.

Further evidence of the dissolution of the hot spell was seen in South Dakota, where temperatures above 100 had been general all week. Last night the mercury at Sioux Falls, S. D., had dropped to 79, affording the first relief in a week.

St. Louis, lacking the lake beaches and forest preserves which afforded

Chicagoans comfort, was hardest hit of any midwestern metropolis. In the center of the killing heat wave, twenty deaths were reported in St. Louis and its suburbs as the temperatures rose above 100 for the sixth consecutive day. The St. Louis reading at 4 p. m. was 104 in the city and 105 in the suburbs.

Belleville in southern Illinois was another stricken community. The Associated Press reported five deaths there yesterday as the mercury hit the season's highest mark, 105 degrees. Other high temperatures downstate were: Harrisburg, 108; Kewanee, 104; Monmouth, 101; Sterling, 103. Six prostrations occurred at Quincy, where the mercury reached 106 degrees.

Death Toll by States.

The death toll, as tabulated by states, follows: Missouri, 60; Nebraska, 15; Wisconsin, 14; Illinois, 12; Iowa, 23; Minnesota, 13; South Dakota, 8; Kansas, 8; Indiana, 4, and Ohio, 3. These included drownings and other accidental deaths to which the heat contributed.

In Iowa only six official weather stations throughout the state reported maximum readings under 100 degrees during the week. Hundreds of head of live stock perished and farmers for the last four days had delayed their harvest work until dusk and their barn chores until long after nightfall in order to escape the blistering sun. The weather bureau at Des Moines forecast thunderstorms for Iowa today.

PARIS SHIVERS, SO DOES BERLIN; 'MARCH WEATHER'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 12.—While reports that America is gripped by a heat wave and that the temperature is reaching 180 degrees in Asiatic Russia near the Amur river, Paris is enjoying cool weather. Today was a typically chilly March day with the skies overcast and a stiff breeze blowing. The chilly snap has caused a mild epidemic of colds.

Chilly in Germany.

BERLIN, July 12.—(AP)—After a long period of warm weather Germany is experiencing a chilly mid-July. It is rainy and cool in Berlin and in parts of the Black forest last night the temperature slumped as low as 32 degrees Fahrenheit.

Over 100 in Shanghai.

SHANGHAI, July 12.—(AP)—The heat wave which has caused widespread suffering in the Yangtse valley recently hit Shanghai again today as the temperature passed 100 degrees. There were many heat prostrations. The temperature at Hankow was reported at 103 degrees.

PAVING BUCKLES FROM HEAT AND BLOCKS HIGHWAY

Paris, Ill., July 12.—[Special.]—In Marshall, fourteen miles south of Paris, where U. S. highway No. 40 and Illinois No. 1 intersect, the intense heat caused the pavement to buckle and tied up traffic for several hours.

Thirty-nine bus lines use the two highways in adidtion to tourist travel.

Two Drown in Pond.

Kenosha, Wis., July 12.—[Special.]—Two men were drowned west of Kenosha this afternoon trying to escape the heat. John Saxton, 27, and Lester Paasch, 27, both farm hands, waded into a pond and stepped off a ledge. Neither could swim. Both drowned in eight feet of water. A pulmotor arrived too late.

SOCIETY GIRL MISSING SINCE JULY 1 FOUND

Richmond, Va., July 12.—(AP)—A staff correspondent of the Times-Dispatch reported by telephone at 10 o'clock tonight [E. S. T.] that he had located Mary Frances McClenny, Richmond society girl, and Harry Dickinson, missing since July 1, Richmond garage man charged with secreting her, at Waynesboro, Va.

The correspondent said he found them on the porch of a house where they had been staying. He stated that he was leaving with the couple by automobile for Richmond immediately. Wayneboro is more than 100 miles from Richmond.

AMMONIA ROUTS CLUB GUESTS.

A gasket blew off an ammonia tank yesterday in the basement of the University club, 76 East Monroe street, and the fumes forced guests to flee to the street.

JOHNSON SEES UNDERSTANDING WITH JAPANESE

Report 23 Senators for Reservation.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—While Senator Hiram W. Johnson [Rep., Cal.] was charging today that the secret London treaty documents withheld from the senate by President Hoover contain an "understanding" paving the way for an increase of the Japanese 8 inch gun cruiser ratio at the next conference, administration leaders were taking stock of the new situation created by the Norris reservation.

Senator George H. Moses [Rep., N. H.], president pro tempore of the senate, said that a canvass has disclosed 23 senators, or more than one-third of those in attendance, will vote against the navy limitation treaty if the Norris reservation should be defeated. The Norris reservation declares that the senate in ratifying the treaty does so with the understanding that there is no secret agreement modifying its terms.

23 Enough Now.

Although it would take 33 senators to defeat ratification if all senators were present, 23 if unpaired would be more than enough were the attendance no greater than it has been during this special session of the senate. Sixty senators is the highest number so far recorded as present.

There were not more than a dozen votes against the treaty in prospect until the President refused to submit the secret documents to the senate and Senator George W. Norris [Rep., Neb.] retorted by offering a reservation based on the refusal. With 11 more senators conditioning their votes for the treaty on the adoption of the Norris reservation, the administration leaders were given pause.

Pro treaty senators were conceding tonight that it may be necessary to attach a reservation along the lines of the Norris proviso in order to assure ratification of the pact. They intend, however, to seek a compromise softening the declaration which, in the form offered, Senators David A. Reed [Rep., Pa.] and Henry J. Allen [Rep., Kas.], administration leaders, pronounced an affront to the President. They are insisting particularly upon the refusal to submit the secret documents to the senate.

Absentees Summoned.

Fearing that a quorum will be lacking when the treaty debate is resumed on Monday, the administration captains were telegraphing absent senators appeals to return.

For the discovery of the "understanding" relating to the Japanese cruiser ratio, Senator Johnson said he is indebted to the British government, which communicated the information to parliament.

"If the principles of the Washington conference had been adhered to and the ratio of relative strength therein fixed had not been broken," said Senator Johnson, "there might be some basis for the claim that the London treaty in part abolishes naval competition. But this treaty nullifies the principle of limitation and actually stimulates competition [1] by destroying the Washington ratios, [2] by the 'escalator' clause, and [3] by article 23, which provides that 'none of the provisions of the present treaty shall prejudice the attitude of any of the high contracting parties at the conference agreed to'—1935.

Refers to Memorandum.

"Indeed, we find in the 'miscellaneous memorandum number 8,' presented by the British secretary of state for foreign affairs to parliament on April 15, 1930, and printed in the Congressional Record of yesterday as a part of my remarks, the statement that 'Japan will be free to advance a claim at the conference of 1935 for an increase in its 8 inch tonnage' in the event of the United States exercises an option under this treaty to lay down as many as 18 cruisers of the 8 inch type. Herein competition is actually provided for by an understanding officially vouched for by the British government, though not appearing in the data officially presented to the senate in connection with its consideration of the treaty."

Adverting to the President's message of July 7 urging ratification of the treaty, Senator Johnson accused Mr. Hoover of juggling the figures to make the agreement appear favorable to the United States.

Sees Difference in Figures.

Mr. Hoover said that the total tonnage ratio on Jan. 1. was: United States, 100; Great Britain, 113, and Japan, 65, but under the treaty it would become: United States, 100; Great Britain, 102.4, and Japan, 63.6.

Senator Johnson said the President had put ships building into his 1930 list but left them out of his 1936 calculation. The true ratio in 1936, said Mr. Johnson, would be: United States, 100; Great Britain, 108, and Japan, 65.1.

Another misrepresentation in the President's message, according to Mr. Johnson, is the statement that under the treaty the navies of the three powers will be reduced to the extent of 300,000 tons. This figure the senator said was arrived at by juggling as in the other instance. The actual reduction, he said, is 130,000 tons which "would become in reality an increase but for the reduction of 140,000 tons in the quota of American destroyers."

Says U. S. Reductions Largest.

Commenting on the President's statement that the British scrap 63,900 more tons of battleships than does the United States Mr. Johnson said:

"This comparison would be more illuminating if it also included a mention of the fact that the United States has reduced her existing destroyer strength more than corresponding British reductions by an amount of 99,000 tons. Similarly we exceed their reduction of submarines by some 20,000 tons. And it would be more convincing if we did not know the President, through his representatives, demanded the right to construct a new battleship to enable us to reach nearer parity with Great Britain. How strange it is that this demand for a new great battleship proponents of the treaty, prating of reduction and parity, never mention now."

The President's assertion that opposition to the treaty emanates from persons against any arms limitation caused the fiery Californian to speak a word particularly in defense of the admirals and other navy officers opposing the treaty who are not at liberty to retort to their commander in chief.

"This statement by the President," said the senator, "is singularly without foundation concerning those in the United States who oppose this treaty; and in the testimony that was taken before the foreign relations committee the officers of the United States navy in practically every instance avowed themselves as desirous of naval limitation and reduction. They wished just as the senators who oppose the treaty wish—real limitation and fair reduction. They oppose a fictitious reduction and a sham limitation."

Finally the senator took a shot at the President's assertion that it is only the professional navy groups in all countries that are against the treaty.

British Admiralty for Treaty.

"The character of opposition in the three countries is totally dissimilar," said Mr. Johnson. "In Great Britain the treaty has the support of the British admiralty. Without the support of the British admiralty there would have been no treaty signed by Great Britain. The recommendations of the British admiralty concerning naval affairs are practically conclusive. The first lord of the admiralty, Mr. Alexander, speaking in the house of commons on the second day of June, 1930, made very plain that the admiralty spoke for the navy to the government, that the admiralty was the controlling factor in naval affairs, and that it favored the London treaty.

"On the other hand, in America we have a board of naval experts selected from those of highest attainments and widest experience in naval matters, who advise our government in respect to naval affairs. This organization is termed the general board, and while its position is not one of like authority with the British admiralty, its responsible advisory function is closely analogous. The British admiralty favors the treaty. The general board, as the testimony before the foreign relations committee demonstrates, unanimously opposes the treaty.

U. S. Experts Opposed.

"It is true that certain individuals outside of the government in Great Britain, like Jellicoe, Beatty, and Churchill, express themselves in opposition to the treaty; it is equally true that those in authority in naval affairs in Great Britain advocate the treaty, while those in authority in naval affairs in the United States have quite the opposite view. It is scarcely fair, therefore, to say that opposition in Great Britain parallels the opposition in the United States to this treaty; indeed, the fact is quite the reverse.

"The opposition to the treaty in Great Britain is outside the government, while those inside the government, who constitute the arbiters in naval affairs for Britain, enthusiastically favor it; while here those who are a part of the government, and responsible to it for their advice and recommendations, chosen like the British admiralty because they best know the subject with which they deal, are strongly opposed to the terms of the treaty. They feel and they say with absolute unanimity, and as part of their official responsibility, these terms are unfair to the United States.

"In Japan a different sort of situation prevails. There, for many years in the past, two rival branches of the government have been contending for supremacy in relation to the national defense. These two rival parties are in constant warfare over their precedence and the authority of each. One of these parties quarreling with the other now objects to the mode in which the treaty was made, but neither party, in reality, objects to the terms of the treaty. And Japan is ready to ratify the treaty now, with practically all parties favoring its specific terms. This is demonstrated by the dispatches published in our press on the eighth day of July, and it is conclusively shown by the various publications in Japan, some of them semi-official."

Statements Are Quoted.

Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson issued a deadly parallel of the utterances of treaty opponents in America and England. Senator Frederick Hale [Rep., Me.] said the treaty hamstrings our navy, Winston Churchill said it hamstrings the British navy. Hale said it does not provide parity but leaves the American inferior to the British navy. Churchill said it makes the British inferior to the American navy. Hale said the treaty will earn us the contempt of the world. Col. Gretton said it will bring Britain into ridicule and derision throughout the world. The minority report from the foreign relations committee said the British delegates overreached ours. Col. Gretton said the British delegates were pusillanimous.

RACKETEERS EXPLODE BOMB AT CLUB NEAR HOUSE OF JOHN D. JR.

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—Racketeers invaded the exclusive district just off 5th avenue early today and exploded a bomb at the Simplon Social club, on West 53d street, rocking the neighborhood, which includes John D. Rockefeller Jr. among its residents, a block to the north. The bomb was apparently intended merely as a warning and, while it did little damage except to a few windows in the club and several panes of glass in nearby structures, the detonation roared through the district and was heard more than half a mile away. Some slight damage was done to the brown stone front of a building at 28 West 53d, one of the numerous Rockefeller properties in the area.

HOOVER LIKELY TO GIVE UP TRIP THROUGH WEST

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—Close friends of the President expressed the opinion today that Mr. Hoover will abandon his projected trip through the national parks of the far west to spend a few weeks on the New England seashore instead. Senate delay rather than the poor crop prices in the central states will be blamed for the change in plans if the park tour is postponed until another year.

May Visit Near Boston.

There are some reports that the President may accept an invitation to visit John Hays Hammond at his summer home on the Boston north shore, a mile or so south of Gloucester. Should this be done the President probably would spend only two or three weeks in New England, dividing the balance of the summer and fall between the capital and the Rapidan fishing camp.

One White House official said today that unless prospects for early senate action on the treaty brighten at once, the western trip will be definitely out. It was said that when the President made his original plans to visit the western parks it was contemplated that the senate would be away before the middle of July, so final preparations could have been completed for the President to leave Washington shortly after that date.

Poor Time to Visit West.

According to reports, political advisers of the President have pointed to the western trip taken by William Howard Taft in 1911 as an argument against his presenting himself in the interior of the country at a time when the Democrats are making capital of the current low prices for farm products. It was recalled in this connection today that Mr. Taft carried only two of the states he toured in the next election when he was defeated.

Some presidential advisers have also recalled the disastrous trip taken to California in 1916 by Charles Evans Hughes, the Republican candidate for President. While in California Mr. Hughes became entangled in the primary fight and lost the support of Senator Hiram W. Johnson [Rep., Cal.], which cost him the state and the election. Since that time presidents as well as candidates have been wary in venturing into states where primaries are in progress.

HOOVER AT RAPIDAN TO FIND REGION HIT BY SEVERE DROUGHT

Orange, Va., July 12.—(AP)—President Hoover came to his mountain camp today to find an aroma of burning pine, flowers from which leaves were withering, and streams that were dwindling to a mere trickle. Drought that has added to the woes of the farmer during the growing season was stretching a blighting hand into the Virginia mountains.

Timber fires dotted the hills, the largest about 10 miles from the President's camp.

Three spokesmen for the President in the senate—Allen of Kansas; Smoot of Utah, and Vandenberg of Michigan—accompanied him on the trip.

On the trip today Mrs. Hoover was at the wheel of her car for the first time since she was injured, and drove half of the way.

LACK OF FUNDS AGAIN HOLDS UP CITY PAY DAYS

New Revenue Plan Waits on Aldermanic Action.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Pay days for city corporate employés have again been suspended for the lack of cash, as they were last winter. The last observance of pay day was June 27—17 days ago.

The corporate roll totals approximately $3,900,000 a month, so the city is about $2,000,000 behind in the payment of salaries and wages.

The citizens' committee, headed by Silas H. Strawn, prevailed on the special session of the legislature to pass laws designed to permit the city to obtain the needed cash. Those acts were adopted by both houses of the general assembly on June 26—three weeks ago—and no requisite official acts have been taken in the meantime to utilize them for obtaining cash. Some of the aldermen went away to celebrate the Fourth of July and have not returned. No meeting of the city council was held last week.

Some aldermen appear to have assumed that the taxpayers' trust, which raised a subscription of $74,000,000 last winter to tide the local governments over their financial difficulties, would continue in the rôle of rescuing. Thirty per cent of these subscriptions have not been utilized, but the citizens' committee, which established the taxpayers' trust, says it sees no necessity for collecting the additional $22,200,000 pledged, since means have been provided the city for obtaining money without outside aid.

The new laws passed by the special session increased the corporate tax rate for 1930 from $1.125 to $1.37 for each $100 of assessed valuation. Under another statute the city is permitted to issue tax anticipation warrants up to 75 per cent of the increased taxes. It has been estimated by city officials that by this means the city could obtain about $7,000,000 additional.

But the added tax warrants have not been authorized. Only the city council by an affirmative vote can do the authorizing. It was reported yesterday that no arrangement has been made with a purchaser to buy these warrants when issued.

No Buyers for Bonds.

Agents of the city, however, are said to have made preliminary inquiries about the sale of $12,000,000 in bonds of which the proceeds are to be placed in a new "working cash fund." Thus far it is reported that the city has not found any underwriter eager to buy, and no opinion has been obtained from recognized bond attorneys on their view of the law which created the working cash fund.

There is reported to be a hesitancy on the part of prospective buyers approached to make a definite statement on these bonds. The result is that certain city officials have the impression that a favorable decision of the state Supreme court will be a prerequisite to the sale of these bonds.

The importance of this bond sale, experts say, lies in the fact that unless the sale is made this year the city will not be able to meet its appropriations even after borrowing $7,000,000 more on tax anticipation warrants.

In addition the special session of the legislature authorized the city to issue $7,000,000 in bonds to pay off a portion of its floating indebtedness. Both of these bond issues require enabling ordinances of the city council and also ordinances making a supplemental tax levy to pay the principal and interest when due. None of these four ordinances has been passed.

Complain About Tax Bills.

The payment of tax bills for 1928, which became delinquent on July 10, has brought out complaints. One of them, sent to County Treasurer Harding and sent by him to Mr. Strawn, indicates the general trend of most of the letters.

Referring to an advertisement that 1 per cent penalty a month will be added after the delinquent date of July 10, the letter, addressed to Treasurer Harding, says:

"I cut this out from the newspaper and say you want me to pay some taxes to you, O my, for what I shall pay you some taxes which I read in the newspapers about Mr. Strawn rescue committee; he buy all the taxes and give you the money and now you want some more—ha, ha—you pretty good, so you want to pay 1 per cent for some taxes, ha, ha, you big fool—don't you know us people read in our newspapers that Mr. Strawn he give you all the money need for them taxes warrants—and now you think we is suckers to give you some more—who is you anyhow—you work for Mr. Thompson and Mr. Flarrary who we read in those newspapers they take all the money, ha, ha, so you pay 1 per cent for some more money—ha, ha—you is a good joke ain't you—what you want with all this money. Mr. Strawn he pay all the bills, Mr. Harding you is foolish."

The "Ha, Ha" feature is that the Strawn committee says it does not intend to advance any more money to finance the local governments.

They then marched in the direction of Klausenburg and continued their attack. At Banea many young men gathered in bands and attacked Jewish inhabitants, some of whom were severely beaten.

Observe Battle of Boyne.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, July 12.—(AP)—Every speech at every Orange demonstration commemorating the 240th anniversary of the battle of the Boyne today in Ulster called on the British government to support Lord Strickland, premier of Malta, in his stand against the bishops. Viscount Craigavon said at Enniskillen that his entire sympathies lay with the Maltese premier.

Demand for safeguarding duties also figured prominently in the day's speeches. Lord Craigavon said that all his cabinet, all Ulster representatives in the imperial parliament, and all unionists in the northern Ireland house, were as keen as himself on having a duty placed on foreign imports.

WABASH VIADUCT JOB IS LET; WIDE VARIANCE IN BIDS

Wide differences in the bids of eleven contractors for the construction of the north viaduct approach to the new Wabash avenue bridge were disclosed yesterday. The contract was awarded by Commissioner of Public Works Wolfe to the second lowest bidder, the Ketler-Elliott company, which is constructing the bridge, on its bid of $529,929.

The lowest bidder was the J. E. Albrecht company, which offered to do the work for $514,120. Engineers in Wolfe's department recommended the Ketler-Elliott bid, saying the latter company would do the work in six months, while the low bidder required seven months.

The engineers said Albrecht bid on the first five items, totaling $8,500, was below actual cost. On one classification of subpiers the Ketler-Elliott bid was 400 per cent more than the bid of the Albrecht company, which gave a price of $2 a cubic foot for a specified 1,000 cubic feet, while the Ketler-Elliott bid was $10 a cubic foot. The $2 bid, the engineers said, would be "ruinous" if the city ordered a large amount of work.

"SECRET WIFE" SUES PEARSONS, NAMING RIVAL

Asks for Separation from Ex-Evanston Mayor.

Harry P. Pearsons, former mayor of Evanston, was sued for separate maintenance in the Superior court yesterday by Mrs. Elizabeth Pearsons, 2752 Garrison avenue, Evanston. The bill, drawn by Attorney Milton J. Sabath, charges misconduct with a woman named as Mary Doe of 489 Briar place, Chicago.

The Pearsons were married on June 16, 1928, at Ottawa, Ill. Pearsons served five successive terms as mayor of Evanston, but was defeated in 1925 by Mayor Charles H. Bartlett. He was divorced in 1922 by Mrs. Frances K. Pearsons, now Mrs. Addison Stillwell, wife of the lumber dealer.

For several months after their marriage Pearsons refused to disclose his present wife's name. That the marriage was not a happy one became known last November when Pearsons caused his wife's arrest for disorderly conduct when she appeared at his home, 1816 Chicago avenue, Evanston, and demanded admittance. Later she was placed under a $400 peace bond, with instructions not to disturb or talk to her husband.

"Calls Marriage Void."

Mrs. Pearsons alleges that Pearsons told in court that his marriage was void because he entered into it "when he was not himself," following a drinking party. Testimony to refute this charge, according to Attorney Sabath, will be based on a pre-nuptial contract, which Mrs. Pearsons signed, whereby she waived all dowry rights for a sum of $30,000.

The wife's bill states that the marriage was not sudden, but followed a year's courtship by Pearsons. Mrs. Pearsons says their difficulties were due mainly to her husband's wish that the marriage remain a secret. Whenever his friends visited them, she alleges, he compelled her to leave the house so that he could entertain in bachelor style.

Since their separation on Aug. 20, 1929, Mrs. Pearsons says, she has been living in a building owned by her husband, and she asserts he is now trying to have her evicted by permitting a foreclosure of the mortgage on the building.

Refuses to Pay, She Says.

Mrs. Pearsons says her husband has refused to repay several thousand dollars which she loaned him from a small estate left to her by her first husband, who died. Pearsons, according to the bill, is a director in several banks and owns valuable property on the north shore.

Pearsons has failed to support her for some time, the wife alleges, and she asks suitable alimony. Pearsons is a member of the University clubs of Chicago and Evanston, of the Glenview Country club, and is a director of the Vista del Lago club.

Mrs. Pearsons says her three children by her former marriage are now living with her. She asks that a receiver be appointed for the property in which she is living so that she will not be evicted.

EUGENIA BANKHEAD HOYT BUTT LEE SEEKS HER 3D RENO DIVORCE

Reno, Nev., July 12.—[Special.]—Eugenia Bankhead Hoyt Butt Lee, much married daughter of Congressman B. Bankhead of Alabama, today telegraphed friends here that she will again be a resident of Reno for the purpose of securing a divorce, her third in the past three months. She will institute proceedings against Howard Lee, the aviator she married on July 1 of this year. According to the information telegraphed here they have separated. She found Lee's story of untold wealth and of southern family connection untrue, she says, and no longer can respect him.

Lee is the third matrimonial companion of the former Eugenia Bankhead, but it was her fourth trip to the altar. She married Morton Hoyt, son of a former solicitor general in the Taft administration in 1920. They were divorced in Reno, but remarried a year later and then a second divorce followed. A few days later she married Wilfred Lawson Butt. This marriage lasted only as far as the Honolulu honeymoon, and Mrs. Butt came back here and filed annulment papers, alleging there was another Mrs. Butt.

The day after the Butt marriage was annuled Mrs. Butt, who had taken back her maiden name, married Lee.

SOUSA FALLS ON SHIP GANGPLANK; INJURIES MINOR

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—In the sight of hundreds John Philip Sousa, America's most celebrated bandmaster, narrowly escaped severe injuries as he left the Leviathan when that steamship docked today at the foot of West 46th street.

Mr. Sousa, who is 76 years old, was hastening down the gangplank to greet friends when he tripped and fell hard. For a moment or two he lay half stunned and blood began to flow down his forehead. Rapid examination by the Leviathan's doctor showed, however, that the cut on Mr. Sousa's head was not deep and the contusion only a slight bruise.

In a few minutes the author of "The Washington Post March," "El Capitan," "The Stars and Stripes Forever," and so many other ringing tunes of distinctly American character was sitting in a camp chair on the pier, fingering his bandaged head, but chatting gaily.

One of the things that tickled him most about his trip abroad was that he had found on a wall of Pagani's famous restaurant in London several bars of music that he had scribbled there twenty-seven years ago. The pencilings were still legible. Mr. Sousa wrote down a few more bars just to keep the record going, and hopes to be able to inspect them twenty-seven years from now.

I
Housewife or Grocer
Whose interest should come first

A & P, though a grocer itself, votes for the housewife. She has a right to as much good food as her money can buy under the most favorable conditions.

Not everyone takes this view. By some strange reasoning certain people see harm to human welfare in cutting your food bill. A & P cuts your food bill to the minimum. So these people are against A & P.

They are all for raising the standard of living—provided their profits go up the same slope. How the housewife is to pay her part . . . that, they say, is her affair, not the grocer's.

A few misguided persons have taken up the cry, shouting "Away with low profits!" as loudly as, when it suited their purpose to denounce profiteers, they shouted "Away with high profits!"

But A & P sticks to its knitting. Its job is the same today as it was seventy years ago . . . to make it easier for more housewives to buy the best food.

That's A & P's story in a nutshell.

Bonner Shot as He Sets Trap for Murderer.

to a degree amounting almost to fortification, according to a recent description.

Bonner sought to ingratiate himself with McDonnell, the druggist, when he learned that Burke made occasional visits to the drug store. Burke also went to a West Randolph street store for malt, hops, and other materials to make home brew. In the seclusion of his Michigan retreat Burke needed liquor and beer to ward off loneliness for himself and his companions. A beautiful blonde woman named Caroline was among those who shared Burke's seclusion.

Stege on Burke's Trail.

At a meeting of the city council police committee a month ago Capt. John Stege, then chief of detectives, said his men were on the trail of Burke. Bonner was making reports of progress.

Last Sunday McDonnell invited Bonner to drive him up to Michigan to meet the man McDonnell called Smith but whom Bonner knew to be Burke. Bonner was told to take all the newspapers, including the one with the story of Burke's 79th street rendezvous. He did so.

He drove one of McDonnell's automobiles and Mrs. McDonnell rode in the rear seat with her husband. As a precaution, according to the police, Bonner was told they were going to Grand Rapids. Bonner agreed to make a report to the police on his return, which he expected would be Monday night.

Bonner Under Surveillance.

But he slept at the Burke cottage on Monday night and for the return journey he drove Burke's Buick automobile which bore the Michigan license of 639,862. The McDonnells returned by themselves in their own car. Burke had read the newspapers and presumably he put Bonner under surveillance.

Bonner apparently was seen going to the detective bureau to convey his information to Chief Norton. He described the location of the Burke cottage and said Burke was regarded by neighbors as a Chicago bootlegger.

Burke would be in Chicago Wednesday or Saturday, Bonner declared. The hunted murderer had said he was going first to Flint and Detroit, according to Bonner. The police lookouts were again posted at the place mentioned in the newspapers last Sunday but Burke did not go to McDonnell's drug store.

Slayers Go to Home.

Two men entered Bonner's home a few minutes after midnight of last Wednesday. One was Burke—his picture having been identified by Mrs. Bonner—and the other was a blond haired man who was drunk and who held his gun in his left hand. Mrs. Bonner, with her 5 months old son, Bobbie, in her arms, went to another room while her husband received the visitors. The exchange of words was short.

Burke and his companion evidently told Bonner they had proof he was a police informer. He protested. A bullet hit him between the eyes and his protests were over.

Burke left the scene of his latest murder in McDonnell's car, according to the police, a Ford with the license number 1,052,358, which was issued to McDonnell for a Packard car.

Before his death Bonner had parked Burke's car at a garage at 79th street and Parnell avenue, and the McDonnells went there on Friday afternoon to claim it. They were then taken by detectives to Chief Norton who released them after he had questioned them for several hours.

BRUNDIDGE PAYS VISIT TO CAPONE AT MIAMI BEACH

Miami, Fla., July 12.—[Special.]—Harry T. Brundidge, St. Louis Star reporter who, in published articles, has accused certain Chicago newspaper men of trafficking with gangsters and racketeers, was seen visiting Al Capone at his Miami Beach estate today.

Although Brundidge refused to discuss a four hour conference with Capone, it is believed that the purpose of his visit here was in connection with his charges. He has offered to give the result of his Chicago investigation to a grand jury there.

Brundidge arrived here early last night and was admitted to Capone's home thirty minutes later. He was seen leaving the gang residence about 2 a. m. today in an expensive sedan driven by one of Capone's lieutenants. It is believed his visit here was to look for cancelled checks on which the names of several Chicago newspaper men are reported to have appeared.

CAPONE IS FREED IN PERJURY CASE BY COURT ORDER

Miami, Fla., July 12.—[Special.]—Al [Scarface] Capone today was acquitted of one of several charges of perjury on a directed verdict in the Criminal court presided over by Judge E. C. Collins. Spectators cheered but were promptly silenced when Judge Collins threatened to arrest any who persisted in creating a disturbance.

The directed verdict came after an hour of argument. Judge Collins then adjourned court, announcing he would set the date for trial on the other charges of perjury against Capone Monday.

There were hints that the other charges might be dismissed. George McCaskill, county solicitor, is expected to reach a decision on this question by Monday.

ROSENHEIM'S JOB TOLD BY WIFE AT MURDER INQUEST

Record Shows She Knew of His Investigating.

Coroner Bundesen, interviewed yesterday on why he has not reopened the inquest into the murder of Julius Rosenheim, vice and gang investigator for the Chicago Daily News, because of new developments in that case, said the inquest had been closed and a verdict returned on Feb. 20.

"I would have no authority to reopen the inquest," Dr. Bundesen said. "The jury returned a finding of murder, and recommended that the slayers be apprehended, and provided that if they are caught, they may be held without bail to the grand jury."

Dr. Bundesen was asked whether at the time of the murder he was notified by the Daily News that Rosenheim was an employé of the paper.

"I was not notified by the Daily News, officially or otherwise, that Rosenheim was an employé of the Daily News," he replied. "I have now no information that he was such an employé, except what I read in the newspapers."

Circumstances of the Slaying.

When Rosenheim was shot dead on the street near his home at 3510 Dickens avenue, on Feb. 1, in a manner similar to that in which Alfred Lingle, TRIBUNE reporter, was murdered, there was mention made in the newspapers, including the Daily News, that Rosenheim was an investigator for various reform and official agencies.

The Daily News did not reveal at that time that Rosenheim was a paid informant on its staff. However, Leland H. Reese, gangland reporter for the Daily News, in a signed article explaining how gangsters had attempted to kill him, also revealed that Rosenheim was an employé of the Daily News and that Rosenheim probably was murdered by the Capone gang in an attempt to "frighten the Daily News" from its campaign against the Capone gang selling beer in the loop.

An examination of the stenographic record of the proceedings at the Rosenheim inquest reveals that no witnesses from the Daily News appeared to give aid in the investigation by disclosing Rosenheim's connection with that newspaper.

The only mention made of the Daily News in the coroner's record was in connection with the testimony of the murdered man's widow. Questioned by Deputy Coroner Jacob Schewel, Mrs. Rosenheim testified in part as follows, according to the record:

Q.—Do you know what his (Rosenheim's) business was? A.—Investigator.

Q.—For whom? A.—Well——

Q.—For whom? A.—He said for anybody that he could get work for.

Q.—Do you know who he worked for at the time of this? A.—He told me for the Daily News.

Q.—The Daily News? A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you know what kind of investigation he was making for the Daily News? A.—He never told me.

Q.—Not only for the Daily News, he also worked for any one that hired him, is that right? A.—That is what I thought. He told me that.

Q.—Do you know whether he was working for any one else at the time. A.—No.

Quizzed on Safe Deposit Box.

At another point in the questioning it was revealed with apparent reluctance by Mrs. Rosenheim that she had visited a safe deposit box rented by her husband, and had taken everything from it, just before the inquest was convened.

Her questioning on this subject, in part, follows:

Q.—When you went yourself, just what did you take out of the box? A.—I took some insurance policies out he had in there.

Q.—All right. He had in there a sealed letter? A.—A sealed letter?

Q.—Yes? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Wasn't there a paper of some kind, something saying, "If anything happens to me, look up so and so"? A.—No, sir.

Q.—The reason I am asking, we were told that there was such a paper existing. You have got to help us a little. A.—Yes.

Q.—By turning them over to the police department, if such a thing was there. A.—I didn't see anything.

Q.—Didn't you know that some representative of the police department wanted to go with you? A.—No. Nobody told me.

Q.—How did you know that your husband had a box at that bank? A.—Well, because I can go in there myself.

Q.—Who had the keys for the box? A.—We had them in the house.

Q.—When is the last time you opened the box? A.—The first I have been there.

Q.—That is the first time you ever opened the box? A.—Yes.

Official Tells of Rosenheim.

Further information concerning Rosenheim was given yesterday by a high official of the state's attorney's office, who said that he had been called on the telephone by Rosenheim. The latter sought an interview, and when notified to come to the state's attorney's office declined and asked to be permitted to visit the official at his home.

Finally permission for this was granted, but the official said he distrusted the motive of Rosenheim and requested Pat Roche, chief investigator of the state's attorney's office, to be present in the house and to overhear the conversation without Rosenheim being aware of it.

"Rosenheim came in," said the official, "and immediately made proposal that he could get his friend, 'Monkey Face Charlie' Genker, a notorious pander since the old red light district days, to expose the activities of other vice mongers. Although Rosenheim didn't say so directly, it was evident from his conversation that if Genker did this it was with the understanding that the state's attorney would not molest him in the operation of his own dives.

"I told Rosenheim that if Genker came in voluntarily with evidence against vice interests, and if his admissions tended to involve himself, that this fact would be given some consideration.

"But I made it plain that if Rosenheim intended that we should wink at the disorderly houses of 'Monkey Face Charlie' Genker he was clearly on the wrong track. He left me saying that if that was the way I felt about it, nothing could be done. And nothing more came of it."

PROSECUTOR'S OFFICE DENIES IDENTIFICATION OF LINGLE MURDERER

Published reports that Anthony Ruthey, traffic policeman who is assigned at Michigan avenue and Randolph street, where Lingle was murdered, and who pursued a man believed to be the slayer, had identified a picture as that of the man he chased, are erroneous, it was authoritatively learned at the state's attorney's office. Ruthey has not identified any photographs, it was stated.

It was also learned that a witness named Charles Egan, who was at the scene at the time of the murder, has not identified any picture as that of the slayer, as had been reported.

THE MYSTERY MAN

Mystery still shrouds the identity of the Chicago newspaper man who was a house guest of Scarface Al Capone in Florida, and who flew with the gang chieftain to Havana, where both were arrested by the Cuban police.

Harry Brundidge, reporter for the St. Louis Star, who made the charge that this newspaper man was a close intimate of Capone, much closer than was Lingle, has offered to give his name to the Cook county grand jury. Up to the present, however, Brundidge's employers and State's Attorney Swanson have been unable to agree on the method to be followed in presenting Brundidge's information.

Reports yesterday were that this newspaper pal of Capone had confided in his superiors, in part at least, the nature of his dealings with Capone, but up to the present neither the newspaper man nor his editors have seen fit to come forward with a public explanation.

Meanwhile, although the newspaper man's identity remained a secret, rumors were piling in that he had spent most of his evenings before departing for Florida with Capone in the gangster's company at the Cotton club, the Cicero night club operated by Ralph Capone, brother of Scarface Al.

The reports were that the newspaper man never was permitted to pay his check, and that the waiters were instructed to keep his table always filled with drinks and choice victuals.

NEW TELEPHONE FRANCHISE UP TO COMMITTEE

Subway Location Cost Is Left for Future.

The major terms of a new telephone franchise ordinance have been tentatively agreed upon and will be submitted to the council gas, oil, and electric light committee tomorrow, according to an announcement made yesterday by Ald. Jacob M. Arvey [24th], committee chairman. The old franchise of the Illinois Bell Telephone company expired Jan. 8, 1929, and the provisions of a new grant have been debated since the fall of 1928.

One of the principal objections raised by aldermen to a franchise draft previously before the committee was the failure to obligate the company to pay for relocating its cables when a subway is constructed. Under the new proposals the company agrees to accept any ordinance on relocation costs which may be passed affecting all utilities, but the franchise makes no specific pledge to assume the costs.

Tells of Agreement.

The expired franchise placed the cost of subway relocations on the company. The absence of this provision from the new draft was explained by Ald. Arvey yesterday as follows:

"The company has definitely agreed to accept any ordinance which the city might pass with reference to the payment by all utilities of the cost of removal of their plants resulting from subway construction, or the rental to be charged the utilities for the use of space in the subways."

The omission in the franchise of a specific provision on the relocation costs and its inclusion only in a future ordinance was fought by Attorneys Benjamin F. Goldstein and George I. Haight last year when they were advising the committee. Developments yesterday disclosed that Sidney S. Gorham is now representing the committee though no public announcement had been made of the change.

Recall Delay Warning.

"The suggestion made by the telephone company that even though their franchise is silent on this matter they would be willing to accept the provisions of a general ordinance applicable to all utilities is dangerous," said Attorneys Goldstein and Haight last fall, "in view of the fact that it would defer the determination of the rights of the parties until the time when the subway construction is undertaken.

"In the event of disagreement this might lead to litigation expensive to all parties and to delays in the construction of the subway itself."

Ald. Arvey also argued that the enabling traction legislation passed by the state legislature in 1929 gives the city a right to compel public utilities to relocate equipment when public improvements require it. On this point Attorneys Goldstein and Haight wrote:

"The right of the city to demand the removal or to remove at the expense of the company, in the absence of a judical decision that the same is done under the police power, will depend, in part at least, upon the wording of the franchise of the particular utility concerned."

Held to Be Major Item.

Investigations have disclosed that the cost of relocating utility properties in New York to make way for subway extension is in excess of $1,000,000 a mile of which one-half is represented by the relocation of telephone properties. This cost has made a provision concerning it one of the major terms, according to the aldermen, in the new franchise.

The omission of this provision from the new draft, in effect, makes a gift to the telephone company, according to Attorneys Goldstein and Haight.

"The telephone company has presumably arranged its financial affairs and its rates to conform to its rights under the old franchise," they wrote. "To eliminate at this time the obligation [relocation costs] for which it has made provision in its rates is the equivalent of giving to the company an increase in rates by decreasing its expenses and will result in a gift to it of that part of the revenue already received to make provision for the contingency under the 1907 ordinance.

"In this respect the telephone company differs from the other utilities which have not had such a provision in their franchise in the past."

Chicago Boys "Up" in Tree Sitting Endurance Contest

Many Enter Pastime

Chicago now may boast of several tree sitting endurance contests. One group of three boys announced yesterday they had beaten the 36 hour 15 minute record established by the champion tree sitter of Racine, Wis., Jimmy Clemons. Moreover, they said, they would continue to sit and make a record hard to beat. Meanwhile, a Kansas City boy, Jack Richards, 14 years old, claimed to hold the record. He had been "up" 40 hours. One news service reported that 50 boys and girls over the midwest were sitting in trees, the stunts being inspired by the endurance flight of the Hunter brothers.

Herbert Ellingham Jr., 3938 West 61st place; Louis Sanders Jr., 3930 West 61st place, and Eddie Swandon, Jr., 3942 West 61st place, all 12 years old, have occupied portions of a comfortably spreading tree on a vacant lot of the southeast corner of 61st place and Crawford avenue since 9:30 o'clock Thursday night.

They sit in chairs strapped to branches and trunk of the tree. At night Mr. Ellingham, Sr., ascends and straps them in. The three younger sisters of the boys, Jane Ellingham, 11; Beverly Swandon, 9, and Rosemary Sanders, 10, send baskets of food up to them by means of a rope pulley. The boys are members of Boy Scoup Troop No. 636.

Two Oak Park newsboys also are rivals for the record of the longest tree sitter. They had been sitting in a tree in the rear of 602 Bellefort avenue for two days, they said last night. The boys are Truman Kirkpatrick, 16 years old, 630 Belleforte avenue, and Jack Harris, 1012 Augusta street.

AUSTRIA PLEDGES AID TO PLAN FOR U. S. OF EUROPE

Other Nations' Replies Due in Few Days.

PARIS, July 12.—(AP)—The Austrian government's reply to Foreign Minister Briand's memorandum on a Pan-European union, received at the Quai d'Orsay today, promises Austria's loyal coöperation in every effort to solve the problems that still stand in the way of a European federation.

These problems, the reply points out, are of a political nature and must be dealt with in a new European spirit before the peace of Europe can be considered as assured.

Whatever form the proposed European union may take, it must not be aimed against any other group or country, and it must fit in with the league of nations, in the opinion of the Austrian government.

Awaits Other Replies.

PARIS, July 12.—[U. P.]—Aristide Briand's dream of Pan-Europa was put to the test this week-end, with hope for success mounting at the Quai d'Orsay.

Replies from 26 nations of Europe were expected by July 15, and the veteran diplomat waited most anxiously for the attitude which Great Britain and Germany will express regarding his proposal for a European union.

The five replies received by the foreign office and the half a dozen others made known unofficially have been favorable, most of them with reservations. Despite hesitancy in certain countries, the Quai d'Orsay has expressed increasing confidence that the plan will be well launched this summer, and ready for discussion at Geneva, where it is hoped the major objections will be eliminated.

Hinges on Britain.

But the position of Great Britain and of Germany may profoundly affect the plan. England, it was pointed out, must face the old problem of whether she shall link herself more closely to the continent, or turn to the empire for her future, and it was not considered likely here or in London that the British reply would be more than a noncommittal expression of sympathy with the proposal.

The German reply, while expected to guardedly approve the principle of a federation, undoubtedly will be circled with strong reservations. The German draft will be delivered Monday.

The Italian reply, while critical, was interpreted at the Quai d'Orsay as more favorable than expected, although the proposal that Turkey and soviet Russia should be admitted has not been favored here.

Other Replies Received.

Replies have been received from Austria, Spain, Rumania, Italy, and Holland, but various other nations have announced their replies at their own capitals, or said they would reply within the next few days.

Denmark—which with all the Scandinavian countries is expected to favor the plan—handed her reply to the French minister yesterday; Portugal's reply was approved today by the council of ministers; Czecho-Slovakia's favorable reply was made known semi-officially at Prague today, and will be delivered next Monday, while Poland, Belgium, Jugo-Slavia, and Greece have indicated favorable replies, probably with reservations, except in the case of Poland.

CHARGES SPOUSE FAILED TO KISS HER FOR 14 YEARS

For two years after their marriage Walter L. Snyder, 221 North Laramie avenue, treated her with kindness and affection, Mrs. Miriam I. Snyder, 4672 West End avenue, says in her bill for separate maintenance filed yesterday in Superior court. But for the last 14 years, she complains, Snyder has acted as though she were his housekeeper and has even neglected to kiss her.

The Snyders were married on Aug. 26, 1914. In the bill, drawn by Attorney Harry X. Cole, Mrs. Snyder also alleges her husband is stingy and instead of taking her to the movies and other entertainments he prefers to sit at home or in the parks where there is no charge attached.

When she told him she would sue for divorce if he failed to provide for her, Mrs. Snyder alleges her husband threatened to have her "taken for a ride" if she caused him any legal expense. Snyder is an insurance broker.

(A BUSINESS EDITORIAL)

No. 2 of a series of editorials written and used during the last period of readjustment. How well the thoughts fit into today's conditions.

THE FUTURE

Looking facts squarely in the face makes hope worth while. It is only common sense—it is the wisdom of the man who would rather face the worst known condition than live with the constant menace of something he does not know. The unknown is frequently disturbing simply because it is a mystery.

No one can foretell accurately the future of business, except that it will come out right some day. The biggest and wisest can only consider what happened yesterday; what is happening today. From the viewpoint of that knowledge can be calculated the prospects for tomorrow.

Big men in business do just that. All men, in whatever sized business, can do the same. Of course, it will be their own judgment, plus the viewpoint of others in whom they have confidence, which decides their action. But unless they proceed in some such order, they are small men irrespective of the size of the business.

RADICAL CHANGES HIT PARKING ON NO. PARK DRIVES

Diversey and Sheridan Restricted.

BY HAL FOUST.

The Lincoln park board has modified its parking regulations and intends to enforce them. The Citation court, where violators were merely lectured, will be abolished, and the Municipal courts will be asked to impose fines. Some of the changes in the regulations are effective on next Thursday and others on July 24.

Parking on all drives except sections of North Michigan avenue, Sheridan road, and Diversey parkway will be prohibited at all times except between 11 a. m. and 4:30 p. m., when it will be restricted to one hour. This is effective next Thursday. The present regulations, covering all the park's pavements, permits parking at all times, with these restrictions: Midnight to 7 a. m., and from 11 a. m. to 4 p. m., thirty minute limit; 7 a. m. to 11 a. m., and from 4 p. m. to midnight, for loading and unloading only, not to exceed fifteen minutes.

Restrict Avenue Parking.

On North Michigan avenue, between the bridge and Oak street, starting Thursday, parking will be prohibited except for one hour between 11 a. m. and 4:30 p. m. In the circles north of the bridge parking will be banned between 1 a. m. and 7 a. m., and at other times will be permitted for one hour only.

One section of the new ordinance is devoted to all night parking, stating that there shall be no parking at any place in the board's jurisdiction between 1 a. m. and 7 a. m.

Passenger loading zones are created on North Michigan avenue at all street intersections. Parking is to be prohibited in these areas, 80 feet from the building line, on the near side of the corners.

All of the regulations for North Michigan avenue are effective next Thursday.

Change Sheridan Road Rules.

Changes on Diversey parkway and Sheridan road are effective on July 24. Parking is prohibited except between 9:30 a. m. and 4:30 p. m. and between 7 p. m. and 1 a. m., when the limit is one hour. The Lincoln park jurisdiction on Sheridan road extends north to Devon avenue.

Parking is to be prohibited, starting July 24, within fifty feet of the building line at all intersections. There is a similar city ordinance but no attempt has ever been made to enforce it. Safety engineers contend that this illegal parking, blocking the view of cross traffic, is responsible for many accidents. Capt. Charles E. Shaw, head of the Lincoln park police, said the park's regulation will be enforced with arrests.

The amended ordinance provides penalties as follows: $3 fine for first offense, $5 fine for second offense, and $10 for third offense.

60 NEGRO GOLD STAR MOTHERS SAIL ABROAD ON SEGREGATED SHIP

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—Sixty Negro gold star mothers sailed today from Hoboken on the liner American Merchant to visit the graves of their sons who were killed in action during the world war. They were accompanied by Maj.-Gen. B. Frank Cheatham, who instituted and sponsored the visitation of all gold star mothers to France.

It was Gen. Cheatham's proposal to segregate the white women from the Negroes, and in explaining this action today, he disavowed all motives of race prejudice and personal feelings.

"The motive behind this plan," he said, "was that I thought they would be happier going over by themselves than with white women. I was not influenced by any sort of race prejudice. I was born and raised among these people and I like them."

ITALY "BOMBED" WITH PLANE LOAD OF PROPAGANDA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, July 12. — More than 40 pounds of anti-Fascist pamphlets were hurled by a mysterious airplane on the city of Milan, the official Stefani news agency announced today.

Barracks and military workshops were the targets of the floating propagandists, who threw many bundles of anti-militarist messages. One package of pamphlets, weighing 13½ pounds, smashed the roof of a military workshop.

According to official circles here a French airplane belonging to the editor of the Paris paper, Avion, piloted by an Italian, Giovanni Bassanessi, a resident of Paris, was forced to land near Saint Gotthard Hospice in Switzerland. The pilot was badly hurt. Anti-Fascist leaflets were found in his plane. Bassanessi said he had left Le Bourget field for Switzerland the previous day and was trying to reenter France by the Simplon-Rhone way, but had lost his way in the fog.

DAY OF FINANCIAL RECKONING FOR FLORIDA IS NEAR

Over 590 Millions of Bonds Outstanding.

Miami, Fla., July 12.—[Special.]—With the day of reckoning just around the corner, Florida's financial state is one of chaos. More than 590 million dollars of city and county bonds are outstanding and forty cities are reported by the Florida League of Municipalities to be already in default of payment of their obligations, assumed during the hectic days of 1924-'25.

J. Mark Wilcox, city attorney for West Palm Beach, which city is now being sued for $2,600,000 by holders of improvement bonds of the city, said in his report to the league:

"Not only have more than forty cities been unable to meet payments on their bonded indebtedness, but in many instances the legal limit for taxation has been reached, and in some instances, passed.

"This is no time for the state to camouflage or close our eyes to the real situation in Florida," Wilcox said. "We know that in many cities there are properties which cannot possibly yield sufficient revenue at the present time to pay fixed charges such as taxation and overhead."

For Sales Tax on Luxuries.

The league went on record as favoring a sales tax on luxuries and other measures designed to relieve the present tax burdens. A special session of the state legislature was also asked to speed up the passage of the sales tax.

Real estate has long been carrying the major part of taxes, and with the crash of the boom, owners of lots and acreage have allowed their land to be sold for taxes rather than pay the heavy tax. While the sales tax will be generally unpopular, members of the league of municipalities believe that it will protect the small home owner.

A sweeping policy of retrenchment and economy is asked for the state, cities and counties by the league, which urges that all highway construction programs be canceled, and the tax on gasoline, now applied only to roads and schools, be spread over the entire tax list.

Miami Mayor's Suggestion.

C. H. Reeder, mayor of Miami, urged that the state legislature present to the people an amendment to the state constitution which would permit the state to issue 350 millions in bonds, to mature in forty years and carry a rate of interest of not more than 4½ per cent, to pay off the city and county bonds. The county and city bonds pay on the average of 6 per cent interest.

A financial commission would be created to pass upon the bond issues that would be submitted to the people, and a requirement that 75 per cent of the freeholders would be necessary to vote on any bond issue, and a banking commission to regulate the banks of the state are also to be asked of the special session, if it is called.

With heavy bank failures in every part of the state, Florida has turned to the postal saving system. Owen W. Pittman, postmaster at Miami, said that the Miami postoffice had been forced to open three branches.

Turn to Postal Savings.

Deposits in the Miami office are running as high as $65,000 to $75,000 a day. The increase in postal savings swelled after the closing of the Bank of Bay Biscayne and its three subsidiary institutions. Two of these were located in regions where the new postal savings offices are located.

The same day that $75,000 was passed through the windows at the postoffice when checked with figures for one year ago, showed that $4,500 was taken in that day. The first three days of 1930 showed $150,000, contrasted to the first three of 1929, which had $14,000.

The postal savings bank at Miami has on deposit $2,387,010. At postal banks in Jacksonville, Tampa, West Palm Beach and other smaller Florida cities similar conditions are prevailing, according to postal officials.

The present financial situation in Florida is traced to the collapse of the boom, two hurricanes that played through the state, bank failures and the Mediterranean fruit fly scare. This brought fruit production to a standstill.

KURDS TERRORIZE TURK VILLAGERS; 'AVENGE ALLAH'

Tribesmen Flee After 1,000 Are Slain.

ISTANBUL, Turkey, July 12.—(AP)—The reactionary nature of the Kurdish incursion into the Mount Ararat region today was emphasized by official information from Onkara.

Reports confirming the annihilation of 1,000 Kurds by government forces near Lake Van added that the Kurds, previously carrying out their vengeance against the modernized Turks, cut the visors off the Turks' caps, presumably to make them look like fezzes, and terrorized Turkish villagers.

"Vengeance of Allah."

The Kurds' spokesman said Allah had sent them to wreak vengeance on the Turks who shaved and wore hats and let their women go about freely.

Despite their savage sheepskin costumes, the invaders were armed with the most modern types of rifles. Among their leaders were officers of the Ottoman army, whom the Kemalists had exiled.

Incited by Plotters.

The Onkara authorities stated officially today that it had been established that 150 of the blacklisted Ottoman plotters had incited the Kurdish uprising. Some of the rebels who escaped into Persia will be rounded up by coöperating forces of Persian and Turkish troops, it was said.

The government promised that none of the 15,000 insurrectionists who escaped with their lives will evade ultimate punishment. To prevent future Kurdish incursions, the Turks are preparing to demand rectification of the Turko-Persian frontier.

Urge Hero Medal for U. S. Matador Who Saved Boy

MADRID, July 12.—(AP)—Petitions were circulated today to give Sidney Franklin, Brooklyn bullfighter, a hero medal for saving a boy from drowning in a swimming hole near Madrid a few days ago. Franklin was passing when he say the boy's distress. Throwing off his outer clothes he plunged in and rescued the youngster.

BYRD VISITS ST. LOUIS; DEDICATES AIR FIELD; THOUSANDS CHEER HIM

St. Louis, Mo., July 12.—(AP)—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd shared honors today with two St. Louis members of his Antarctic expedition at their homecoming.

The famous explorer, hailed by the city's sweltering thousands as a hero, turned the spotlight upon Capt. Ashley McKinley, photographer, and Ensign Thomas B. Mulroy, chief engineer of the expedition, in glowing tributes to them at a chamber of commerce luncheon. He came here, he said, chiefly to join with the citizens of St. Louis in honoring McKinley and Mulroy, whose homes are in St. Louis.

With the temperature at 102 degrees, they rode in a military parade this afternoon with Lieut. Charles E. Lofgren, personnel officer of the expedition, and were loudly acclaimed by thousands who lined the streets.

The Byrd party flew this morning from Chicago and was escorted into the city by a convoy of twenty-four airplanes.

Byrd dedicated the city's $2,000,000 airport, the home air field of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, and turned the first shovelful of earth for a new naval reserve hangar.

Tonight the admiral was a guest at the Municipal opera. He planned to leave by train tomorrow morning for New York.

MEARS LEAVES TO ALTER PLANE FOR WORLD JOURNEY

John Henry Mears, who next week will attempt to break the world's record time for circling the globe now held by the Graf Zeppelin, left Chicago early yesterday for Cleveland and New York, where he stated he will make alterations to his plane in preparation for the flight over the first leg of his journey.

He flew from the Municipal airport yesterday in the Lockheed Vega plane which he plans to use in his flight. Mears' former record of 23 days 15 hours and 21 minutes was beaten by the German dirigible, which circled the globe in 21 days.

The route planned by Mears is from New York to Harbor Grace, Dublin, Ireland, Berlin, Moscow, and from there across Siberia to Japan, skirting the Pacific by way of the Aleutian Islands and Alaska. His pilot, Mears stated, will be Henry J. Brown, former mail flyer.

36 OF BYRD'S DOGS TRAIN FOR SECOND TRIP

Washington, D. C., July 12.—(AP)—To insure their speed and "pep" for a possible second expedition to the Antartic by Rear Admiral Byrd, 36 Labrador huskies will be given the first of a series of regular inspections next week by Dr. David E. Buckingham, health guardian of White House dogs.

The huskies are confined on a farm in the Berkshires. They are the pick of the 56 dogs that returned with Byrd. When in good condition, with five dogs to a sled, they can average 90 miles a day.

Supervised diet, plenty of exercise, seclusion from crowds, in fact, a life as near possible to their natural environment has been prescribed by Dr. Buckingham to keep them in proper trim.

Their hair has been left unclipped. Dr. Buckingham explained that nature provides this as a protection against heat as well as cold.

Forty Cases of Paralysis, Seven Deaths in Louisiana

Haynesville, a nearby town, has taken similar action.

WHOLESALE FOOD FALLING FASTER THAN RETAIL CUT

Survey Shows Drop in Living Cost.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Continued downward trends in wholesale food prices, as reported by governmental agencies, during recent weeks, have failed of a corresponding downward trend in local retail prices, a survey here indicates.

With but three minor exceptions, the eleven basic foodstuffs used by economists as an index of food values can be bought in wholesale markets in Chicago at considerably lower prices than a year ago, and in many instances are selling for as little or less than they were prior to the war.

Show Lowered Living Cost.

Significant indications of the lowered cost of living reported in the survey are:

1.—Announcement by the federal commissioner of labor statistics in Washington that purchasing power of the retail and "home" dollar applied to foodstuffs in May was $1.056 compared with $1 in July, 1929, with a drop of 20.8 per cent in the department's average cost of living index in eight years, but a drop of only 5.3 per cent compared with a year ago.

2.—The so-called "sensitive" wholesale index of eleven key foods compiled by Prof. E. L. Rhoades of the University of Chicago in his "New Era of Food Distribution," yesterday showed a value of 13.12 cents compared with 19.30 cents for the same date a year ago. This is a drop of about 32 per cent, compared with only 5.3 per cent in retail prices.

3.—Announcement by leading direct mail chain store officials in Chicago of proposed cuts in fall retail prices as much as 10 per cent, due to ability to purchase at materially lower prices in wholesale markets.

Kegel Favors Milk Cut.

4—Declaration of Dr. Arnold H. Kegel, commissioner of health, that milk in Chicago ought to be selling at a lower price, in view of lowered prices in surrounding cities, and drops in milk prices in at least 16 other large cities.

5—A survey made among members of the Chicago Retail Meat Dealers' association by its secretary, C. W. Kaiser, discloses "the average price obtained for round steaks cut from choice cattle is 40 cents per pound as against 45 cents per pound one year ago, and all other meats proportionately reduced."

6—Sugar and butter, two staple items of diet, have in recent weeks sold at the lowest prices, wholesale, since the war, this saving in some instances being reported as passed along in somewhat less proportion to the consumer.

Poultry Prices Lower.

7.—Poultry prices were said to be fractionally lower than a year ago, although the condemnation of 650,000 pounds of poultry last year by the city health department, and further condemnations made this year were reported by produce officials as having taken the "undesirable" part of the surplus from the Chicago market. Eggs, which have been described by federal reports as in stages of "overproduction" since last October, were selling last week at prices as low as at any time in the last decade, so far as comparison of grades could be made.

"We feel that lowered milk prices in Chicago would be justified, in spite of the recent report of Clyde L. King of Philadelphia, who arbitrated the 1929 milk strike that such was not possible now," stated Dr. Kegel. "Milk all around Chicago, while not as fine in quality as ours, is selling at from 11 to 13 cents a quart."

Dr. Kegel referred to these cities where prices have been reduced from 1 to 7 cents per quart since January: Pittsburgh, Louisville, Detroit, Grand Rapids, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Miami, New York City, Seattle, Des Moines, Dubuque, Iowa City, Akron, O.; Hoboken, N. J.; Oklahoma City, and Burlington, Vt. Prices in cities around Chicago, he said, were from 11 to 13 cents per quart. Chicago's milk sells for 14 cents.

Club Women Consider Prices.

Mrs. Clarence L. Holtzman, 2129 Greenview avenue, chairman of the Chicago Women's club committee on public health, stated she felt it was too bad that with a surplus of dairy products around Chicago the price was held up for the poor and unemployed, and that she might call a meeting of the committee to consider the situation.

Mrs. W. E. Fribley, 2043 East 72nd place, chairman of the Chicago Federation of Women's clubs committee on living costs, declared she had discussed the prices and quality of Chicago's milk at length with Prof. King on his recent survey here, and that she had accepted his judgment that prices were as low as was possible under present standards.

Mrs. Fribley was chairman of a citizens' committee asking Prof. King to arbitrate the strike, although the entire cost of his services were borne by the milk distributors and producers, it was said yesterday. Her committee has made no further study of the situation since over a year ago.

Beef Prices Decline.

Discussing the decline in food prices, Prof. Rhoades declared his studies showed that retail prices in this area, as well as nationally, had not dropped in proportion to wholesale declines. Beef prices just this last month have taken a decided drop, following earlier lower quotations on live beef, he said, while retail outlets had not generallly been able to pass along the savings to consumers.

"The food trade as a whole has taken its losses quicker than any other industry this year," stated Prof. Rhoads. "Unlike the automotive and other trades, where labor costs are reduced immediately in such conditions as confronted the nation last fall, packers, grocers, canners, and other food manufacturers retain their employés, but feel the effect of reduced spending power quickest. Likewise, the food industry will be seen to be the first in recovering from the so-called depression period."

COURT RULES TRUST COMPANY "PARENTS" FOR $13,000,000 HEIR

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—Six months of his life with parents worth $13,000,000. Parents with 16 homes in New York City, one in the Woolworth building, another under construction to be one of the highest buildings in Manhattan. Parents with foreign homes all over the world—in London, in Paris. Parents, yeah, parents, more than 3,000 of them.

Jean Ray can call his father Irv—Irving for Irving Trust. Or he can just say "Papa" to any of the tellers the Irving Trust company employs. They're all guardians of his. Guardians of his "person and property," so ruled the Surrogate's court here when it endowed him with corporate parents after considering the probate of his mother's will.

Jean Ray's mother, Gladys Ray Hooven, the former Gladys Hegan of Chicago, died Feb. 1 at the Chateau de Suresnes, near Paris. Jean's father had been dead many years. His mother's will bequeathed him a trust fund, and named the Irving Trust company executor of the fund as well as the will.

Jean arrived today on the Leviathan and was met by a representative of the 3,000.

SALE OF WHEAT BY FARM BOARD STIRS GROWERS

Legge Promises to Buy Replacements.

Kansas City, Mo., July 12.—(AP)—Sale of what was described as a "moderate quantity" of 1929 wheat to southwestern millers at current prices by the Grain Stabilization corporation, federal farm board agency, was followed today by announcement that an equal amount of new wheat would be purchased in order not to reduce the government's total wheat holdings.

A flurry was caused in grain circles here today when it became known that wheat which the stabilization corporation purchased during the last crop season in an effort to stabilize prices had been sold at a time when the new crop is being marketed.

Gov. Reed Sends Protest.

Gov. Clyde M. Reed of Kansas, upon learning of the transaction, immediately telegraphed protest to Alexander Legge, chairman of the federal farm board, who was at Enid, Okla.

The Kansas executive charged that the stabilization corporation sales "broke the market today," and asked Legge to give "unqualified assurance as to what the future policy of the farm board will be with regard to its holdings of wheat, which in your addresses in Kansas you repeatedly stated would not be sold in competition with the new crop."

Will Replace Stocks Sold.

Later Chairman Legge announced that the wheat, disposed of to the millers under contracts which gave them the privilege to purchase grain stored in their elevators by the stabilization corporation, would be replaced by purchases of new wheat.

Corporation officials said millers who stored the government wheat had been promised it would be moved by July 10. Shipping orders were given this week for the grain unpurchased by the mills under the storage contracts.

The Kansas flour mills of Kansas City yesterday purchased 350,000 bushels of 1929 wheat from the stabilization corporation at a price around 82 cents a bushel as contrasted with the level of $1.15 a bushel at which government funds were loaned on last year's crop.

Manager Urges Replacement.

Legge announced the policy of purchasing new wheat after receipt of a telegram from George Milnor, general manager of the stabilization corporation, whose recommendations were approved by Legge. Milnor's telegram to the farm board chairman said:

"In closing up mill agreements it is necessary to permit them to purchase wheat stored which we are doing. I think it advisable for us to replace wheat thus sold by purchases of exact equal quantity of new wheat which we can easily store and thus avoid reduction of wheat held by us as of July 1. This purchase of new wheat would tend to sweeten up and improve quality of our old stock. Total amount involved 2,264,000 bushels."

The farm board's total wheat holdings as a result of the stabilization corporation purchases of last year's crop have been estimated by Chairman Legge as approximately 60,000,000 bushels.

Capper Appeals to Hoover.

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas who yesterday demanded that the federal farm board purchase 100,000,000 bushels of wheat to stabilize prices will take the demand directly to President Hoover.

Accepting as final the statements of Chairman Legge of the farm board made to Senator Capper here and to the public in Kansas that the board will not undertake any stabilization operations at this time, Senator Capper made clear today that he would go over the heads of the board and place the issue squarely before the chief executive.

Other midwestern senators expressed sympathy with the view of Senator Capper and coupled with this expression a criticism of the recent decision of the interstate commerce commission, which they said had added $12,000,000 to class rates in the middle west.

POLICE HUNT STOLEN LEAD PIPES SOAKED WITH HIGH EXPLOSIVE

Gibbstown, N. J., July 12.—[Special.]—Tons of lead pipe and brass fixtures impregnated with nitro-glycerine during their long use in the E. I. du Pont de Nemours company were stolen here early today by a crew of robbers who virtually dismantled one of the high explosive units of the factory.

The nitro-glycerine accumulated in the pipes and valve would be sufficient, it is said, to demolish four city blocks. Officials of the powder company said a terrific blast would result if the thieves attempted to melt the pipes or if the trucks in which the metal was being transported were wrecked.

Believing that the stolen metal was a serious menace to all towns in this section, scores of policemen were assigned to watch the highways. Every member of the police force in Camden was ordered to report for duty tonight and to search for the truck. Reserves from Philadelphia were posted at the ferries.

Foreign Doctors in China Boost Fees 25 Per Cent

SHANGHAI, July 12.—(AP)—Living costs in China, which have been rising because of the silver price depreciation, took another jump today when all foreign physicians here announced a 25 per cent increase in fees. The doctors said increased expenses necessitated the advance.

Income Taxes Amount to $223,374,833.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—Illinois continued to hold second place among the states in the fiscal year which ended June 30 in the amount of income taxes paid to the federal government. Pennsylvania, which prior to the fiscal year 1929 ranked second, again was in third place.

In total income and miscellaneous taxes Illinois was in third and Pennsylvania in fourth place, North Carolina, with its huge tobacco and cigaret tax payments, ranking second.

New York had top place in the amount of income tax payments and in the total of income and miscellaneous taxes, but continued as in the last few years, since the repeal of most of the wartime excise taxes, to yield first honors in the amount of miscellaneous taxes to North Carolina.

State's Total $247,139,211.

Income taxes paid by Illinois citizens in the fiscal year 1930, recently ended, amounted to $223,374,833.47, a considerable increase over the fiscal year 1929, when the total was $217,401,525.49. Adding $13,764,377.85 in miscellaneous tax payments, the Illinois total contribution in taxes to the federal government in the fiscal year 1930 was $247,139,211.32, compared with $238,227,764.15 in 1928.

New York income taxes totaled $830,085,635.38 in the fiscal year 1930, and its total federal taxes, including miscellaneous taxes, $928,473,305.26.

Michigan 7th in Total Taxes.

North Carolina led the states in miscellaneous taxes with $257,276,180.96, while its total federal taxes amounted to $274,263,218.03.

Michigan ranked fourth among the state in income tax payments, with $127,675,337.71, and seventh in total taxes with $137,076,317.23. California ranked fifth in both income and total taxes. New Jersey was sixth in income taxes, Ohio seventh, and Massachusetts eighth.

Total tax payments by Indiana citizens amounted to $26,298,542.12, of which $23,340,083.54 consisted of income taxes and $2,958,458.72 miscellaneous taxes.

Total tax payments by Wisconsin citizens amounted to $35,512,826.81, of which $34,133,720.67 consisted of income taxes and $1,379,106.14 miscellaneous taxes.

Iowa taxes totaled $13,367,664.86, of which $12,842,980.11 was income taxes and $524,684.75 miscellaneous taxes.

States Pay 15 Per Cent.

The five central states of Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Indiana, and Iowa, with total tax payments of $459,394,562.34, furnished about 15 per cent of the tax revenues of the government, which amounted for the fiscal year to $3,038,498,929.61. The five states had 17.06 per cent of the total population under the 1920 census. New York state, with 9.59 per cent of the population, contributed about 30 per cent of all federal taxes.

The total tax payments from all states represented an increase of nearly $100,000,000 from the $2,939,054,375.43 total of the fiscal year 1929.

Meet Tomorrow

The appointment of Robert Ridgway chief engineer of the transit board of New York, as consulting engineer on Chicago subway construction appeared imminent yesterday. Ald. Joseph B. McDonough [13th], chairman of the council local transportation committee, received a telegram from Ridgway advising that he will be in Chicago tomorrow to consult with McDonough on the proposed arrangement.

The first extension ordinance under the new transit ordinance was completed yesterday and approved by attorneys for the transportation companies. This ordinance and the appointment of Walter L. Fisher as chief counsel for the committee, Ridgway as consulting engineer, and George A. Mason as special counsel on subway special assessments will be considered by the committee at a special session tomorrow.

"The purpose of the extension ordinance," said Ald. McDonough, "is to give the company authority to go ahead. Other ordinances naming specific extensions may be introduced later if it is found necessary to do so."

POLL AMERICAN BAR ASSOCIATION ON PROHIBITION

30,000 Members Asked to Express Views on Vote

A poll of the 30,000 members of the American Bar association for an expression of opinion regarding a vote on the eighteenth amendment is in progress. A letter has been sent to all members by William P. MacCracken Jr., secretary, on the authority of the executive committee. It asks them to decide on the propriety and advisability of a stand by the organization.

Each member has received two ballots. On the first he is asked to determine whether there should be a referendum vote. To avoid delay in carrying out the will of the majority, if the referendum be approved, a second ballot asks that the member vote for enforcement, modification, or repeal of the prohibition amendment. Each ballot is to be returned in a separate envelope.

Polls Close on Oct. 15.

The polls are to close at 5 p. m. on Oct. 15. In the event the majority does not favor a vote the second ballots are to be destroyed. The member is required to send a signature slip with his votes so that the organization can determine that ballots are cast by members in good standing. The signature slips are to be destroyed after identification is made and before the ballots are opened.

"During the last few years," says the letter from Secretary MacCracken, "there has been constant agitation in many quarters for the consideration and debate at an annual meeting, of resolutions concerning national prohibition and a referendum vote of the question of repeal or enforcement of the eighteenth amendment. Heretofore the executive committee had declined to approve either the resolutions proposed or the holding of a referendum, for the reason that while the controversy did present questions of law, it had also become a bitterly contested question of political policy on which the membership of the association is divided.

Explains Reason for Poll.

"It became evident, however, that this question would be brought before the next annual meeting for discussion and that a vote would probably be sought; and it has, therefore, been decided that under all the circumstances it is desirable to secure a better expression of opinion from the membership as to whether or not a referendum on the question should be taken than could be secured from the relatively small numbers of members who participate in an annual meeting.

"It is considered that the action of the association at a meeting where approximately 10 per cent of the membership is present would be an inadequate expression of opinion which would be unfair to the association and subject to challenge—whereas a referendum of the active membership of nearly 30,000 would be subject to no such objection."

A letter signed by fourteen internationally known lawyers was recently sent to the members of the American Bar association, asking for an open expression of views by the bar on the prohibition amendment. This letter was accompanied by an announcement of the national voluntary committee of lawyers, pointing out that six of the leading bar associations of the country have adopted resolutions declaring for unconditional repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

The board of managers of the Chicago Bar association has on three occasions refused to poll its members.

BRITISH AIRMAN ESCAPES JUNGLE; LEAVES DYING PAL

RANGOON, Burma, India, July 12.—(AP)—"Jimmy" Matthews, one of two British airmen lost in Burmese jungles on a flight from England to Australia, has arrived at Prome, Burma. His companion, Eric Hock, had to be left behind in a dying condition.

Hock and Matthews had not been heard from since July 3, when they left Akyrab for Rangoon. On July 7 villagers of Taungup said they had seen a plane flying very low, apparently in difficulties, toward the tiger infested jungle a few miles to the northeast.

Searching parties could not penetrate the jungle owing to high water, it being the season of the monsoon. Airplanes of the royal air force were sent to Prome to make as careful as possible a search from above the point where the plane last was sighted.

CHIANG'S ENEMIES TO SET UP OWN RULE AT PEIPING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PEIPING, July 12.—Believing a northern rebel alliance victory is in sight, leaders of the right and left wings of the Kuomintang today composed their differences and called an executive session of the party at Peiping for tomorrow for the purpose of establishing a new party government here.

The chairmanship was offered to Gen. Yen Hsi-shan, but Yen has telegraphed his refusal, declaring he desired the party leaders to assume all civilian posts while he and Gen. Feng Yuh-siang devote their entire attention to military support. Gen. Yen warned the party that prompt action is necessary, because President Chiang Kai-shek's resignation is expected shortly and the Peiping government must be completed before the crisis.

The 40 Kuomintang leaders, assembled in Peiping, contend all Kuomintang conferences held at Nanking have been illegal, since Gen. Chiang usurped power and appointed his own delegates. Therefore tomorrow's session will be the first legal conference since 1926.

Girl Who Sued M. Costello Charges She Is Blacklisted

Los Angeles, Cal., July 12.—[Special.]—Vivian Sengler ex-scenario writer, who sued Maurice Costello for $100,000, filed an affidavit in Superior court today alleging that she has been blacklisted in the movie industry. The young women's new law papers assert that she must be vindicated, before she can again secure employment either as film writer or actress. Her civil suit against Costello, who said he didn't know the girl, is pending.

KEELEY FIGURES CITED BY WOMEN TO REFUTE DRYS

Increase in Rum Addicts Is Shown.

Quoting figures showing increases in the number of patients at the Keeley institute, sanitarium for liquor and drug addicts at Dwight, Ill., the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform yesterday issued a statement declaring that the statistics gave further proof of the failure of the prohibition amendment.

Mrs. Leslie Wheeler and Mrs. William Mitchell, co-chairmen of the Illinois division of the organization, visited the Keeley institute recently and investigated conditions there.

Increase in Patients Shown.

"We had been led to believe that with prohibition such places would be closed, that there would be no need for them," commented Mrs. Wheeler. "That apparently was a dream. It is time for an awakening."

The two women interviewed Dr. J. H. Oughton, president of the institute. He gave them figures showing the growth of patients from 1919 up to the present.

The statistics showed the number of patients dropped from 320 in 1919 to 186 in the following year, when prohibition went into effect, but that from then on there was a steady growth until the high mark of 784 was reached in 1929.

Expects 1,000 in 1930.

"We are now treating as many cases as we did in the late nineties," Dr. Oughton said. "Despite the financial depression, there has been an increase of about 20 per cent in the first six months of 1930 in the number of patients and I expect that nearly 1,000 patients will be treated in 1930.

"In the last year, we have observed that the average age of patients coming here is declining. Bad liquor affects them at an earlier age."

Gags and Binds Clerk with Tape, Robs Store Till

A collegiate appearing youth last night entered the E. S. Ehman haberdashery shop at 716 Sherman avenue, Evanston, ordered $45 worth of merchandise and when M. W. Casper, the clerk, had wrapped it up, handed him a note. It read:

"Mister: Do as I tell you for I have you covered. Tell me if there is any one else in back. Don't foot around or I'll plug you dead."

Casper hastily walked to the rear where the robber taped his mouth and hands, locked him in a closet, and then looted the till of $54 and left.

NEW YORK CLAIMS IT IS MOST HEALTHFUL AMONG GREAT CITIES

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—The most healthful large city in the world is New York City, according to figures of the health section of the league of nations, made public today by Dr. Shirley W. Wynne, city health commissioners.

New York City for 1929 had a death rate of 11.3 per 1,000. Chicago had during 1929 a death rate of 11.2 per 1,000. The average mortality rate for three years in New York City was 11.3, Chicago having 11.5, London 12.7, Paris, 14.1, and Berlin 11.6 per thousand.

New York City had the lowest infant death rate. Its average for three years ending 1929 was 60 per thousand, while Paris had 94.7 per 1,000, Chicago 62.7 per 1,000, London 63.3 per 1,000, and Berlin 83.3 per 1,000.

The total expenditures of the department of health for the last three years were $6,016,993 in 1927, $6,431,299 in 1928, and $4,760,971 in 1929.

COP DENIES HE SLUGGED YOUTH; STORY REFUTED

A witness before Municipal Judge Francis B. Allegretti yesterday refuted the testimony of Policeman Wellington H. (Two Gun) Britton of the detective bureau, who declared that he had not smashed Walter Sund, 17 year old caddy at the Butterfield Country club in Hinsdale, in the face with his gun. As a result Judge Allegretti ordered the case brought to the attention of Acting Police Commissioner Alcock, who later said he would investigate the charges.

Britton testified that he did not have a gun in his hand when he arrested Sund and that the boy may have been injured by a ring on the detective's finger. Joseph Fishman, 2607 South Chicago avenue, however, said he saw Britton holding a gun. Britton's partner, James Howland, colored, admitted Friday that Britton used a gun in striking Sund.

"The truth was told on Friday," said Judge Allegretti. "Today it is twisted and garbled and built up. This is a case for Acting Commissioner Alcock." Charges can be preferred by Alcock before the police trial board, which has the power to oust Britton from the department.

Watch for the Sign of TOM THUMB!

... but why "pink tooth brush" with my teeth so white and clean?

Of course you're frightened when "pink" shows upon your tooth brush. For "pink tooth brush" warns that your gums have become unhealthily soft, unsound!

Tasty but tender modern food, and the habit of eating too hurriedly have made your gums "touchy", infirm, and opened them to attack from gingivitis, Vincent's disease, or pyorrhea—troubles that threaten even the soundest teeth.

But the threatening "pink" tinge will quickly disappear with the regular use of Ipana Tooth Paste and gum massage!

Bring health to gums with Ipana and massage!

Massage, with brush or fingers, is what dentists prescribe for bleeding gums. And many say "with Ipana". For Ipana is not only delightful to the taste, cleansing to the teeth, but its soft, gritless ingredients are kind and healing to the gums.

For Ipana contains ziratol, a hemostatic and antiseptic employed by the profession in delicate dental operations. When "pink" appears, give your gums the health they need with massage and Ipana! Speed the sluggish flow of blood. Send it coursing through the cells, bringing them new strength, building them back to vigor. The threat of dread diseases will quickly disappear!

Ipana will please you with its taste. It will keep your teeth flashing white—and bring new health and firmness to weak, undernourished gums.

Start tonight with Ipana. Go to your druggist and get a full-size tube today. It's the best dentifrice that money can buy, and that kind of a dentifrice, like that kind of a dentist, is never a luxury.

'MERCY SLAYER' WAITS FOR JURY TO DECIDE FATE

Town Debates Ethics of Killing Daughter.

Walton, N. Y., July 12.—[U.P.]—The age old legal question of whether a father who kills an insane child is a criminal or a humanitarian was debated again in this village tonight as Albert Beers waited calmly for the state to decide how it would punish him for driving an ice pick into the head of his daughter, Frances.

The enfeebled man was in jail, where he must await the action of the October grand jury. Meanwhile, partisans of Beers bandied the phrase, "Mercy murder" against the few persons who insisted the 75 year old man should go the way of all men who confess to committing murder. Beers' friends are telling tonight of how Frances had been insane from birth; how Beers and his wife, who died a year ago, nursed the girl until she was 27 years old.

Gave Her Poison Twice.

It was about a year ago, they said, that Beers became disconsolate. His wife was dead; he was growing more feeble, and he felt the day was not far distant when he, too, would die, leaving Frances to face a world which her twisted mind would not allow her to understand. This brooding brought him to the brink of desperation and the result was that he gave the girl poison. Somehow it failed to kill her. Beers gave her other poison and she survived that. Then something snapped in his mind, he said, and on Wednesday night he poised an ice pick above the girl's head, and hammered it through her skull.

Felt "Impulse to Kill."

"I felt an irresistible impulse to kill," he said. "I should have killed myself, too. She suffered so much I could not bear to think of her going on living when I was gone. I thought strangers could not care for her as I did. She was like a child."

Beers' fingers tugged at his shock of white hair as he talked, and tears coursed across his wind-burned cheeks. cheeks.

Tonight residents of the village employed Arthur F. Curtis as counsel for Beers. He promptly applied to District Attorney Robert Craft for permission to seek the appointment of a sanity commission to examine Beers.

FIREMAN GIVEN HERO PRIZE FOR CATCHING BANDIT

Knocks Out Robber in Hand to Hand Fight.

Fighting fires is the routine business of Fireman Theodore Czerwionka of engine company No. 78, but on occasions he can use his fists to good advantage. An occasion arose on the evening of June 24 and the fireman exchanged a few clouts with an armed bandit who had invaded a neighbor's house. Czerwionka won the impromptu bout by a knockout and held his opponent until the police arrived.

The Tribune has awarded Fireman Czerwionka the hero prize of $100 for June in recognition of the courage he displayed in risking his life to protect his neighbors and capture the armed bandit. The fireman had been informed that the bandit had a revolver, but that information did not deter him.

One Bandit Is Wounded.

Czerwionka was mowing his lawn when the events just preceding his contact with the holdup man occurred. Three bandits had robbed the proprietor of a drug store at Winnemac and Lincoln avenues of $125 and in the shooting that attended their flight one of them, Raymond Schubert, wounded slightly in the leg, was left behind.

In attempting a getaway Schubert fled past Czerwionka, who was standing at the side of his home at 2541 Carmen avenue, and into the Zelasko home nearby. The fireman gave little attention to Schubert until his son approached and asked him if he had seen the bandit. Czerwionka said he had not seen a bandit and his son replied, "That's too bad; you could have caught him. He just robbed the drug store."

In the meantime Mrs. Zelasko was ordering Schubert from her house. One of the Zelasko children ran to Czerwionka and told him what was happening. He entered the house and told the bandit he would have to stay there until the police patrol wagon arrived.

Delivers Knockout Blow.

"Is that so?" queried Schubert and reached for his gun, the butt of which was sticking from his hip pocket. "You aren't so tough."

The words had hardly been spoken when Czedwionka landed a tremendous punch on the bandit's chin, flooring him. The revolver dropped to the floor. The two tussled out onto the rear porch where a final blow sent the bandit flying down the stairs unconscious. Czerwionka revived Schubert and turned him over to the Summerdale police.

Given Honorable Mention.

Czerwionka, who is 41 years old, has been a member of the fire department for nearly sixteen years. He is married and has six children. He is to be given honorable mention in the general orders of the department for his deed on the recommendation of Division Marshal John P. Stahl.

The action in the Czerwionka affair was paralleled in some respects by Sergt. Francis Corcoran of the Gresham police station in the arrest of an armed and intoxicated man. Corcoran was called to a home where the drunken man was threatening members of a family. The man pointed his gun as the policeman entered a room and Corcoran lunged and succeeded in wresting the gun from him.

In a spectacular gun fight with two men, Policeman Lee A. Davis of the Robey street station wounded and captured one of them. As Davis emerged from the home of a friend the two men got out of Davis' car and started walking down the street. Davis halted and searched them and with a companion started toward a police box to call the patrol wagon.

Before they reached the box the men under arrest pulled guns from armpit holsters and began to shoot at the policeman. Davis was hampered in firing by a crowd in the background, but succeeded in routing the gunmen. He wounded one of them and placed him under arrest.

FOUND DEAD OF HEART DISEASE.

Mrs. Tony Juliano, 45 years old, 1152 West Taylor street, was found dead from heart disease in her bed yesterday by her husband. Her daughter, Lena, 11 years old, was killed by an automobile a week ago.

'A. P.' VICTORIOUS IN NEWSPAPER STRIKE IN MEXICO

Court Orders Union Flag Torn Down.

BY JOHN CORNYN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, July 12.—For three months the red and black flag of the Syndicate of Editors and Employés of the Press has draped over the door of the Associated Press in the El Universal building here, but the labor arbitration court decided today that the flag must come down. If the union does not take it down, the police will. The decision rendered by the court is a complete victory for the Associated Press.

It is the first time in the history of labor and capital in Mexico in which capital has won a sweeping victory over what are termed the exaggerated demands of labor.

Claimed Back Salaries.

The striking employés of the Associated Press, Angel Alcantara, Luis Bustamante and George Godoy, claimed back salaries of three months each and a total of $12,500 for alleged days of rest, which they said were not allowed. Behind the move was the strikers' attempt to force the Associated Press to reinstate them, it was alleged.

The court decided the Associated Press had complied with the provisions of the law, when it offered to pay the strikers three months' salary each. Mr. Bustamante and Mr. Alcantara were allowed three months' salaries. Mr. Godoy was refused his salary because the court held he was not an employé of the Associated Press at any time, but of Mr. Alcantara, who "farmed out" to Mr. Godoy translations for papers taking the Associated Press service.

Union Ordered Editors Out.

When the strike broke against the Associated Press three months ago, the union ordered editors and assistants on the English sections of Excelsior and El Universal to quit, and Mexico City was without telegraphic news for a week. The union issued an order that no member of the union should under any consideration speak to John Lloyd, head of the Associated Press here.

Mr. Alcantara threatened to have members of the foreign press called before the union to explain why they sent out a story of the strike mentioning the name of Mr. Alcantara as correspondent for the Chicago Daily News. The names of certain foreign correspondents were ordered boycotted in Mexico City papers, especially in the English sections of El Universal and Excelsior.

GIRL CASHIER ROBBED.

Seize Mother as 'Treasurer' for Young Bandit Gang

Mrs. Frances Fargenus, 38 years old, said by police to be the treasurer for a group of young bandits, two of whom are her sons, was arrested yesterday in a raid on her apartment at 2716 West 22d street by Sergts. John Collopy and Walter Skolny. Sebastian, 18 years old, and Walter, 19 years old, the sons, Joseph Pulka, 19 years old, 2250 South California avenue; Walter Skrzahet, 22 years old, and James Salusky, 18 years old, were also arrested. Stolen firearms valued at $430 and gasoline coupons worth $300 were found in the place.

BOY DIES UNDER CART'S WHEELS.

Paris, Ill., July 12.—[U.P.]—Chester Minard, 15, Watseka, Ill., was instantly killed when he fell beneath the wheels of a cart on which he was riding near Westfield. The cart, being towed by a truck, passed over his chest and abdomen.

MOSLEMS LOOT HOMES OF HINDUS IN BENGAL RIOT

Armed Police Rush to the Scene of Disorders.

MYMENSINGH, Bengal, India, July 12.—(AP)—A serious riot between Hindus and Moslems broke out today in the Koshoreganj subdivision of this district.

Moslems looted a number of houses belonging to Hindus. The district police officer was injured in attempting to check them. A large body of armed police was immediately sent to quell the rioters.

"India Hurts Itself"—MacDonald.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 12.—Prime Minister MacDonald tonight declared that India was hurting its own chance of rapidly reaching a dominion or any other status in a speech before members of the National and London Labor parties.

"The men, whom we wished to cooperate with us, have been arrested for actions, which, if they were responsible for a purely Indian government, would have compelled them to arrest those responsible for these conditions," Mr. MacDonald said.

"My comment is that this whole melancholy thing is unnecessary and foolish. The men, who are going to be governors of Indian states are the men who ought to be responsible for the government's administration and ought to look ahead. They ought to understand the conditions under which evolutionary changes are possible. Moreover they are inflicting misery on thousands of others. What we want is a mutual understanding of confidence, so that the peace and honor of both India and Great Britain may be secured."

500 Hurt in Bombay Riot.

BOMBAY, India, July 12.—(AP)—Estimates today were that more than 500 persons were injured in the police suppression of yesterday's nationalist demonstrators, staged by the All-India congress committee in sympathy for 17 members of the Royal Gharwal rifles who were imprisoned for disobeying orders during the Peshawar riots.

Thirty of the injured were on the danger list while 150 were confined to hospitals.

Mr. Modi, president of the Bombay congress committee, who was among the injured, was sentenced to four months rigorous imprisonment for disobeying the police order prohibiting processions today.

Slash Round Table Expenses.

SIMLA, India, July 12.—(AP)—The government was defeated in the legislative assembly today by 60 to 48 on a nationalist amendment reducing by 100 rupees [about $35] the supplementary grant to delegates to cover expenses of the forthcoming round table conference.

Sir George Rainey, leader of the house, said that although the vote might be interpreted as a general disapproval of the Simon commission report, it would not absolve the members of the Indian delegation to the conference from studying the Simon report in detail. The remainder of the grant was voted without division.

LONDON GAPES AT STOP-GO LIGHTS; JAMS TRAFFIC

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 12.—Introduction of London's first electric traffic signals at Ludgate circus and Fleet street this morning caused the worst traffic jam the busy crossing has ever seen. Thousands of employés, returning home at noon, appeared to be fascinated by the red, amber and green lights, and crowded the sidewalks so densely that pedestrian traffic was obliged to come to a standstill while the mob watched the flashing stop and go signals.

Auto drivers, on the other hand, were confused by the new system and repeatedly blocked the road by trying to turn corners when they should have been standing still and standing still when they should have been moving.

A dozen sweating cops attempted to straighten out the tangle and keep the vast streams of buses, trucks, taxis and horse drawn vehicles moving, while a patrolman stood on a miniature platform manipulating the lights. After a strenuous day, the traffic cops admitted that the signals hindered more than helped the problem.

The stop and go lights, which are the same as those generally used in all large American cities, proved the biggest curiosity London has seen for a long time and the evening newspapers were filled with photgraphs and stories telling how the new "toy" works. If the experiment at Ludgate circus proves a success, it is likely the lights will be installed at all principal crossings.

MAN LAW FORGOT TO EXECUTE STILL WAITING IN CELL

Trenton, N. J., July 12.—(AP)—Seventy-one year old Archibald Herron has been waiting since 1908 to attend an execution that will never take place. He doesn't mind. It's his own.

Twenty-two years ago this month Herron was sentenced to be electrocuted for killing the Rev. Samuel B. D. Prickett. Both writs and reprieves and one thing and another kept delaying the execution. Herron tried to be patient.

Finally a Supreme court justice postponed the event until "further order." He died in 1923 without issuing the order.

So Herron has stayed on and on in his cell, awaiting a natural death. He has had but two visitors in 12 years.

SEIZED ON FRAUD CHARGE.

Charged with operating a confidence game in connec tion with an alleged fake truck cartage depot scheme, Thomas J. Lane, 54 years old, 817 North Dearborn street, was arrested yesterday.

GERMAN FINANCE CHIEF'S TAXATION PLANS ATTACKED

BERLIN, July 12.—(AP)—Germany's financial program, as set forth by Dr. Hermann Dietrich, minister of finance, today encountered rough going in the reichstag's taxation committee. After a solitary clause assessing civil employés a new rate of income tax had been passed on Thursday, the rest of the program, including the proposed taxes on bachelors and bachelor girls, met such strong opposition that Dr. Dietrich this afternoon declared it useless to proceed with a second reading in committee.

The final tug of war still is to come in the reichstag, where, in view of Minister Dietrich's determination to force his program through, it still is possible that a bare majority may be found to avoid dissolution and new elections.

The revised financial program, which had the backing of Chancellor Bruening and provided a tax of about $25,000,000 on bachelors and spinsters, was put forward on June 28. The remainder of the government deficit was to be made up by cutting off 100,000,000 marks of expenditures by laying a special tax on government employés, and another on all persons whose incomes run above 8,000 marks a year.

RUPTURE

Don't submit to avoidable operations or the use of antiquated trusses, as they all set where the lump is and not where the opening is. "Simply can't get to sleep"

NIGHT NERVES

cost thousands of people hours of needed sleep every night

HOW many times have you felt this way? "Simply can't get to sleep!" You awake in a cross, irritable mood—often feel pepless all day long.

This is the penalty of "Night Nerves"—that restless state that keeps you awake far into the night when you should be getting your most valuable hours of natural, health-building sleep.

Fortunately the cause of "Night Nerves" is one that may be gotten rid of quickly.

In most cases it is caused by no more than a poorly made, wrongly designed mattress. You know the kind—lumpy, sagging, often very uneven, and either too hard or too soft.

"COBWEB" Spring Construction

With the advent of the new Vanity Fair Inner-spring Mattress you are offered a means of positive relief. Our engineers have made a really scientific investigation to find the right method of spring support for sound sleep.

You are buoyed up the moment you lie upon it. Every limb, every muscle relaxes naturally.

This new "COBWEB" construction adjusts itself to your individual weight—provides an utterly new kind of gentle but firm support.

Restful sleep follows quickly and naturally. You awake refreshed, eager and ready for the new day with that sensation of well-being that only a good night's sleep can bring!

Vanity Fair is from 15 to 20 pounds lighter in weight than the old-type inner-spring mattress. Any woman can turn it easily.

The new "COBWEB" construction provides far greater strength, too! Laboratory tests equal to many years of normal wear, show it to be 50% stronger—more durable.

Smart New Style

One of the country's foremost designers created a special fabric covering for Vanity Fair. You may have it in Beige, Jade Green, or Orchid shades, exquisitely finished and decorated.

Vanity Fair's fine needlework will delight you. Smartly taped, perfect roll edge. Sides are "biscuit-quilted."

Special Air Windows for perfect ventilation.

The cost of Vanity Fair is amazingly low—only $35.75. Go to any of these stores. Ask for it by name. Sit on it. Lie on it. Inspect it as carefully as you wish. If you are not delighted with the super value it offers, you will not be asked to buy.

The Burton perfect sleeping units, mattresses, box springs, and pillows, are designed to go "hand in glove" with each other for comfort and beauty. Together they are the smart bedroom ensemble.

Heating response is direct—positive and unfailing. Minutes chase the thermometer from cold to the zone of comfort. Forced firing is never necessary. The Holland is a simple, compact and trouble-free system that burns any type or grade of fuel including oil or gas, and saves 10% to 30% in operating costs. It requires a minimum of attention—only three minutes morning and night when coal is used.

Every Holland is made to order for the home it serves and installed by experts under the direction of factory-trained engineers. Comfort is guaranteed by a written bond without parallel in the entire heating industry.

Live in Health Manor on the street where doctors seldom call. Have autumn in your living room when it's sweltering outside. Enjoy springtime indoors when the weatherman says, "zero". Get the satisfaction of a heating system that's always on the job.

THE STATES IN THE UNION.

The Kansas Supreme court has upheld the state Sunday observance law, the particular question being whether the sale of moving picture theater tickets came under the prohibitions. The court held that it did, and also ruled that the statute as it prohibits all unnecessary work on Sunday was valid and not a violation of the right of religious freedom.

Sunday observances are treated by a great variety of law throughout the country. Some of the regulations are ancient and for the most part ignored. Others are alive and enforced. There is not much attempt at uniformity. In many states local option governs, and the observance varies from town to town. Even when there is a state law the enforcement may make a difference in different regions. There is the greatest diversity in what is regarded as permissible or prohibited in recreations and amusements. Sports will be allowed where theaters are closed. There is no uniformity of religious opinion or requirement. Some churches allow their communicants and grant all others any recreation or occupation within general laws of conduct. Other churches would require devotional conduct from everybody during the day.

The question is one which engages some of the deepest sentiment in the country and causes not only varieties of conduct but conflict of opinion. It has from the early days when Washington, traveling in New England, was provoked by the restrictions he found in Connecticut, but it has found its best solution in local treatment. That has permitted the opinion of the locality to govern the behavior. The habits of one section may be offensive to the ideas of another, and minorities may suffer from the dictates of majorities, but experience reveals it as the best way of treating questions in which habits, customs, and wishes vary with the character of the people and the locality.

Many people think the Kansas law an unwise and unfair one. The Kansas Supreme court says it does not impair religious liberty. It puts a penalty upon certain religious beliefs. If the legal Sunday is not the day of worship in a faith, as it is not in the Jewish, an orthodox believer in the old religion must take a property loss because his faith is different from that prevailing in legislation. It is sectarian law using secular authority for religious observance in which there is no general agreement, but for which there is a political majority. It may be that some day a state will run head on into the federal constitution in telling citizens what they may do with their property and find a United States Supreme court so constituted as to say that a citizen cannot be deprived of property rights for conduct not in itself improper and not injurious to the lawful interests of the community.

Meanwhile, it is apparent that safety lies in the fact that no attempt to enforce national uniformity in a Sunday code has been successful. The attempts have been made persistently in Washington by such organizations as the Lord's Day alliance. The object is undoubtedly thought to be good by still other organizations, the leaders of which have not thought it expedient to try for legislation. The adoption of national prohibition gave great encouragement to influences seeking national conformity along many lines. The acceptance of the eighteenth amendment was taken to indicate that the federal government was free to extend its activities in all directions, standardizing education, establishing uniformity in divorce, taking over public health, supervising morality, making general rules of conduct, regulating elections, and administering local government.

It is typical of liberalism on the one side and of repression on the other that the one does not seek to impose conduct and the other always does. In one form there is individual freedom, and in the other compulsion. When repression seeks national conformity it is putting compulsion in its widest and worst form.

When the various states are permitted their full play there is workable and practical government procedure. The people are accustomed to it, and they make the least of its defects and the most of its values. They can get along adjusting themselves to majority rule with little friction and a minimum of conflict. Kansas having its own way with its Sabbatarian laws does not disturb the nation, but Kansas having its way all over the country with what it thinks is a virtue in the Volstead act is making the greatest disturbance the nation knows.

The fundamental evil of the eighteenth amendment is becoming self-evident. The worth of state sovereignty in local government is becoming correspondingly apparent.

THE TARIFF AS WHIPPING BOY.

Recent compilations of the trend of international trade throw light on the protests by foreign countries against the new American tariff. We undertake no defense of the new schedules; but we believe it is only fair to point out that before our tariff act was passed the foreign trade of this country had fallen off far more sharply than that of many of the countries which protested loudest. If a decline in trade is to be explained wholly or largely on the basis of excessive tariffs, then our country had more reason to complain of the tariffs excluding our goods from the world's markets than foreign countries today have to complain about our exclusion of their goods today.

American exports in the five months including May, 1930, showed a decrease of 20 per cent under the exports of the corresponding period a year ago. In contrast, German exports were down only 3 per cent; British exports, 16 per cent; French, 5 per cent; Dutch, 4 per cent; Italian, 11 per cent; Swiss, 7 per cent; Austrian, 3 per cent; Czecho-Slovakian, 5 per cent. The Scandinavian countries generally showed a slight increase in export trade over a year ago.

A cry has gone up around the world that the new tariff has cut off the American market of foreign producers. Possibly so; but the fact is that American imports in the first five months of this year were off 23 per cent and the new tariff had not been enacted then. If the new tariff had any effect at all on imports in those months it was as a stimulant to escape the expected higher duties. The fact is that business depression had reduced the purchasing power of the American market and in consequence our purchases abroad had fallen off. Unless business conditions improve, our imports will fall off still farther and it would be absurd to blame the tariff for any considerable share in the loss.

The countries whose foreign trade has suffered most are the countries which produce raw materials, many of which are admitted duty free to the United States. Canadian exports as a whole were down 23 per cent before the new act was passed; Australian, 17 per cent; Argentine, 33 per cent. American imports from Europe were down only 15 per cent in contrast to a reduction of 37 per cent in imports from South America, 22 per cent from Africa, 27 per cent from Oceania, 24 per cent from Asia, and 21 per cent from North America. European manufacturing countries were relatively well off under our former tariff and their status has not been greatly changed under the new one.

Before too much attention is paid to foreign protests against our protective wall, we think some attention might be given the protective policies of foreign countries. We should like to see an analysis of restrictions in Europe on the sale of such typical American products as wheat, automobiles and movie films before confessing that the American tariff is peculiarly offensive to the spirit of international brotherhood.

The truth of the matter is that Europe has never outgrown the notion that the United States is Europe's colony and owes Europe a living. Any American policy which assumes that America is for Americans is going to annoy Europeans and arouse their protests. Their present protests against our tariff seem to be reënforced by a decline in foreign trade, but as a matter of fact the decline has little relation to the tariff, past or present, and is explained almost entirely upon the ground that business is slow in the United States and the world over.

BASICALLY.

Some days ago we used the phrase "basically sound" in these columns. A reader has requested us to define "basically." He says it is not in his dictionary and he wants to know what it means. A hunt through half a dozen dictionaries reveals the startling—to us, at any rate—fact that "basically" is a word unknown to lexicographers, both English and American. Apparently they have never heard it or seen it. They don't include it, even, among the colloquialisms.

"Basically" is not a new word. We venture to say it has been used by journeyman writers and speakers for generations. As words go, it is not particularly useful. It seems to be almost identical in meaning with "fundamentally," but that, in itself, is not anything against it. A great many words in good standing are almost exactly synonymous with others.

We suspect that the lexicographers object to "basically" because there is no adjective "basical" from which it could be derived according to rule. Nevertheless, the word exists; and if the dictionaries leave it out the fact reflects no credit upon the pedants who compile them.

Editorial of the Day

THE GALAPAGOS ISLANDS.

[St. Louis Post-Dispatch.]

Gifford Pinchot, who recently explored the Galapagos islands, is urging they be acquired by the United States as a wild life refuge. THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE commends the idea, adding that, aside from their enormous interest to biologists, the islands could be used as a meteorological station and as a casual refuge for ships of war and peace. C. F. Kettering of General Motors and E. F. McDonald Jr. of Zenith Radio suggest a group of wealthy men might consider buying the islands from Ecuador and giving them to the nation.

Lying 500 miles off the coast of Ecuador, in the Pacific, the Galapagos archipelago has been so little frequented by man that its birds and animals will approach travelers fearlessly. It is said the only wild beasts there are dogs, cats, pigs, goats and donkeys which have been deserted on the islands by passing ships. The archipelago abounds in forms of life not found anywhere else; giant tortoises, flightless cormorants, curious varieties of finch, dwarf penguins and two types of iguana-like lizard showing many primitive characteristics. In a collection of 52 species of moth brought back by a recent expedition half were new to science.

Gov. Pinchot's description of the Galapagos, infused with that infectious enthusiasm for which he is famous, is arousing tremendous popular interest. But the islands have long been known to biologists, who consider them one of the most valuable reservoirs of scientific information in a world rapidly capitulating to the machine age and destruction of wild life. Charles Darwin, on the epoch-making voyage of the Beagle, visited the islands and found of particular usefulness for his "Origin of the Species" the Galapagos finches.

Surely this is a paradise which should be preserved unspoiled, and all lovers of nature, as well as all biologists, should lend their aid to Gov. Pinchot's proposal. If private funds are not forthcoming for the purpose, the purchase of the islands would be a splendid investment for the government.

AMERICAN HEROES

DANIEL BOONE

A Brief Review of His Contribution to Our Country.

(The articles of which the following is the eighth are intended as five minute sketches of early Americans of particular achievement and distinction, each flashed briefly against the background of the times and conditions in which the subject made his contribution to the nation. Their names may be well or may be little known now to the generation which has inherited the benefits of wise, laborious, and, in many instances, heroic work.)

(Picture in Rotogravure Section.)

BRADDOCK'S push into western Pennsylvania in 1755 was the beginning of a great march. Its immediate military outcome was the small part of it. It was the first use of a British regular army in American affairs. It brought in other armies, expense bills, taxes, and revolution. It built the first road over the mountains into the west and laid out plans for another. It involved great deals in real estate in which acreage had imperial dimensions. It drew in nearly all the men of affairs, promise, and future achievement in the middle area of the country. It organized the drive of the English speaking people into the interior and unleashed it against all holders, French, Spanish, and Indian.

The defeat at the moment was hideous, but it was only a check. The drive did not stop. It gathered strength and thrust again, changed flags, and plunged forward. Its stride lengthened until it reached the Pacific. Then it paused, poised, and leaped over seas to Hawaii, Samoa, the Philippines. Gen. Braddock, the red coated, red faced, perplexed but courageous soldier, was the first spearhead.

In his wagon train as a young teamster was Daniel Boone. An older one was John Findlay. They talked at campfires on the slow march made by the red ribbon behind the axmen cutting a road over the Alleghenies. Findlay was a restless, roving man. He had been south of the Ohio and west of the mountains. He had been in Kentucky. Kentucky was a land of incredible wonders and occult charm. No Indian tribes or confederations ever had made permanent homes there. It was an Eden which might be entered but not retained. It was too glorious and too dangerous for possession.

For geological ages it had been a feeding ground for game. At the salt licks the first white comers found the bones of prehistoric animals at which they gazed in startled wonder and of which they had no scientific comprehension. There were tusks and teeth and thigh bones of mammoth mammals which were sent east to interest Dr. Franklin and to London for museums. Soil and game made the region a land of miracles to tempt the frontiersman to risk its perils.

In early America, colonial, revolutionary, or republican, land was wealth. Precious metals had not been found. Industrialism had not started. Fortunes were in land and were sought there.

The average man, however, did not strike out into the wilderness on his own in the first incursion into it. He was preceded by adventurers, by curious men temperamentally fitted for the solitudes and dangers, agents of land companies, religious enthusiasts, traders, generally not of the purest strain of character, soldiers, and Indian commissioners. This first contact gave the frontier such men as George Croghan, Christopher Gist, Conrad Weiser, Christian Frederick Post, George Rogers Clark, and Daniel Boone, the beau ideal of the wilderness scout. He became a familiar of the forest and mountain, a natural of the woods. As such he was the man for one of the adventures so natural to the American genius that it is a wonder it is not now on the map as an accomplished fact—the state of Transylvania.

In 1775 Richard Henderson of North Carolina undertook the formation of a new commonwealth, to be erected in Kentucky with titles based on purchase from the Indian possessors. His enthusiasm was great. His difficulties were greater. The Cherokee chiefs themselves did not pretend to be offering title to much but trouble. The purchase treaty was signed at Sycamore Shoals on the Watauga river near the present Elizabethton, Tenn., the Watauga Old Fields, where North Carolina pioneers, escaping from colonial misgovernment, had set up a compact government. [The historic spots are well marked.]

Boone was retained by Henderson to find and blaze a trail which could be used by the Transylvania settlers in moving their goods from the Clinch, Watauga, Holston, Nolichucky, and other river valleys. The scout selected the east side of the Cumberland escarpment. The motorist today follows its general direction from Bristol, through Gate City, Pennington Gap, Ewing, and Gibson Station to the saddleback of Cumberland Gap, one of the most famous mountain gateways. When the gap has been taken the trail is soon out of the mountains, although the blue grass is miles away. [The dangers of this trail blazing were ever present. Kentucky was not secure from Indian attack for years later. In 1776 Boone's daughter and two girl friends were taken in a raid. Boone followed the enemy so quickly and stealthily that he could surprise the camp the next morning. Two years later he himself was seized and taken to Detroit. He was able to escape and return home in time to defend the settlement against an attack he knew was impending. He lost a brother and later a son—the second in such fights—in the recurrent struggles for this rich domain which the thin frontier line of whites held.]

When Boone had blazed the trail the settlement site was chosen on the Kentucky river and called Boonesborough, southeast of Lexington. This was April 1, 1775. Eighteen days later, in Massachusetts John Parker's perplexed company was fired on by Maj. Pitcairn's soldiers on the way to Concord. Hence Lexington, Ky. There is no remnant of Boonesborough except the name and a lovely spot on the river with a ferry. Harrodsburg, the rival settlement to the west—an enterprise entering by the easy but not less dangerous route of the Ohio—has its preserved memorials, but Boone lives only in plaques and trail markers.

Transylvania was founded on pluck and error. Individuals and associations were not permitted to acquire titles from the native owners. That was a business of state sovereignty when it passed from the crown. Henderson, an empire builder, was a North Carolinian on a Virginia territorial claim with invalid titles from Indians who had no authority to sell, passing to a company which had no sanction to buy. The state of Transylvania, laid out between the Kentucky and Cumberland rivers, died a-bornin', Henderson being handsomely compensated in land by Virginia for the failure of his enterprise.

Boone did not come out so well. His titles were defective. He had a frontiersman's disregard for the law of ordered society. His law had been that of the rifle, the ax, and his own skill. Like other pioneers, he neglected to prove up when it required the perfecting of court records, and like many another old hero of the frontier his old age found him precariously facing the odd ends of his life. His only portrait was painted by Chester Harding in 1820 and it was hung in the statehouse at Frankfort. He lived to be 88 years old, dying in 1822, respected for a life of naïve honesty, modesty, and integrity roseated in a legend of courage, marvelous woodcraft, and native instincts which matched the genius of the Indian in the stealth and stratagem of the woods.

He was another spearhead of the push west. His grave is on a splendid knoll of the hills of the Kentucky at Frankfort. The old trail maker is at rest in the opulence of the country he marked out for settlement.

GETTING A GOOD TAN.

COMING along the street we passed two men making for the beach. They were planning to take a sun bath, and possibly to swim, and they wore just enough clothing to get by the cops. So much of their skin as could be seen was tanned to a dark brown. Doubtless these men were of the opinion that they had added years to their lives and their health thereafter would be doctorproof.

I have been giving this matter some thought for several years, as well as watching the experimentation being done in laboratories and reading the literature found in libraries. The conclusion I have come to is that for a well man to expose himself to direct sunlight to an extreme extent in summer, does him no good. In some respects it harms him or may do so.

A thoroughly tanned skin will never get back to prize winning condition. No woman ever tanned her skin to a mahogany brown, and later became noted for a peachblow complexion. The only way such a woman ever gets a fine complexion is by purchase. Tanned skins are somewhat prone to develop skin cancer.

Sunlight acts on certain sterol bodies in and near the skin, producing new chemical compounds. These compounds help to combat pneumonia, colds, and consumption. So far, their action is all to the good. But sunlight is a powerful medicine, and powerful are the compounds it forms with the sterol bodies—powerful for good and powerful for harm. We need these compounds to prevent and cure rickets, to stabilize the nerves, and to help resistance against colds, pneumonia, and consumption. But adults do not need help against rickets. In winter they need more sunlight than they can get in order to protect themselves against colds and pneumonias. But we are talking about summer now, and in that season sunlight is in excess. This story has to do only with well adults in the summer season.

The senile process—the process of growing old—is abetted by sunlight, at least in plants. Maybe these tanned men and women are inviting premature senility.

HAVE THE BOY EXAMINED.

MOTHER writes: You stated that lack of enthusiasm, energy and pep is a sign of low blood pressure. Would that apply to a boy of 15 years who for the last few years acts very indifferently and automatically? He cannot be induced to take an interest in reading or athletics. He has developed a dislike for food regardless of what or where we may have our meals. I do not give him tea or coffee and he finds fault with milk, vegetables, and chicken. Would lounge around until all hours in the morning if allowed, although he is in bed at ten o'clock every evening in a well ventilated room. What is the cause? The cure?

REPLY.

Low blood pressure is not the only cause of the symptoms you mention. Have the boy's blood pressure taken; also have him examined for dementia precox, feeblemindedness, faulty hearing, poor vision, anemia, organic disease, and some other things. Or maybe he needs discipline.

ENLARGEMENT OF HEART.

E. F. writes: Is enlargement of the heart serious? Is it caused by touble, shock, fast walking, etc.? Can it be cured by simple remedies and rest?

REPLY.

Enlargement of the heart may or may not be a serious matter. Much depends on the cause. The large heart sometimes found in athletes engaged in major competitions is not a very serious matter if intelligently handled. It calls for nothing more than proper regulation of work and play for a term of years.

That due to certain types of organic heart disease may be very serious. If a person discovers that he has an enlarged heart he should go further and find the cause. What course he should pursue depends on the cause. Regulated work and rest is more important than medicine in the care of an enlarged heart.

COLLECTING FROM A BANKRUPT.

Chicago, July 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I sold an automobile, receiving a small down payment and promise to pay the balance within the week. Part of the balance was paid, but as for the rest the buyer said he had no money. Then he left town, taking the car with him. He has returned and is starting bankruptcy proceedings. He knew at the time he bought the car that he was going bankrupt. Can I take the car back inasmuch as the full amount has not been paid up to this time? R. O.

Much depends on how much time has elapsed. Your chances would seem good enough to warrant placing your claim in the hands of a lawyer.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

THIS WILL HELP A BIT.

Chicago, July 2.—[Friend of the People.]—There is a break in the pavement on 55th street at Crawford avenue. Could this street be made passable? It is the ruination of a car to attempt to cross this intersection. There are holes 2 and 3 feet deep. Surely, there must be some means of remedying a situation like this now that the 1928 taxes are being collected. If they intend to wait until Crawford avenue is paved before fixing that patch we will all be old men at the rate things are progressing.

M. J. H.

Report is made that Crawford avenue is an unimproved thoroughfare and intersection is unpaved. Ash filling has been placed here, making a passable roadway. Crawford avenue should be paved by special assessment. When this is done intersection will be paved at that time.

JOSEPH J. BUTLER,
Superintendent of Streets.

LIGHT OUT AT 1 A. M.

Chicago, July 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Our landlord turns out the hall light at 1 a. m. Can he be compelled to keep the lights on all night? If so, whom should one notify to compel him to do so? G. S.

In 283 Ill. 271, 273, the Supreme court held an ordinance requiring light invalid on the ground that the city has only delegated powers which do not include this subject matter. It is the general rule that in absence of such an ordinance or statute the landlord is under no legal obligation to furnish light. 36 C. J. 26 and 214.]

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 13, 1865.

DETROIT.—The great commercial convention which started off in such an outrageous manner by giving one vote to each association represented changed its tactics after the Chicago delegation threatened to withdraw and fixed the voting strength of each state on the basis of the state's votes in the electoral college.

WASHINGTON.—Presco S. Wright has been appointed postmaster at Springfield, Ill.

CHICAGO.—The lake tunnel is now finished to more than 3,100 feet from the shore shaft, a little more than two-sevenths of the distance it will be dug. Work is progressing at the rate of 17 feet a day. It probably will be two weeks yet before the crib is launched.

EDITORIAL.—We are not among those who believe that, next to the rule of Jeff Davis, a military government for the disorganized states of the south would be the worst possible calamity. We admit that a military government, maintained without an imperative necessity, would be a calamity wherever set up; but we have yet to learn that the south has arrived at that state of political beatitude which will enable her to go peaceably on without any suggestions from the bayonet.

CHICAGO.—The Washingtonian home in its new building near the old "Bull's Head Tavern" on West Madison street was formally inaugurated at a meeting of friends and supporters. President Charles J. Hull was in the chair. Dr. N. S. Davis told of the need of such an institution in the saving of the intemperate.

CHICAGO.—Theodore W. Kennedy and Miss Lizzie Stewart were married on June 11 by the Rev. Edmund B. Tuttle. James McKindley and Miss Gertrude Beall were married at the home of the bride's mother in Hyde Park on July 11 by the Rev. Dr. Cummings.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 13, 1900.

LONDON.—The Daily Mail's Shanghai correspondent cables that the last two foreign legations left standing in Peking—the British and Russian—fell to the Chinese soldiers and Boxers after a terrific battle beginning on the evening of July 6 and lasting throughout the night. The information is that Prince Tuan personally directed the assault and led the center column. After the destruction of the legations all the foreigners with two exceptions were dead and the streets were filled with bodies of those who had endeavored to escape as well as of the Chinese slain.

CANTON, O.—Standing on the veranda of his home in Canton, William McKinley was officially notified of his nomination as Republican candidate for President. In his speech he referred to progress of the country during his administration and called upon the people to "once more unite and overcome the advocates of repudiation" and elect a congress which will sustain the gold standard law. He declared there must be no "scuttle policy" in the Philippines.

OYSTER BAY.—Gov. Roosevelt was formally notified of his nomination for Vice President by the Republicans. The ceremony two years ago when he was notified of his nomination as governor was more elaborate than that of today. Then the luncheon was washed down by claret. Today there was no claret. This, it is understood, was at the emphatic request of President McKinley that wines be tabooed by his running mate for today's official function at least.

JULY 13, 1920.

SPA.—The allies served an ultimatum upon the German delegation here that the Germans must agree by 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon to deliver to the allies 2,000,000 tons of coal monthly. Otherwise, the Germans were told, the allies will take measures to enforce the terms of the Versailles treaty.

CHICAGO.—Police sifted the ashes of Carl Wanderer's loves—and there were many, it appears—in seeking a motive for the slaying of his wife, Mrs. Ruth Wanderer, and the "ragged stranger." His sisters named two girls with whom he was friendly.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, The Tribune.

TOM PAINE.

Chicago, July 4.—The editorial that appeared in THE TRIBUNE on July 4, "And the Pursuit of Happiness," was, indeed, an excellent one, but it is surprising the name of Thomas Paine was left out.

America owes him a great debt of gratitude and devotion in that he first of all men proposed American independence and suggested the federal union of states. Thomas Paine was the first man who ever wrote these words, "The American nation," and also these: "The United States of America"—with all due respect to the memory of Thomas Jefferson. His "Common Sense" was directly responsible for the Declaration of Independence six months after it was published and the successful revolution that followed.

Had Thomas Paine given to the world nothing more than that matchless phrase which he adopted as his motto, "The world is my country; to do good is my religion," he would still be entitled to a supernal position in the galleries of fame.

CARL LYLE STEINER.

THE AMERICAN OCCUPATION.

Chicago, July 2.—The American wartime government tried to justify America's entry into the world war by freely applying slogans of a kind like: "We do not want to fight the German people, but we intend to fight against the imperial German government to make the world safe for democracy and a place fit to live in."

If America didn't fight the German people why is this people, now a very friendly nation, forced to pay the expenses of a Rhine occupation, which was against the principles of American democracy and fair play?

The peace treaty as proposed by President Wilson has long since turned out to be a French treaty. America, instead of advocating and enforcing Wilson's promises, follows in the footsteps of a still war crazy France and participates in "the spoils." There is no other name for war payments of this kind, for, after all, America isn't the loser in this game.

The German people, suffering immensely from gigantic reparations obligations, have another cruel burden. They have the privilege of paying for the occupation humiliation on their own soil, in peace time and under the name and order of democracy. These payments will be raised by an increased taxing of the German working population which suffers the most from the effects of a war which Germany did not provoke.

OSCAR C. PFAUS.

BUT CONGRESS DID APPROPRIATE FOR TANKS.

Chicago, July 3.—I have read your editorial "Another Ordnance Fiasco." The ordnance department was created, abolished and re-created several times since 1812, but placing the blame on that branch of the service for a failure to supply the most improved arms as they were from time to time developed is ridiculous. The failure of congress during peace time to appropriate for improved armaments, and, for that matter, for any other type of equipment for any of the defensive services, is responsible. Such failure to appropriate until hostilities have commenced, if at all, has cost in every war in the history of the country and always will cost this country thousands of lives and millions of dollars in excess of what the prosecution of such wars would have cost had such appropriations been made. The ordnance department always has fostered armaments for improved over standard equipment and never has been able, until there was no longer time in which to manufacture them, to secure appropriations for their manufacture.

It might also be interesting to note that in the Indian wars and between the Mexican and civil wars congress ignored requests for appropriations to enable our pitifully outnumbered troops to purchase arms that were at least one stage of development behind the repeating rifles the hostile Indians purchased from government agents.

A 100 PER CENT REUNION.

Chicago, July 4.—From June 9 to 15, 1930, Elyria, O., celebrated the 100th anniversary of the first high school built west of the Allegheny mountains in 1830. At the alumni meeting that week there occurred the most remarkable event in the history of the school. The class of 1880—eight members—met in reunion from widely scattered points 100 per cent present. Their combined ages numbered about 550 years.

What other high school alumni can register a class of graduates 100 per cent present after fifty years?

RUTH M'CORMICK TO BE 1ST SENATE INQUIRY WITNESS

Nye Will Open Hearing Here Tomorrow.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican nominee for United States senator, at her own request, is to be the first witness before the senate investigating committee tomorrow morning in the federal building when it opens its inquiry into campaign expenditures in the senatorship contest in the April primaries.

Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota, head of the committee, made the announcement in Washington before leaving for Chicago to open the hearings. Mrs. McCormick has prepared a brief dealing in detail with campaign finances, which is to be the first item presented for the record.

Nye Puts Total at $325,000.

"Mrs. McCormick is to be the first witness at her own request," said Senator Nye on leaving Washington. "The investigators working for the committee have found that Mrs. McCormick expended approximately $325,000, instead of the $252,000 which she reported."

When asked for a comment on this Mrs. McCormick pointed out yesterday that before the committee she testified under oath that her own expenditures were $252,570.96, and that the only other expenditures on her behalf were by three volunteer organizations, the funds being raised by themselves. They were the Voters' Progress club, composed of business and professional men; the Ruth Hanna McCormick Volunteers, composed of women; and the Young People's Republican Club of Illinois.

Mrs. McCormick's Statement.

"Senator Nye has been given the facts by me," said Mrs. McCormick. "The investigators have not brought out anything I have not communicated officially to Senator Nye. I have accounted for every single nickel, and not a penny has been spent by me that is not officially accounted for on the books and with receipts and canceled checks. Auditors have been working on the accounts for weeks and they have reported everything O. K.

"The three nonpolitical organizations I refer to, I was informed by them, spent $67,214, none of which was contributed by me. I communicated this officially to the committee, and Senator Nye learned it from me."

Additional subpoenas served yesterday upon witnesses summoned to testify at the hearings included three public officials. They were: Charles V. Barrett, member of the board of review; Joseph P. Carolan, county commissioner, and Morris Eller, city collector. More than 60 persons have been summoned, and it was indicated yesterday that this is the first batch of witnesses, with the possibility of more writs to follow.

Deneen Men Not Yet Called.

According to the deputy marshals, members of the Deneen organization are not in the first batch of subpoenas. Senator Charles S. Deneen, when questioned by the committee, listed his campaign expenditures at $24,493.22.

It was stated in Washington yesterday that Senator Nye, while in the west, will inquire into developments in the Nebraska primaries to be held next month. The Pennsylvania primary inquiry will begin with hearings at Philadelphia, Aug. 4 and 5.

REPORTER FILES APPEAL; GUILTY OF EXTORTION

Los Angeles, Cal., July 12.—[Special.]—Morris Lavine, reporter for the Los Angeles Examiner who was convicted of attempted extortion in connection with newspaper articles, and was sentenced to one year's imprisonment and fined $5,000, filed written notice of appeal today.

His appeal is based on legal technicalities. Miss Leotine Johnson was convicted with him of attempting to extort $75,000 for articles in the Los Angeles Examiner which were published under her name and which Lavine helped to prepare.

Charles H. Crawford, Los Angeles politician from whose hands Lavine took the $75,000, today filed a legal action seeking to secure return of his money. It has been put under bond in the district attorney's office and litigants in the affairs of the bankrupt Julia Petroleum company sought to attach the money.

Lavine precipitated a scene in court as he was sentenced last night when he stood up and informed Superior Judge Schauer that he believed one of the jurors had been intoxicated during the jury deliberations in which the reporter was found guilty. Judge Schauer conducted an investigation, which he concluded by exonerating the juror and censuring Lavine. The Judge said he would forward a recommendation that Lavine's membership in the state bar association be canceled.

"A MASKED BALL" PLEASANT OPERA DESPITE WEATHER

BY EDWARD MOORE.

"A Masked Ball" at Ravinia last night presented the spectacle of an audience in the lightest of summer garb and doing nothing, regarding with pity a stage full of artists dressed in velvets and working hard. At the same time those on the stage looked and acted much more alert and less wilted than those in the audience felt, so it is a question which should be awarded the decision.

All of which leads up to the further statement that climatic temperature met artistic temperament and came off second best. In spite of what might have seemed like obstacles, they gave a bully performance of the ancient opera.

Giovanni Martinelli as Riccardo, count of Warwick and governor of Boston, was never in more brilliant voice nor more stirring mood. Giuseppe Danise awakened echoes of applause when he sang the famous baritone aria before the picture of the said Riccardo. Elizabeth Rethberg as Amelia was something superb in solos and concert numbers; Julia Claussen, with fine drama in every note of her voice, was enough to make one believe that fortune telling belongs among the notable operatic arts, and Florence Macbeth as the page was deft, accurate, and altogether winsome. One must not forget the two bass conspirators, in this performance sung by Virgilio Lazzeri and Louis d'Angelo. In several ways they are close to being my favorite opera singers, and these two artists, with their muttered plottings, made them important parts of the performance.

It is hard to take much stock in the dramatic values of "A Masked Ball," but the piece is packed full of stirring tunes and without exception these were given a performance nothing short of gorgeous. So, in spite of the thermometer, it was a pleasant evening.

DR. WILBUR HERE ON WAY HOME TELLS OF WORK

Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, secretary of the interior, stopped off in Chicago for a few hours yesterday on his way to his home state of California. He arrived on the Liberty Limited of the Pennsylvania in company with his wife and Congressman Guy U. Hardy of Colorado.

Proudly displaying an English salmon rod, which he is carrying to a friend in the west, Secretary Wilbur admitted that a great deal of his time will be taken up with resting and fishing in the Lake Tahoe region. But, he added, he will do a great deal of work before he returns to Washington in the fall.

Regarding his summer work, Wilbur, former president of Leland Stanford university and close friend of the President, said, "I expect to carefully inspect the Kettleman oil fields between San Francisco and Los Angeles, as one-third of the area is the property of the government. Under a recent law passed by congress these fields will be worked under the unit regulating plan which will save the government $1,000,000 a year."

Olney, Ill., July 12.—(AP)—Edward Myers, one of four bandits captured after the hold-up of the State bank of Noble, Ill., June 24, led police today to a cache near Toledo, Ill., where they recovered $2,444 in Liberty bonds. Police have now recovered all of the $30,600 in cash and bonds stolen.

Both to Blame

PARIS, July 12.—(AP)—Jean Assolant, French trans-Atlantic flyer, and Pauline Parker, whom he married at Portland, Me., on the eve of his flight to Europe, today were divorced by the court here. Blame was attached to both, the court ruling that the aviator abandoned his wife, while she wrote letters to him of a disrespectful nature. The temporary alimony was discontinued.

Assolant, pilot of the Yellow Bird, gave his age as 23 when he married the New York show girl. Miss Parker said she was 22. Neither had been married before.

Their marital difficulties began after the flyer's bride joined him in Paris. She began her action for divorce on Jan. 4 of this year by attaching her husband's property. Subsequent attempts by friends of the couple to bring about a reconciliation failed. Assolant, the glamor of his reception in Paris as a hero having dimmed, settled down at his old job as an air pilot on the Paris-Strasbourg line and paid his wife $60 temporary alimony ordered by the court.

The two men made their escape in an automobile.

VOLUNTEERS GIVE TIME TO MAKE BOOKS FOR BLIND

Chicago Red Cross Calls Workers for Task.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

Faced with an urgent demand for more books printed in the Braille system, by which the blind read, and the prohibitive production cost of the volumes, the Chicago chapter of the Red Cross has solved its problem by means of volunteer service. James T. Nicholson, manager of the local chapter, announced yesterday an imminent expansion of the Braille department, made possible by individuals who will give their time and efforts to the project.

The commercial production by the Braille system, a code of raised dots over which the blind pass their fingers and thus learn the contents of a book or newspaper, is ten times more expensive, Manager Nicholson explained, than ordinary printing. Twenty dollars worth of printed volumes would cost $200 if transcribed into Braille. Hour by hour labor of sympathetic people, using Braille slates or Braille writers [resembling typewriters] must be their chief resources for the production of much of the literature for the blind.

Training Course in Braille.

A simplified training course of ten lessons in the Braille system has been provided by the American Red Cross, which assigned a director to work with the Library of Congress. Women seeking means to use their leisure are aiding. Chapters from Maine to California are now producing the Braille works. Last year 1,155 persons hand copied 191,732 pages of Braille. The Red Cross presented 1,849 volumes to libraries, homes, and individuals.

Since last July, the midwestern area headquarters of the Red Cross reports, from St. Louis, that 16 chapters in this district have taken up the work. Those in Illinois are at Chicago, Carthage, Danville, Oswego, and Urbana. Since July 1, 1929, the workers have produced 42,480 pages.

Invented by Blind Boy.

The system originated, Manager Nicholson related, with Louis Braille, who when three years old, in 1812, was playing in his father's shop near the village of Coupvray, France, 23 miles from Paris. He picked up a sharp tool, which slipped, penetrating one eye. The other eye became blind through sympathetic inflammation. He was sent to a school for the blind, where at 16 he worked out his own system of embossed lettering. In 1827 he was made a professor in the French National Institution for Blind Youth, and while there developed the Braille system as the most compact and efficient yet devised.

GERMANS REVEAL CHATEAU THIERRY DRIVE COST WAR

Franco-American Attack "Turned the Tide."

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 12.—The 1st, 2d, 4th, and 26th American divisions and the 6th and 10th French armies attacking the army of the crown prince of Germany in the Chateau Thierry sector on July 18, 1918, decided the world war. This is the opinion voiced emphatically in the 35th volume of "Battles of the World War," published recently by G. Stalling, Oldenburg.

This series is brought out under the auspices of Germany's national archives and presents an analysis of every battle of the war, worked out by Germany's experts from a purely military and tactical viewpoint with the help of all secret and official reports available. Consequently this series presents what is believed the most reliable reports on the world war published in Germany.

Battle Turned the Tide.

The authors, Alfred Stenger, Col. L. Lange and Capt. K. Herrmann, describe July 18, 1918, as the tide-turning battle, because from that day on the Germans never regained the offensive, but kept on the defensive until finally on Aug. 8, it became evident to close observers that the kaiser's army was at its end.

On July 18, the Franco-American onslaught broke out in the woods of Villers-Cotterets. The 1st American division was near Coeuvres, with Moroccans at its right, separating it from the 2d division near Montgobert. The 4th and 26th American divisions were slightly further south with the 6th French army corps.

The purpose of the drive was to force the crown prince's army to evacuate the Chateau Thierry sector between Soissons and Rheims. On Aug. 3 the drive was over. The crown prince's army had lost 25,000 men, 793 guns, and the entire Chateau Thierry sector including Soissons.

German Attack Betrayed.

Only three days before the Franco-American attack, on July 15, the Germans had felt strong enough to try to break through on both sides of Rheims. The German plans were betrayed. German artillery spent all her ammunition on the first allied line, only to find later that all troops had been withdrawn and that the second line was reinforced and impregnable. This was the last German offensive. What power of resistance was left in this sector was undermined by the attack on July 18.

Germany's military historians, analyzing the reasons for this disaster, from a purely military viewpoint, agree that surprise was the main factor. Alfred Stenger stresses that never before in the history of the war was the secrecy of an attack kept as perfectly as in this case.

In every other offensive, German or allied, the enemy had an inkling of the impending conflict, but on July 18, the troops in the trenches were taken unawares. Brigadiers and division commanders as well as the chiefs of the army and G. H. Q. were taken by surprise.

Secret Tank Aided Allies.

There was more, the author writes. A new type of tank was brought into action for the first time by the allies. It was slung low and speedy. The German machine gunners and trench mortar crews could scarcely discern the new tanks burrowing their way into action through fields of tall corn.

A further explanation for the defeat, the author finds, was the weakness of forces opposing the allied attack. He cites figures to prove his assertion, declaring the 11th Bavarian infantry division which fought the 1st American division on July 18, had a reported company strength ranging from 31 men on the day before the attack, instead of the theoretical full war strength of 250 men.

The allied advance of July 18, the author concludes, proved that, despite the gigantic efforts made by the German army, it proved unable to keep up the fight against the steadily growing reserves of the allies. On that day, the allies seized the initiative never to relinquish it until the end of the war, the German official military historians admit.

"Now then, buddy," said Pullman conductor R. C. McMullen, 8215 Bishop street, as the Olympian of the Milwaukee road rolled into the union station yesterday. He swung a four year old boy in a striped grey coverall from the steps to the station platform. A knot of sympathetic strangers gathered as the little fellow, Richard McLaughlin of Missoula, Mont., looked wistfully up toward the baggage cars, where a group of men were removing a casket to a baggage truck.

Richard's mother, Mrs. Theota McLaughlin, died in Missoula after an operation, leaving the child alone, as his parents were divorced. His grandfather, H. H. Hoppus of Warsaw, Ind., wanted the body of his daughter brought to her old home for burial, but as he could not afford to make the round trip himself, arranged for Richard to travel in care of McCullen and the train maid, Bessie Gaskins, 4754 St. Lawrence avenue.

The casket and its small, lonely escort were placed aboard the New Yorker of the Pennsylvania lines for the last lap of the 1,750 mile trip, leaving Chicago at 11 o'clock yesterday morning for Warsaw.

CONAN DOYLE'S WIDOW BRANDS MESSAGES FALSE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 12.—Alleged messages from the late Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, which were reported by New York spiritualists, today were branded as spurious by the dead writer's widow, who declared that the arrangements for her husband to communicate from the spirit world had not been completed yet, and, therefore, it was impossible for a real message to have been received.

She said, however, that there has been great rejoicing in the spirit world upon the arrival of her husband and that messages received in London indicated unusual activity among the spirits.

"There has not been time for my husband to communicate with us," Lady Doyle said. "There has been great rejoicing in the world beyond us on his arrival. These messages have been received in London. But Sir Arthur, himself, has not yet spoken for the reason that essential preparations for such communication between the spirit world and this world cannot yet have been completed.

"Therefore, such messages as purport to have been already received from Sir Arthur cannot be accepted. They have only caused pain to those nearest him."

PREDICT DOZEN NEW SENATORS WILL BE NAMED

3 Incumbents Defeated in Primaries.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—With senatorial primaries held thus far in nine states, three present senators have been defeated for renomination. Seven other senators have announced that they do not desire to succeed themselves for the terms commencing March 4, 1931. With several other senators in danger of defeat either in primaries or the election, it seems certain that there will be new faces in as many as one-third of the 35 seats which are to be filled in November.

The three senators defeated for renomination are Senator Charles S. Deneen, who lost the Republican nomination in Illinois to Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick; Senator Joseph R. Grundy, who was beaten for the Republican nomination in Pennsylvania by Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, and Senator F. M. Simmons, whose successful opponent for the Democratic nomination in North Carolina was J. W. Bailey.

Veteran Simmons Out.

Senator Deneen is completing his first term. Senator Grundy has served only a few months, being appointed to fill the Vare vacancy. Senator Simmons, who holds the record among present senators for the longest service, will have spent thirty years in the senate when he retires.

The seven senators who will voluntarily retire are Senators David Baird [Rep., N. J.], Arthur R. Gould [Rep., Me.], F. H. Gillett [Rep., Mass.], Guy Goff [Rep., W. Va.], L. C. Phipps [Rep., Colo.], Pat Sullivan [Rep., Wyo.], and William E. Brock [Dem., Tenn.].

Senator Baird, who was appointed to fill the Edge vacancy, stepped aside to permit Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow to make his successful race for the Republican senatorial nomination in New Jersey. Senator Gould has tired of senate life after serving less than four years, having been elected to fill the Fernald vacancy in 1926. Senator Gillett, having served one term in the senate after a long service of 32 years in the house, decided not to seek reëlection, being nearly 79 years old.

Goff in Ill Health.

Senator Goff attributed his decision to retire after a single term to ill health. Senator Phipps, who is one of the wealthiest members of the senate, will round out his second term when he retires. Senator Sullivan was appointed to fill the Warren vacancy in Wyoming and has indicated that he does not intend to be a candidate in the primary.

Senator Brock, who was appointed to fill the Tyson vacancy in Tennessee, while not a candidate for the long term which commenced March 4 next is seeking reëlection for the short term extending to that date.

Present members of the senate who have thus far been renominated are Senator William H. McMaster [Rep., S. D.], who successfully defended his alliance with the anti-administration coalition; Senator Charles L. McNary [Rep., Ore.], who had no opposition; Senator Daniel Steck [Dem., Ia.], who also had no opposition but is likely to meet defeat in the election; and Senator Thomas D. Schall [Rep., Minn.], who was able to defeat Gov. Theodore Christianson. Senator Schall, like Senator McMaster, has been identified with the coalition of Democrats and radicals in the tariff fight.

The Montana senatorial primary where Senator Thomas J. Walsh [Dem.] is up for renomination is to take place next Tuesday. The Texas primary where Senator Morris Sheppard [Dem.] expects no difficulty comes on July 26 and the Oklahoma primary where Senator W. B. Pine [Rep.] is a candidate on July 29.

The August senatorial primaries include those in Kansas and Virginia on Aug. 5, Tennessee on Aug. 7, Alabama, Arkansas and Nebraska on Aug. 12, Wyoming and Mississippi on Aug. 19, and South Carolina on Aug. 26. September senatorial primaries include Michigan and Colorado on Sept. 2, Louisiana and New Hampshire on Sept. 9, Georgia on Sept. 10 and Massachusetts on Sept. 16.

Convention nominations are to be made in August and September in Idaho, Delaware, New Mexico, and Rhode Island.

BLIND FLYING ADDED TO ADVANCED COURSE AT ARMY AIR SCHOOL

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—"Blind flying," the art of guiding an airplane through the air with the aid of instruments alone and without the pilot orienting himself on the horizon ahead, has been added to the curriculum of the advanced flying school of the army air corps at Kelly field, San Antonio, Tex.

A number of primary training planes, each with the rear cockpit equipped with an air speed meter, altimeter, turn-and-bank indicator, tachometer and compass, and hooded over with an adjustable canvas hood are used for the first phases of this instruction. Starting with straight flying the student learns to fly at a constant altitude and speed, and with the wings level along a compass course, gradually developing skill in this and then advancing to making banks and turns until he can make these with creditable facility. The instructor travels along to watch out for aerial traffic and to check on the student's work.

"Supplementing the course in this type of flying are lectures on the subject of instrument flying, or fog flying, to give it the name by which it is known to the flying fraternity, both in the service and in civil life," the war department stated today. "Most important is the instruction given in the limitations of instrument flying, when it should be done and when it should be avoided. Only skilled pilots are able to fly in this manner, and even these have to be broken of the tendency to relay on their 'flying instinct' and their 'senses' altogether and not on their instruments when they first set out under a completely covered cockpit that blots out all view of the sky."

FAMILY SAILS FOR SPAIN IN 37 FOOT BOAT

Salem, Mass., July 12.—(AP)—Bound for his homeland, 3,000 miles away, in a 37-foot schooner, Prof. Henry Blanco and his family set sail here today for Santander, Spain, on a planned five-week trip.

Prof. Blanco, teacher of Spanish at Iowa State university, Iowa City, Ia., was accompanied by his wife and 7 year old daughter, Evalu. The schooner was named for the daughter.

He went to sea at the age of 17, serving for three years. He is 38 years old and has a year's leave of absence.

The Evalu's course was expected to be off the steamship lanes most of the trip. Provisions for two months were put aboard. Prof. Blanco's old home is at Barcelona.

BY JOHN CORNYN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, July 12.—It was announced in official circles today that the Mexican government has begun a campaign against the wave of Chinese, who have overrun the Mexican Pacific coast, particularly the states of Sonora, Sinaloa and Lower California.

Investigations made within the last month by the government officials show that thousands of Chinese have entered the Pacific coast states clandestinely and that every Chinese paid federal officers the regulation sum for permission to enter in contravention of the law.

Arrest Customs Officers.

The fraud, according to a statement from Sonora today, has assumed huge proportions. The Chinese dominate Sonora commercially and have a strangle hold in Lower California, according to complaints made by the people of the state to the federal government.

Yesterday and today specially appointed federal inspection officers left for Sonora with instructions to investigate the frauds worked off on the government for many months by port and customs inspectors, as well as other officers. Several officers were accused of receiving bribes for the admittance of the Chinese illegally into Mexico and were ordered divested of their office by telegraphic messages yesterday. Most of them have been placed under arrest.

Fraud Bared at Port.

Over 1,000 Chinese were admitted illegally at one time and are said to have paid $20 a person for entrance. An attempt to pass a shipload of Chinese into Sonora within the last week led to the discovery of the fraud against the immigration regulations. The report says the Chinese are a non-working class and were to pay $250 each for illegal admittance into Mexico.

The inspectors on the way to Sonora have orders to investigate the papers of thousands of Chinese in Sonora and expel from Mexico all who are illegally residing there.

FINAL RITES FOR AGED CARDINAL HELD IN ROME

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, July 12.—Solemn funeral rites for Cardinal Vannutelli, dean of the sacred college of cardinals, who died last Wednesday, took place this morning at the Jesuit church of St. Ignatius.

The entire college of cardinals residing in Rome, Foreign Minister Dino Grandi, Vatican and Italian officials and an immense crowd attended the service, which was rendered all the more impressive by the music of the famous composer, Lorenzo Perosi.

An important feature of the ceremony was the official introduction of Italian authorities to the new dean of the sacred college, Cardinal Pignatelli, who has succeeded Cardinal Vannutelli. Pope Pius canceled his audiences this morning out of respect to the dead prelate.

SPAIN TO DISCARD HUMANE BULL FIGHTING LAW

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

MADRID, July 12.—The decrees for humane bull fighting, which Gen. Primo de Rivera and Martinez Anido, as home minister, instituted after years of agitation by a small group of humanitarians will soon be set aside.

These laws, among other things, compel the padding of horses in the rings, which saves 5,000 worn out horses every year from being torn to death, prohibits the driving of burning darts into the flesh of the bulls to enrage them and forbids children under 14 years of age to attend bull fights.

Influence is now being brought to bear on Gen. Mola, chief of the Spanish police, by dealers in aged horses and by other bull fighting interests, who assert the new laws are destroying the sport as a spectacle.

At this season the farmers have little work to do and three day fiestas are held everywhere, which terminate with a bull fight as the chief event. The Berenguer cabinet has followed the policy of conciliating the people whenever possible by making concessions. But the majority feel that, if bull fighting cannot survive without the use of the cruel methods now eliminated by law, it had better be abolished.

HERE IS VITAL QUESTION FOR MANY INFANTS

Will You Help Ice Fund at Times Like These?

Was it hot enough for you yesterday?

Not to be annoying, or crassly stupid. We merely hope to remind that portion of Chicago that fled to the beaches and the parks, the refrigerators and the soda fountains and electric fans, that the same sun beat down on another part of town. That its fierce rays poured through awningless windows on treeless streets, in sections where high buildings defy entrance to any vagrant breeze that blows.

It was blistering in the shade in every part of town, but down where the backwash of life has carried the less fortunate and least moneyed, it was more intolerable.

Families Without Ice.

For one thing, there was no escape from the stuffy rooms where the heat lingered as though loath to depart. In some places there was no extra change to provide even a trolley ride to the parks for thousands of children. There were no bathing suits, no place to use them if there had been No fans except yesterday's newspaper. No ice!

Except for the fortunate ones who held tickets for free ice supplied by THE TRIBUNE ice fund wagons, thousands of families whose pennies are too precious to spend for such luxuries, were unable to command even that measure of relief.

Knots and groups of children swarmed about the wagons, crying for the extra slivers that were chipped off as deliveries were made. It is a scene all too familiar in these neighborhoods.

Most of the gifts received yesterday were from old friends of both the free ice and the Camp Algonquin funds

Grand total—$580.44.

CAMP ALGONQUIN FUND.

$12.50—Clarence, Ward, and Joy Carlson.
$2.00—Mrs. Albert Goldman.
Total—$34.50.
Previously acknowledged—$1,749.12.
Grand total—$1,783.62.

There will be other such roasting days, on which fretful babies of the tenement districts must drink milk soured for want of ice to keep it sweet. Donations for the free ice fund have been rather slow in arriving this season. If you can help, send your check to THE TRIBUNE cashier, at TRIBUNE Tower. It will be gratefully acknowledged.

"INVENTOR" AIDS STATE AT TRIAL OF POLICEMAN

Harry Robinson, 27 year old factory hand from Keokuk, Ia., testified as a state witness yesterday in Judge Philip Finnegan's Criminal court against Sergt. William Begley, who is charged with extortion. He charged that the police official was from the start in on the conspiracy to extort $500 from Jean Hassawer, cabinetmaker at 5642 Lake Park avenue.

Robinson said that he posed as the inventor of a so-called money making machine at the request of a man named Dobbins. Hassawer was then interested in the project of manufacturing money, he said, and Sergt. Begley awaited only the opportune time to threaten an exposé of the case and the arrest of Hassawer. The policeman, it is then charged, agreed to accept money to hush up the case.

Hassawer was mysteriously murdered some months ago. Assistant State's Attorneys C. Wayland Brooks and John Holman are trying to prove the case through the testimony of accomplices, inasmuch as the complaining witness is dead.

FUND AVAILABLE TO BRING NAVY PLANES TO 1,000

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—Officials of the bureau of aeronautics of the navy department announced today that with appropriations made available by the navy supply bill sufficient planes can be procured this year to bring the total number of useful naval planes up to 1,000, the goal of the five year expansion program legalized in 1926. At present the navy has 828 useful planes on hand. The sum of $12,236,100 has been made available for purchase of planes this fiscal year.

Funds for bringing the army air corps up to the strength contemplated by the 1926 air expansion bill are expected to be included in the budget now under preparation for the 1932 fiscal year.

St. Joseph, Mo., July 12.—(AP)—Oscar Bodenhausen, St. Joseph traveling salesman, saved his dimes. On Aug. 14 Bodenhausen will begin a six months' world tour.

For twenty years Bodenhausen watched his 10 cent pieces. Each evening he placed them in a small bank. At the end of each week he deposited them in a small bank. At the end of each month he deposited the accumulation in a savings account.

Clergyman Defends Youth of Today.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Methodists from virtually every part of the central west continue to arrive for the 71st Des Plaines camp meeting on the historic site in the county forest preserve. The Rev. Charles H. Draper, manager of the meeting, said yesterday that the registration might reach 20,000 before the close of the meeting next Saturday.

The Rev. A. E. Peterson, in charge of young peoples' work at the meetings, addressing nearly 2,000 persons in the camp auditorium yesterday, spoke of the restless quest of youth for safe moral moorings.

"Youth is always seeking new foundations," said Dr. Peterson, defending modern youths from the attacks of their elders. "Maturity too frequently settles back into a static state. Youth is seeking a new appraisal of life's values that arise from combined world consciousness and a God consciousness.

Achievements of Youth.

"As youthful James Watt gave the world the steam engine when he was 28, Cyrus McCormick the reaper at 22, Einstein the theory of relativity at 26, so John Wesley was 21, Charles Wesley was 26, and George Whitfield was 24 when they gave Methodism to the world."

A memorial service in honor of the "grandfather" of the Des Plaines camp meeting, William S. Verity, will be held this afternoon. Mr. Verity attended the first camp meeting in 1859. He died last April 24 at the age of 97.

Mr. Verity was the man to whom Horace Greeley gave the famous advice, "Go west young man, go west."

Memorial to Minister.

An address in memory of the Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Carwardine will be given by Raymond G. Kimbell of Wilmette, president of the Camp Ground association.

A religious drama, "The Rock," will be presented at the camp meeting tonight by the Millbird players. Bishop James C. Baker, Seoul, Corea, will be the principal speaker tonight. Preachers' day will be observed tomorrow. Bishop Baker, formerly head of the Wesley foundation at the University of Illinois, will give the principal address on "The Preacher and the Deeper Currents of Modern Life."

TEST 150 POLICE CANDIDATES.

One hundred and fifty men seeking Lincoln park police jobs were examined by park officials yesterday to determine the eligibility for the civil service list.

PROMOTION OF BUTLER TO MARINE CORPS HEAD IS BELIEVED UNLIKELY

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—The question of whether Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, stormy petrel of the marine corps for two decades, would be selected by President Hoover to succeed the late Maj. Gen. Wendell C. Neville as commandant of the marine corps, was the subject of spirited speculation here today. Although the senior officer in the corps, Gen. Butler's chances are not considered too bright even by his closest friends. The general's record, which is replete with occasions when his "remarks" have occasioned nation-wide comment and in some cases resulted in navy department inquiries, may result in his being passed over.

Gen. Butler is ranking officer and in direct line to succeed Gen. Neville. He is twelve years junior to the next eligible for the post, Maj. Gen. Logan Feland, the only other major general in the corps, who is looked on as the most likely man to be appointed.

BOY, 7, HOLDS HIS PLAYMATE UNDER WATER TO DROWN

Los Angeles, Cal., July 12.—[U.P.] Psychiatrists of southern California today began studying what they termed "The strange mental aberration" that caused 7 year old La Verne McDonald of Long Beach to hold a playmate under water until the child, Eames Rowland Ellis, 3, died.

Responsibility for James' death was placed on La Verne yesterday by a coroner's jury which recommended he be held for observation by juvenile authorities.

La Verne some months ago admitted whipping another boy with a switch, and it was brought out at the inquest that he was known in his neighborhood as "vicious."

Authorities were at a loss to decide what action could be taken against him. Admitting the lad presented a plain case of psychosis, they pointed out he was too young to be accused

FRENCHMAN, 72, SHOOTS ERRING WIFE, 30; FREED

Told Her to Get Younger Man, and She Did.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOURS, July 12.—Leon Bouchard, 72 year old landowner of this city, had never heard of Freud, but he knew his Rabelais. That is why the Criminal court of this gay old provincial town was regaled today with a tale—told in the same salty Touraine idiom that Rabelais made famous—which would have warmed the cockles of the ribald philosopher's heart.

Bouchard was just as old as he looked. His 30 year old wife, Rachel, quarreled with him frequently.

One evening Bouchard said to his wife, "My dear, let us stop quarreling. You are young and I am old. Why don't you make friends with some nice young man and let me smoke my old pipe and drink my little bottle of wine in peace?"

Decides on Her Man.

Mme. Bouchard, after some consideration, decided a certain M. Hett, a contractor, was the man she had in mind.

Hett was married, too, but after a conference among the four a notary was called in. A contract consenting to the arrangement was signed.

They lived happily for a long time—until M. Hett and Mme. Bouchard ran off to Paris. M. Bouchard and Mme. Hett pursued them. There was a scene and then the four sat down amicably to a fine dinner. When they returned here, however, the old man, in a jealous rage, pulled a revolver and shot his wife four times.

A ruddy man with a long white beard hobbled into court to answer a charge of attempted homicide.

"It was a very old gun, judge," he said, "I knew it wouldn't hurt her."

She appeared in court, recovered from her wounds, with roving eyes and a saucy expression. Hett was there too, looking bored and Mme. Hett knitted.

Old Husband Acquitted.

The judge tried to give them a lecture but he looked at Hett's bored expression and Mme. Bouchard's roughish eyes and gave up.

Bouchard's lawyer made an impassioned address, ending it with a ringing plea to the jury not to send the old man to Devil's Island.

"He's too old," the lawyer said. "Besides he has suffered enough. While in jail he contracted a skin eruption caused from an insect of the species acarida unjustly called the French itch, gentlemen."

That won the jury. When the verdict of acquittal was announced the crowd in the audience waved their hats and stamped their feet. They cheered old Bouchard as he went out. They saluted Mme. Bouchard. They thumped Hett on the back and gave Mme. Hett a bouquet.

CAMPAIGN TO RECALL DETROIT MAYOR OPENS WITH RADIO VOLLEYS

Detroit, Mich., July 12.—[Special.]—A fully organized campaign against the recall of Mayor Bowles was started today less than half an hour after John Gillespie, commissioner of public works, left his bed in Receiving hospital to open Bowles headquarters. Leaders of the recall were equally aggressive and fully prepared for a week-end radio duel.

Walter B. Cary, head of the recall movement, fired an aerial volley at Mayor Bowles last night over a radio station, attacking the mayor "because he pleads mainly for sympathy and ignores the important and pertinent charges brought against him."

Gillespie arrived at the newly opened headquarters in an automobile, accompanied by two nurses. He was dressed in pajamas and dressing gown.

Both sides claim they are loaded with sensational ammunition, which, during the coming week, will be fired both through newspapers as paid advertising and through the air. Radio station WWJ (the Detroit News) has offered free privileges to both sides. It is the first time a major city ever attempted to recall a mayor.

MAHARAJAH OF PATIALA FACES GRAVE CHARGES

Brutal Murders Will Be Investigated.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 12.—Grave charges against the maharajah of Patiala which accuse him of such high handed oriental crimes as confiscating the wife of a subject and several particularly brutal murders are to be investigated by the government of India.

The charges were brought to light by the Indian states subjects conference. Subjects of the old ruler made a protest to the government in the spring of 1929 and the complaints were turned over to the states subjects conference. There a committee was appointed and a report was issued after an investigation.

Twelve Indictments.

The committee returned twelve main indictments against the maharajah, but the most important were the murder of one Lal Singh, the abduction and retention of the wife of Sardar Amar Singh, and the maintenance of a bomb factory within the Patiala state.

There also were numerous charges of inhuman treatment and the committee stated that "the reading of the depositions create a thrill of horror of the brutal atrocities committed in Patiala." Sardar Amar Singh was asked to accept 20,000 rupees but to renounce all claim to his wife after the charges were brought out, it is alleged.

Denies All Charges.

The all India women's conference took up the agitation against the maharajah and the forthcoming hearing was called.

The Indian potentate has issued a categorical denial of the charges, however, declaring that the entire indictment is a frameup and that it is supported by unreliable evidence. The foreign minister to the maharajah issued a statement in which he charged government handwriting experts had found many of the signatures on the depositions were traced forgeries, and ridiculed the readiness of the subjects conference committee to "accept as gospel every scandalous story which was brought to their notice."

"The same people appear as witnesses to half a dozen different kinds of alleged atrocities," he said, concluding that "the actual facts are that the maharajah of Patiala is very popular with his people."

CANADA WAITING FOR U. S. TO GET IN TRADE MOOD

Reciprocity Proposal Is Seen Probable.

BY GEORGE SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, July 12.—Canada hopes and expects to terminate the existing Canadian-American tariff war through a trade agreement to be negotiated with the big republic. The trade rapprochement between the North American nations, latterly the two biggest intertrading nations in the world, will have to await the finish of the present Canadian general election. And, according to Finance Minister Charles A. Dunning in his election campaign speeches, it will have to wait until the American people "are in a mood to talk business, which, apparently, at the moment, they are not."

In every speech throughout the present campaign, Mr. Dunning, the author of the "May Day budget" which is calculated to switch over a hundred million dollars of Canadian buying from the United States to Great Britain, has held out the trade olive branch to the American legislators at Washington. He has done it so deliberately in the midst of his expositions on the new Canadian tariff that there is no doubt in the mind of any Canadian political observer that the government, as soon as may be politically advisable, will attempt a reopening of Canadian-American trade channels.

Asks Tariff Fairness.

"I think there are numerous commodities which Canada and the United States might profitably exchange on an even basis," said the finance minister at Coburg in his opening Ontario speech. "Let them [the American government] try us. If they want to try us out by being a little more reasonable [in the matter of tariffs] with us they may find us responsive in the same manner we have been with other countries when they have displayed a willingness to do business on fair terms."

And at St. Thomas two nights later, addressing another big Liberal rally, he said: "We are not shutting the rest of the world out. I believe there are many commodities we could import profitably from the United States and we are ready to talk that kind of business with her when she is ready, but I am afraid she is not ready to talk that kind of business." So, there may be another modified trade reciprocity proposal between Canada and the United States. Dunning, the finance minister, is a westerner whose constituents in 1911 favored reciprocity, and he himself favored it. The old standing Canadian offer of partial reciprocity still stands on the statute books, unerased, since the 1911 conflict which terminated in the defeat of the Laurier government, not on the issue of reciprocity, but through the rise of the Nationalist party, since dead and buried in Quebec.

Uncle Sam a Salesman.

In the meantime, however, the Canadian election campaign is being fought out on the issue of the budget tariff proposals calculated to take away from the United States over $100,000,000 worth of buying and give that business to Great Britain. Great Britain, Finance Minister Dunning is telling Canadians all across country, has been saving Canadian trade balances by buying twice as much from Canada as Canada buys from her. The United States, on the other hand, he says, has been selling Canada twice as much as the United States buys from Canada. And now, he proceeds, the United States would still further increase her favorable trade balance with Canada by heightening tariffs against Canada. Therefore, he argues, in extenuation of the increase in the British tariff preference recently granted in the budget, let Canada extend her trade favors to her trade friends and wait for the United States to return to a reasonable frame of business mind. That, in essence, is the appeal being carried to Canada by her finance minister.

Attacks Richard Bennett.

Dunning, himself an Englishman by birth, accuses Richard B. Bennett, Conservative leader, of trying to wield the "big stick" on Britain in his policy of "tariff preferences only where return tariff preference is granted." Although Mr. Bennett does not specifically say so, says Dunning, his Conservative party policy is an unvoiced demand upon the British people to put a tax upon their foodstuffs in order that they may give Canada a return preference. Britain, having no taxation upon food importations, he says, cannot give Canada less than no tax by way of tariff preference. Therefore, he says, Bennett's demand is unworthy of the Canadian people, already greatly indebted to Great Britain for a tremendous trade total.

Finance Minister Dunning, before his Canadian audiences, is calling on "Uncle Sam" as a witness in rebuttal of the Conservative party claim that the Liberal government British preference extensions are an "empty gesture," and will mean nothing to British-Canadian trade totals. Uncle Sam's bureau of commerce, he tells them, reports that "Canada's May day budget adversely affects from $225,000,000 to $275,000,000 worth of exports from the United States to Canada, and beneficiates approximately the same amount of trade from Great Britain to Canada."

General Ballington Booth Here

Talks Unemployment

Gen. Ballington Booth, president of Volunteers of America, passed through Chicago yesterday en route from New York to Benton Harbor to dedicate a fresh air camp for poor children. He discussed the unemployment problem.

"It could be solved very simply," he said, "if those who have jobs would let those who have not share in their work and wages. By reducing hours of employment during times of economic stress, it would be easy to give work to every man and woman that needs it."

General Booth is a brother of the late William Booth, who was assisted in organizing the Salvation Army. Later they differed, and Gen. Booth formed the organization he now heads.

CONSUL VANISHES; HINT VENGEANCE BY DRUG RUNNERS

MARSEILLES, France, July 12.—(AP)—Police are investigating the theory of possible venegeance of drug runners to explain the disappearance of Arthur Reginald Lee, British vice consul and acting consul general here. He disappeared last Saturday about midnight.

Police after investigation abandoned theories of violence, robbery, a love affair or business trouble, and were compelled to consider his mother's suggestion that his activities against drug smugglers here and at Savannah, Ga., and Havana, Cuba, had made him mortal enemies.

Lee ran his car into the garage Saturday night, his key being found later in the bedroom. There was no trace of him thereafter.

FINLAND PLANS NEW PARLIAMENT ON U. S. PATTERN

May Abolish Proportional Representation.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, July 12.—Modification of the Finnish parliament into a legislative body patterned after the American house of representatives, with the country divided into 150 election districts, each represented by one delegate, is being considered by the government, according to Prime Minister Jehr Evind Svinhufvud.

Prime Minister Svinhufvud, who will soon celebrate his 70th birthday, said the government was considering discarding the proportional system of representation in parliament, by which the six parties now compile a list of candidates, each seating a certain number according to the number of votes they poll during election. Instead of the present 200 delegates, the projected Finnish house of representatives will consist of 150 members.

Bow to Peasant Demand.

The prime minister said the change was one of three demands made by the Lapho Kiike, a peasant organization, which last Monday invaded the city, threatening the government unless it destroyed the communist party through the enactment of new laws.

Premier Svinhufvud said he is convinced the Lapho league represents the true feeling of the country and that the Finns are tired of hearing communists misuse the right of free speech by attacking religion, insulting the country, corrupting children, and publishing profane literature, and promised a complete annihilation of Finnish bolsheviks.

The leader of the Lapho league, Vistori Kosola, is convinced of the failure of the present parliamentary system and wants to give the American system a chance.

No Change in Foreign Policy.

Foreign Minister Procope emphasized that the Lapho Liike is neither a national nor chauvinistic movement, and that it is merely a question of a change of domestic policies. The foreign policies of Finland, he said, will continue unchanged.

Neither minister cared to discuss the attitude of the soviet government, saying Finland's decision to destroy the communists was its own domestic affair.

Premier Svinhufvud also said that he is personally against the prohibition law, which has failed to make Finland dry. Because the Lapho leader, Mr. Kosola, also declared himself against prohibition, the prospects of annulment are increasing.

Many Reds Arrested.

The Lapho league is hoisting its national blue and white flag on closed communist union houses. Many leading communists have been arrested.

Mr. Kosola is receiving cables of sympathy from abroad, especially from Sweden, where the anti-communist movement is strongly indorsed. In one town the communists, as an act of vengeance, incinerated big storehouses, causing $12,500 damage.

CRAZED FATHER LEAPS 3 FLOORS WITH BABY SON

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—With his year old son in his arms, Samuel Klein, 33, recently a patient at an insane asylum, jumped today from the roof of the four story tenement in which he lives in Brooklyn.

Lester, the child, was killed when Klein struck the roof of an extension in the rear of the first floor, but his father suffered only a broken leg.

Despite his broken leg, Klein crawled through a window into an apartment and put up a fight when a patrolman arrived.

Mrs. Frieda Klein, wife of the insane man, went into hysterics. Klein, under arrest, was taken to Kings County hospital.

Column in Front of Hotel Found Filled with Honey

Taylorville, Ill., July 12.—One of the large columns, six feet around and twenty-five feet high, in front of the Colonial hotel here was found to be full of honey this afternoon after bees had swarmed from it. Bees had been seen around the top, but it was not though that they were working in the hollow cylinder. The intense heat caused some of the honey to seep out through a small crack.

4 Boys and Man Burned to Death by Oil Well Flames

Owensboro, Ky., July 12.—(AP)—Four boys and a man were dead and three men were in a hospital from serious burns as a result of an oil well fire on a farm near Haynesville, 20 miles south of here.

"WAITING TO KILL HUSBAND," SHE TELLS OFFICERS

Kansas City, Kas., July 12.—(AP)—It was 100 degrees in the shade and something more than that in the kitchen when two deputy sheriffs found a gray haired woman at rest on a porch.

"No mystery," she answered officers' queries, keeping her eye on a boarding house across the street.

"I'm just waiting to kill my husband, John Madden. I went to the weed patch he was cutting and took a couple shots at him awhile ago. But he ran away. I'm waiting for him to come home."

Her husband, Mrs. Madden explained, had forced her to take a job cooking.

Son Who Killed Father to Protect Mother Freed

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[U. P.]—A 15 year old boy who killed his father to protect his mother was held blameless by a coroner's jury today. The jury decided the slaying of John Alt, 55 year old carpenter, by his son, Henry Frederick, was a case of justifiable homicide.

Ex-President of Mexico Off for U. S. with Family

ALL EXCEPT WILSON JOIN IN ATTACK ON BOSTON HURLERS

Grimm Comes Out of Slump; Gets Three Blows.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., July 12.—Bud Teachout this afternoon had the extreme pleasure of seeing his fellow Cubs recover the use of their batting talents, the result being the successful launching of the eastern invasion with a 7 to 3 victory over the Braves.

It was Bud's second victory of the current trip and the third to be acquired by the Cubs in the eight performances they have given since leaving home on July 3. It also was his fourth triumph of the current season.

Mr. Bud was rather generous with his hits, allowing twelve, but, with one exception, he had the ability to get stingy in the pitches. On two occasions the Braves filled the bases, once with one out and again with none out, but in each instance he pitched perfectly and held the runners at their stations.

All Except Wilson Hit.

The Cubs made 14 hits, of which the entire cast came up with at least one with the exception of Hack Wilson. The eighth inning was the only one in which the Cubs failed to hit.

Notable among the slugging incidents were two doubles, a single and a sacrifice bunt by Capt. Charles Grimm—notable especially because Charles previously had made one single in six games and none in the last five contests.

Cuyler, who also had been a little slumpy, and English each contributed a double and a single. Blair had two singles his first two times at bat and Stephenson negotiated a pair of run making singles and a couple of sacrifices in five trips to the plate.

Double Header Today.

Tomorrow afternoon the Cubs will engage in a double header with the Braves. In this enterprise Bush and Blake are scheduled to act against a couple of able old gents named Tom Zachary and Robert Smith, each of whom has done much to lift the Braves to the top of the second division.

Today's game started with a single by Blair, but Clarence died on third, even though he was able to steal second. The Braves went the Cubs one better in their end of the first, for they had a man die on third and also one on first.

Blair Scores on Second Single.

The discouragement of the second inning proved a prod for our boys, for they appeared in the third inning ready for production. After Teachout had been thrown out Blair got his second single and went to third on English's single to right. Cuyler sent a sacrifice fly to Berger, and Blair ran across with the first of the many runs the Cubs expect to make in the east. The inning ended when Wilson flied to Berger.

The Braves' first futile base filling endeavor appeared in the third. Cantwell opened with a single and stopped at second when Richbourg beat out a bunt. Maranville fanned, but Berger walked for the second time, filling the bases. Sisler then lined to Beck, who threw to Blair, doubling Richbourg off second.

There was nothing thrilling about the manner in which the Cubs accomplished their second run in the fourth inning. Stevie pushed off with a single and went to second while Cantwell was throwing out Grimm. Stevie went to third on a wild pitch. Then Hartnett fanned. In pitching to Beck, Cantwell committed another wild pitch, Stevie scoring. Then Maguire threw out Beck.

Braves Fill Bases, Don't Score.

The fifth was the occasion on which the Braves filled the bases to no avail. Maguire singled to left and the bases were loaded when Cantwell and Richbourg beat out bunts. Teachout then did some bearing down, with the result that Maranville fouled to Grimm, Berger popped to Beck, and Blair threw out Sisler.

The sixth saw activity on the part

BIG SIX RETAIN PLACES

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

There were plenty of hits spread out among the Big Six batsmen yesterday as four of them engaged in double headers, but Sam Rice was the only one who collected enough blows to make a favorable impression on his batting average. Rice made four hits in nine times at bat, fattening his batting average by two points.

The rest all lost ground but held the same order. Frank O'Doul dropped four points to .404 by hitting two out of eight, and Chuck Klein went down three with the same performance, holding second place only because Babe Herman, getting two blows in six times up, lost one point. Al Simmons held the American League lead, although he slid three points to .387 with one out of five, while Babe Ruth, getting three hits in eight tries in his first games after his recent injury and following suspension, went to .369. ## One Victory's a Day's Work, So Sox Split Even

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The humble White Sox consider one victory a fair day's work. They grabbed one for themselves by taking the front end of a double header from the Yankees yesterday by 11 to 6. Then for a time they acted as if they had serious intentions of going for another joy ride at New York's expense, but the former champions put the idea on the bum by scoring six runs in an eighth inning upheaval that brought an even break by 11 to 7, before 28,000.

The first controversy was successful from a Sox standpoint because they were able to couple effective pitching with a quantity of hits. These were provided by every man employed in Bush's lineup, but the hurling was confined exclusively to the phenomenal Ted Lyons, who now boasts thirteen victories. Lyons was thumped solidly, but probably could have done better had it been necessary. He became the possessor of a fat lead as early as the third inning, so there was no need on his part to bear down.

Thomas' Successors Fail.

In the nightcap, pitchers of both White Sox and Yankee hue arrived and departed so speedily that few of them deserve mention. It is sufficient to point out those who figured in the distressing eighth. When this inning opened the Sox were proudly displaying a two run lead in the accumulation of which Tommy Thomas was erased by a pinch hitter. When the inning closed McKain, Braxton, and Walsh had been horribly mangled and there were no more thoughts of a double triumph for the Chicagoans.

Faber and Sheriff will pitch today.

The Yankees started the first battle by getting a two run lead. In the opening inning Lary singled with one out and Ruth fell a strike out victim. Lazzeri lined a hit to right, and when Reynolds let it seep through his fingers, Lary scored and Tony took third where he died. Then in the second Rice sent a pop double to short left, went to third on Hargrave's long fly, and home on a hit by Chapman that bounded through the infield.

The Sox were so robust in the har-

Yankee Track Stars Win in England, 7-5

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 12.—Five meet records fell and a sixth was equalled this afternoon as the Princeton and Cornell track teams took seven out of the 12 events from the combined track talent of Oxford, Cambridge and Stamford at the Bridge stadium. The Yanks won the sprints and the hurdles, but dropped the distance races to a fast set of British runners.

Three new records now belong to the United States. It was also an American athlete who tied the meet and British time in the 220 yard low hurdles. C. E. Bartlett of Princeton did the distance in 24.7 seconds.

C. H. Meining of Cornell was the individual star, capturing both the 100 and 220 yard events. He covered the century in 10.3 seconds and the 220 in 22.3 seconds, winning easily and establishing a new record in the latter event. L. H. Levy of Cornell put the weight for 48 feet 5¼ inches for another record. W. G. Heasley of the same school hung up another record by negotiating the 120 yard hurdles in 15 1-5 seconds.

Two other Cornell performers won events, E. L. Colyer vaulting 12 feet 7 inches, and S. I. Elmer winning the quarter mile in 51 seconds. The British won the high and broad jump, and the mile and two mile races. C. E. S. Gordon of Oxford beat the old record for the high jump with a figure of 6 feet 3¾ inches.

JACK CANNON SIGNS TO COACH AUBURN FROSH

Auburn, Ala., July 12.—[U. P.]—Jack Cannon, third All-American grid star to be added to the Auburn coaching staff, has accepted the job of coaching freshmen this fall and will begin work Sept. 1, it was announced today. Earl McFadden, whom he succeeds, will remain as varsity line coach.

Cannon starred at guard on Notre Dame's championship eleven last fall and did it so consistently that he was unanimously picked for the All-American eleven.

NEARLY 50,000 PAY TO WATCH CLASSIC RACE

The actual turnstile count of paid admissions at Arlington Park yesterday for the running of the rich classic will be a few hundred less than 50,000, it was announced by officials of the Jockey club.

"Forty-three thousand programs were sold and there were about 56,000 people inside the track when the classic was run" one of the Jockey club heads reported.

The betting was reported to have been in excess of $1,500,000 although definite figures were not given out. But it was reported officially that more than $200,000 was wagered on the second race and a larger sum was bet on the outcome of the classic.

GALLANT KNIGHT AND SCHUTTE MAKE EASTERN PAIR HUSTLE

50,000 Thrilled by Desperate Battle Down Stretch.

Gallant Fox and Earl Sande raced on toward the 3 year old championship before a crowd of 50,000 over the Arlington race course yesterday. This unbeaten combination got a neck decision over Gallant Knight after a desperate head and head battle down the stretch. Ned O. was third, six lengths back of the two leaders.

Thus the finish of the Kentucky Derby of last May was repeated and Gallant Fox's record is unblemished. He was making the sixth start of his 3 year old campaign, and it was the sixth victory. His share of the Classic pot of gold was $64,750.

Nears Track Record.

Gallant Fox, leading for one instant, second a few strides farther along, racing through a treacherously dangerous opening next to the rail down the back stretch, and withstanding the stiffest challenge made against him this season, ran the Classic mile and a quarter in 2:03 4-5. It was a fifth of a second slower than the track record. But the Fox did it without Sande going to the whip. He ran straight and true in that hair lifting stretch struggle.

A sixteenth of a mile from the finish there wasn't an inch between the two Gallant fellows—Gallant Fox and Gallant Knight—and the Knight seemed to be running faster.

The Gallant Fox backers were in a panic. "Come on Sande!" was the frantic cry of most of those in the huge throng. "Use the leather, Earl! Whip him," was the shout of the others.

The Fox Gains in Inches.

Now Sande was giving the Fox one of his old time hand rides. At each stride Sande seemed to push Gallant Fox up a few inches. The Fox's nose was showing in front. Gallant Knight, with Jockey Schutte using the whip freely, hung on like a bulldog. But Gallant Fox and Sande were striding just a few inches longer than Gallant Knight and Schutte.

And as the dramatic finish came they kept going that way, Gallant Fox by a neck, Gallant Knight by six lengths, and Ned O. third by 10 lengths over Maya. Alcibiades, the Kentucky Oaks winner, and Dark Entry brought up the rear in the field of six.

In the betting Gallant Fox was one of the shortest priced favorites of the season. He paid $2.64 to win, $2.38 to place, and $2.20 to show. Gallant Knight to place was $2.84, and to show $2.58. Ned O. had been backed stoutly and paid $2.44 to show.

Largest Chicago Race Crowd.

It was the largest crowd that ever packed a Chicago race course and included more notables than any race

Sande's Ride a Duplicate of Derby Run

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

When Gallant Fox retained his 3 year old title yesterday he moved into second place among American money winning horses of all time and to within striking distance of Zev, which now holds that honor.

Before going into details on that subject, however, let us consider the riding strategy and tactics employed by Sande in piloting the son of Sir Gallahad III. to his sixth consecutive stake victory. Briefly, they were the same as in the Kentucky Derby at Louisville in May. Strangely enough, the finish in the classic was the same as in the Derby with Gallant Knight second and Ned O third.

This Classic was an entirely different sort of victory, however. In all his other races except the Preakness, where he met early interference, Gallant Fox won easily or was going away at the finish. Gallant Knight yesterday raced neck and neck with the Fox for the last quarter mile. It gave a great thrill to the crowd, which had expected nothing so spectacular with the Fox a 3 to 10 odds on choice in the speculation.

Granting the neck and neck dash through the stretch was beautiful to watch, this writer believes Sande could have won by a wider margin if he had thought it necessary. That is not said with any idea of detracting one whit from Gallant Knight's performance. The latter was a far better colt than at Louisville when he was out footed by two lengths, while yesterday Gallant Fox knew he had been in a horse race.

The reason for our opinion is that Jockey Schutte on the Knight was riding a driving, whipping finish but did not gain an inch from Gallant Fox which Sande was urging onward by an energetic, but apparently confident, handride. Gallant Fox, inclined to loaf when in front, had no such opportunity but Sande did not feel impelled to the whip.

Now about the racing strategy preceding Gallant Knight's determined challenge. As in the Kentucky Derby, Sande hustled his mount along to keep well up to the pacemaker, in this case Maya. The latter was setting a sizzling pace with the quarter in 23 3-5; half in 47 2-5; six furlongs in 1:12 2-5, and mile in 1:37 2-5. On a slower track at Louisville, six furlongs had been run in 1:14. Yesterday, as at Louisville, most of the field was leg weary after such a fast three quarters and Gallant Fox was just about ready to go into the lead. Before Sande made this move, however,

NIGHT FOOTBALL PROFITABLE, PREP OFFICIAL FINDS

Aurora, Ill., July 12.—[Special.]—Night football is credited with increasing the receipts for the East Aurora High School Athletic association. The report for the year, filed this week by J. L. Hunter, treasurer, shows that $12,205 was taken in at the gridiron games. Basketball drew only $1,963.

The largest patronage at football contests was noted when the games were played at night. It is planned to hold a majority of next fall's contests in the evening.

SIGN NEW SPORTS CHIEF.

Peoria, Ill., July 12.—[Special.]—Paul B. Holliday, for the last three years assistant to Harry Bell at Lombard college, Galesburg, today was appointed to replace Telfer Mead as athletic director at Manual Training High school here.

A VISIT FROM THE BABE

Babe Ruth pays White Sox players a visit between games and is cordially received even if his home runs make him a persona non grata at times. Yesterday's games were the first for Ruth since his brief suspension and he failed to add to his four bagger total.

One Victory's a Day's Work, So Sox Split Even

vesting of four runs in the third chapter that the first five batters whacked the ball safely. A single by Jeffries touched off the salvo. Mulleavy also singled. Reynolds drove a fly to deep center, and it rolled off the top of Rice's glove for a home run. That accounted for three runs. Then Jolley tripled to center, remained at third while Watwood was beating out a scratch to Pipgras, and went home on Cissel's sacrifice fly.

After Gehrig's triple and a one baser by Rice had cooked up a run for the Yanks in the fourth, the Sox responded with three in their half. With one out Jeffries doubled, hiked to third on Mulleavy's infield out, and scored on a wild pitch. Reynolds doubled and Jolley shoved him over the plate with a single. This marked the end of Pipgras. Holloway ascended the mound and Watwood slapped him for a double, scoring Jolley. This made the score 7 to 3.

Sox Pick Up 3 More.

The Yanks tried to keep in the fight by getting one in the fifth on Mulleavy's muff, and singles off the bats of Ruth and Lazzeri. This caused the Sox to resume production in their half, three runs resulting. Singles by Tate, Lyons, Jeffries and Reynolds with a passed ball and a sacrifice fly sandwiched in accounted for these tallies. It was necessary to summon Pennock to close the inning.

For the remainder of the battle both teams conducted themselves in sane fashion.

The Yanks made their first impression on Thomas in the second game in the second inning. One hostile scored on a pass to Gehrig, a double by Rice and Bengough's sacrifice fly. The pale hose returned this compliment by scoring three in their portion of the inning.

Sox Give Away Runs.

The Sox were in playful mood in the third and gave away two runs before realizing the error of their way: Thomas walked Combs to open the inning. Lary sailed a single to right and Reynolds returned it to Cissell at second, but the latter let the ball escape, so Combs kept going until he reached the plate, Cissell perpetrated another error by booting Ruth's grounder. Then Jolley contributed the prize. He muffed Gehrig's fly, jamming the bases. A moment later Lary scored on an infield out to tie the count at 3 apiece.

If Tate had made a good throw on a steal in the seventh, the Yanks might have been denied the two runs on which they went into a momentary lead. The inning opened with Ruth getting a pass, which was not intentional. Thomas merely was overcautious. Ruth was forced by Lazzeri and Lazzeri was forced in turn by Gehrig. "Larrupin" Lou then started to steal second and succeeded because Tate's throw wasn't even close to the bag. Rice scored him with a single and continued to second on the throw in. Rice dented the plate with his spike on a two bagger delivered by Byrd who batted for Bengough.

Wells Driven to Showers.

It didn't take Wells long to learn the Sox meant business in the home seventh. Mulleavy uncorked a single. Reynolds tore off a double, putting Mulleavy on third. Both crossed the counter and tied the score when Jolley slashed a two bagger down the right field line. Metzler took Jolley's place. A pitched ball plunked Watwood on the knee, and Wells was yanked in favor of Johnson. Cissell bounced into a force out. Clancy rolled to Chapman, who threw to the plate to nail Metzler, but the runner dashed back to third.

Then Johnson let loose a wild pitch, Metzler scoring and the two other runners advancing. Tate was purposely passed, loading the bases. Barnes batted for Thomas and Johnson hit him, thus making it necessary for Cissell to score.

Here's how the Sox lost their two run lead and also the ball game in the eighth: McKain appeared as the home hurler, and Ruffing hit him for a homer. He walked Combs and was recalled, Braxton succeeding him. Lary nicked the southpaw for a single, and Ruth fanned. Lazzeri then singled. Gehrig doubled, and Rice singled to round out a total of five runs. When this much had happened Walsh was called to Braxton's rescue and one more man was driven in before young Ed could accomplish his purpose.

BY DONOVAN DALE.
[Caddy for Bobby Jones.]

Minneapolis, Minn., July 12.—(AP)—Is any more proof needed that Bobby Jones is the greatest golfer in the world? But he did not need to prove it as far as I am concerned. He's number one on anybody's golf course, and, I believe, the greatest golfer who ever cracked par.

Right now I'll predict he wins the national amateur this year—which will give him both British and United States open and amateur championships in one year—a record.

Last Hole His Greatest.

His 68, four under par, on the first 18 holes today, was a record for Interlachen and the finest round of golf I ever hope to see. Remember the gallery was immense and hemmed him in on every move. On the last 18, when he had his worst round of the meet for a 75, somebody grabbed his ball on the 17th—and on the 18th he made a birdie with his last stroke of the meet—a 40-foot putt up hill and over a tiny ridge—which to me was his greatest play of the whole 287.

I'm too tired to think tonight. It wasn't simply carrying the clubs And it wasn't the galleries. I believe it was the thrill of that 68 round and that final putt.

It was lucky, that the day was cool. If it had been as hot as Thursday, the first day, I don't see how any one, even the champion, could have played around in any kind of form. One hole then was harder than four today.

He's Just a Fine Man.

I carried one club around throughout the meet which Bobby never used—his No. 1 iron. His big niblick, which had a rest for two days, was used once today, the only time. Instead of a No. 1, Bobby uses a No. 1½ regularly. I never saw a club like that before. He is a keen judge of the right club to use.

Now that it is all over there is one thing I want to emphasize. Besides being the world's greatest golfer—Bobby is a real gentleman to caddy for. And that,—if you know the things a caddy runs up against,—is saying plenty. He is as fine a man as he is a golfer.

ATLANTA CHEERS

Atlanta, July 12.—(AP)—In the fever heat of its hottest day on record, Atlanta raised rousing cheers today as news reached here that Bobby Jones, its golfer, lawyer, banker and outstanding citizen, had won the national open golf championship in Minneapolis.

There was wild acclaim when word came that Bobby had finished his play with a 75, but the real demonstration broke out in the downtown section when, after what seemed hours of waiting, it developed that Bobby's score was low.

City at Fever Pitch.

Although Atlanta has become accustomed to victories from its golfing ambassador, interest in today's play at Minneapolis was worked to fever pitch by extensive plans for a welcoming for Bobby, and by radio broadcasts at 15 minute intervals throughout the day of Jones' progress.

Out at East Lake Country club, Jones' home course, his friends gathered about a radio to hear of Jones while the state amateur championship tournament was in progress there at the same time.

The extreme hot weather—103 degrees—kept downtown crowd to a minimum, but in the residential sections radio loud speakers told those with and without radios of Bobby's play.

Planes to Form Escort.

Bobby has not been home since he left Atlanta for the British amateur and open championships—which he won. His victory in the national open, the second consecutive championship in that event, added, enthusiasm to city-wide plans for his welcoming home on Monday.

Bobby will come back to his wife, babies, and business and Atlanta will take a holiday. A fleet of airplanes will meet his train at Austell, Ga., and escort him to the city limits.

His first appearance will be on Peachtree street, where a parade will form. Bobby will be taken to the city hall, to be welcomed by the mayor. Three hundred Negro caddies will march in the parade. Many stores will be closed.

Mrs. Jones Listens In.

Mrs. Jones, who came home after Bobby's English conquests, to see her babies—a son and a daughter—listened in on the radio today. Bobby's father and mother went with him to the open.

Robert Tyre Jones III. is just three. He wants his daddy to hurry home, for while father was away the son learned to whistle and he is anxious to show his daddy just how it is done.

How Bobby Shot His Last 36 Holes at Interlachen

Minneapolis, Minn., July 12.—[Special.]—The detailed story of Bobby Jones two rounds today in the National Open tournament follows:

With hordes stampeding after him he shot par on the first three holes this morning and then his great charge began. His second shot on the fourth was in a trap but he pitched out and holed his first putt for a birdie 4.

He took par on the next, and then came one of the great shots which make him a champion. After his drive had landed in the rough, 100 yards from the green, he slugged it out and laid it 5 feet from the pin in position for a birdie 3.

He followed this with another birdie by approaching to within a yard of the hole and going down in one putt. His 20 foot attempt for another birdie on the 8th missed by 2 inches.

Three Under Par on 9th.

Bobby had to work to get his par 5 on the ninth. His drive was just short of the lake, which his spoon shot and skimmed yesterday, and his second soared over the water and came to rest in a trap at the edge of the green. But he chipped out and was down in two putts to reach the turn in 33, three strokes under par.

He took a par four on the tenth and then began another of his great rallies. His second shot on the 11th was short of the green but he chipped within three feet of the pin, and sank his putt for a birdie four.

Plays One Safe.

The next was one to be remembered. The fairway is 535 yards long and par is 5. Bobby's drive carried about 290 yards. For a long time he stood debating with himself whether to take a wood and try a tremendous wallop straight for the green or play safe and send an iron shot short of the traps which were yawning at the base of the hill upon which the green was set.

Finally he decided on the latter method of approach and the throngs seemed disappointed that he apparently was giving up another attempt at a birdie.

He laid the ball near the foot of the hill, about 80 yards from the pin, with nothing but bunkers in between.

Then he took a mashie niblick, sighted at the top of the flag, which was just visible, and looped the ball into the air. He heard a great roar rise from the throngs banked about the green, but could not see where the ball was rolling after it got over the top of the hill.

Goes Five Under Par.

It came on a perfect line, grazed the pin, and rolled eight feet beyond. Another tremendous cheer arose a minute later as Bobby holed the putt for another birdie, which brought him five strokes under par.

He was in trouble on the next, but extricated himself from it in typical fashion. His drive landed in the rough to the right of the green and there seemed little likelihood that he would get out to safe territory in position for a par three. But he chipped to within three feet of the pin and holed the putt.

On the 14th his 20 foot putt for a birdie missed by an inch. He took another perfect four on the 15th and on the next laid his approach dead to the pin for another birdie to go six strokes under par.

Goes Into Rough on 17th.

He had hard luck on the 17th when his tee shot landed in the heavy rough on the slope of a bunker, but a beautiful pitch put him on the green and he was down in two putts for a four. This was the first hole on which he was over par.

On the 18th, he sliced his drive into the rough, and was faced with one of the most difficult problems of the day. He had barely room to swing a club between the trees but he slugged the ball out, and pitched his next to the side of a bunker at the far edge of the green.

AFTERNOON ROUND

Throughout his afternoon round Bobby was hanging on like a bulldog to the lead which he had acquired in the morning. Sometimes he faltered, but never did he crack.

He began with a par four but three putted the second for a five. He encountered more trouble on the short third where his drive landed in a trap. His next shot reached the green but he three putted again for a five to go three over par.

On the fourth he rallied and made a birdie by getting to the green in two and going down in two putts. Then he finished out the first nine with par on every hole to reach the turn in 38.

Plays Three at Par.

He played perfect golf on the next three holes, but took a five on the par three 13th when his drive found a trap and he slugged twice with his niblick before getting out. This put him four strokes over par.

He rallied again by sinking a twelve foot putt for a birdie on the 14th and he made another on the 16th by pitching from the rough to within three feet of the pin. It was on the 17th that he sliced into the water and took a penalty for a five.

Then came the last hole and the birdie three which clinched the championship.

held it up to the officials. It was not his.

Therefore it was decided that his ball had glanced from the trees into the lake, and this being considered a water hazard he was permitted to drop another ball and take a penalty of one stroke.

He shot a five on the hole and walked off calmly toward the eighteenth.

Then the Climax.

Then came that great finish, which could not have been more opportune if it had been planned and perfected by a dramatist. Hordes were swarming everywhere along the fairway. They were banked fifty deep upon the hill before the club house. Bobby Jones was coming home, Bobby Jones was marching toward another title, and there was no one upon the course who would go home and say he missed it.

His tee shot carried straight between the long lane of spectators and stopped 180 yards from the green. The flag was set at the top of a hill the sides of which fell away for 150 feet, with yawning traps around it. Bobby stood looking toward that pin which must have seemed a thousand miles away. What was Mac Smith shooting, Jones no doubt was wondering, and what of Horton Smith and Harry Cooper? Only a perfect shot would get up to that green and if it were any less than perfect it would surely land in one of those trecherous bunkers.

The burden of his long campaign must have been hanging heavily upon Bobby's shoulders at that moment. Again and again he had made phenomenal strokes, but now he knew that he had one more great shot to make or all those others would be in vain.

True to the Green.

While the throng stood silent as in a tomb, he took an iron from his caddy, Donovan Dale, who was watching Bobby with a look almost of reverence upon his face. Jones swung and the ball shot into the air. It went soaring down the wind and had Bobby closed his eyes after the swing the wild roar which rose from 12,000 throats would have told him that he had reached the home green.

Immediately after the shot had been made, the crowd ctampeded toward the flag, each inidividual seeking a point of vantage from which to view the putt. They formed a dense cordon around the hill and stood waiting with breathless eagerness.

The empty green looked like a stage before the actors have come from behind the scenes. Then presently there was a break in the apparently impenetrable circle of spectators and a thunder of applause broke out anew as Bobby Jones came through the opening and walked toward the flag.

Thirty-five Feet from Hole.

Thirty-five feet of billowing green lay between his ball and the pin. With two putts he would get a par four but that would be unsafe with Mac and Horton and Harry so close behind. Two putts were for the ordinary golfer but this finish was to be made in the grand manner of a champion.

As Bobbie stood behind the ball and sighted the silence was unbroken. He tapped the ball firmly and time seemed to stand still as the little white sphere meandered 35 feet across the billowing green. Then that great throng let loose all its pent up emotion as the putt dropped for a birdie.

A Holiday in Atlanta.

Monday has been declared a legal holiday in Atlanta, for the great Bobby Jones is coming home. And he will bring with him honors which no champion ever has brought before.

"I'm going back to business," he says, "until it's time for the national amateur in September."

Never until Bobby shot his 68 this morning had 70 been broken upon the Interlachen course in competition play. A few minutes later, Morte Dutra came in with a 69, but this proved only a flash in the pan, for he finished far out of the running. At the 17th tee, Bobby was six strokes under par, but he went one over par on each of the last two holes, for his 68. He needed that 68 as he never had needed a great round before.

VICTORY FINDS GOLFDOM'S KING 'PRETTY HAPPY'

Still Likes Game Enough to Play in Amateur.

BY O. B. KEELER.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 12.—(AP)—"Well," said Bobby Jones, "I'm pretty happy."

This was not precisely to be wondered at. Bobby had just won the open golf championship of the United States for the fourth time, and the second time in succession. It was his third major championship victory in seven weeks, the British amateur and the British open being behind him. He had broken all records. He had won his twelfth major championship in all. I could not wonder that he was happy.

I asked about his last round, which had included three scores of five on three par three holes.

Wind Spoils Shots.

"Aside from those holes I did very well," said Bobby. "The wind switched on me at the third, where I hit a shot I thought should be near the flag. Playing with a big gallery all around, you don't notice these little changes, but the ball notices them. I was bunkered and got a five. At the 13th, the wind, from right to left, took hold of a somewhat natural pull on the shot and carried it off in the rough. At the 262 yard 17th, I simply hit one too close to my right thumb and went in the drink. In a general way, I think I never was hitting the ball any better in any tournament. I played some very dumb golf toward the close of the morning round, where I lost two strokes and a good chance for a 66 which should have made the afternoon somewhat simpler."

I could not help wondering how Bobby felt about a continuation of these gruelling engagements. I said: "Bobby, tell me, are you going to quit this darned game now?"

Bobby grinned.

He'll Play in Amateur.

"Well," he said, "I'm going to play in the United States amateur at Merion next September, anyway."

And that was all he would say. I have a hunch he has got about enough of the tournament game. But he won't say so for sure. And, as he said, he will appear at Merion next September, the scene of his first big league tournament, with the somewhat ambitious intent of making it four major championships in a single season.

He may not accomplish this. If he does not, it is a cinch nobody else ever will. Nobody else ever will have the chance. The "iron duke" is on top of the world at last.

JUST "PRACTICE"

With those few words, chockfull of truth and the story of American golf in a nutshell, Findlay S. Douglas, president of the United States Golf association, handed Bobby Jones the national open golf trophy as the sun died out of the sky at Interlachen Country club tonight.

With his usual modesty, Bobby remarked:

"I was just a little lucky, that's all."

"Make it plucky," Horton Smith shot back.

Twelve thousand spectators, all of whom had seen Bobby make that 35 foot putt on the final green to win the title, watched the presentation ceremony and gave Bobby a tumultous ovation. A battery of movie cameras clicked steadily while the champion's brief speech was carried over the nation by four radio broadcasting hookups.

MacDonald Smith barely squawked out his little speech of thanks as he received the first cash prize of $1,000 which goes to the professional with the best score.

"I did my best coming home, but am happy I got as close to that great golfer [Jones] as I did," Mac told the crowd.

"We have been trying to catch Bobby for years," Horton Smith said, "but he's always ahead of us. For my part, I'm glad Bobby is in the swim, in the competition. I don't feel bad. I'm happy and determined to keep right on trying. To the victor—and what a victor—belong the spoils."

Horton received a check for $750 as his share.

With that, the presentation ceremony broke up and Bobby hurried to catch a train for Atlanta, Ga., to get his first glimpse of the old home town since he went abroad for his first two conquests in England.

ENTERPRISE IS VICTOR IN SLOW YACHT CONTEST

Newport, R. I., July 12.—(AP)—The winds toyed today with the four contenders for the honor of defending the America's cup and in what simmered down to a pair of drifting matches, Enterprise out-drifted the other yachts.

She was the only contender able to finish within the five and a half hour time limit, finishing not only ahead of her own matched opponent, Whirlwind, but beating Weetamoe and Yankee as well. The last two named formed the first division. They started 15 minutes ahead of Enterprise and Whirlwind, but they were unable to finish within the time limit, so their contest was declared no race.

Whirlwind came home a half hour after expiration of the time limit, but because Enterprise got in on time, Whirlwind was permitted to finish. Enterprise finished only 2½ minutes before the time expired.

Police Escort Governor to Race Scene

Gov. Emmerson, rolling rapidly along the northwest highway in a big blue automobile with a bodyguard of highway police, the sirens of their motorcycles squawking raucously, was one of the earliest arrivals checking in at the Post and Paddock club for the Classic yesterday. He lunched with O. H. Lehmann, president of the Arlington Jockey club. Others in the party were Lieut. Gov. Fred Sterling, Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Gardner, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Plamondon, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Marr, Mrs. William Haerlker, Charles Weinz, and Dic Trevor.

Vice President Charles Curtis arrived too late for the Lehmann luncheon. The Vice President was in A. D. Lasker's party and Gov. Emmerson joined them in Mr. Lasker's box just before the first race was run. It was reported the Vice President had a ticket on Amyvale in the first race.

Maybe it was the heat or perhaps it was the big crowd, but the jockeys were having a rough time of it. Juggler went down and spilled Jockey W. Lennie in the first race. J. O'Hara, an eastern rider, fell out of the saddle on Conclave in the second race.

Thomas Piatt, proprietor of the Brookdale stud of Kentucky and one of the most successful of American producers, saw the races from the club enclosure with his son Thomas. Another big producer in the crowd was Edward F. Simms, proprietor of the Xalapa stud, where a hundred first class horses have been bred.

Tal Pendleton of Texas and Arizona, who is getting into racing and production on a large scale, stood by with Thomas D. Young, a son of the old time breeder, Milton Young of Lexington, and proprietor of the Hanover stud.

A consignment of the stable of Samuel Ross of Washington, partner of Admiral Cary T. Grayson in the ownership of the Blue Ridge stud, arrived from New York. The light footed 2 year old Happy Scott, also Mine Sweeper and Egad, eligible to the Post and Paddock stakes, which will be a $30,000 getaway day feature Aug. 2, and Grey Coat were in this group. Grey Coat is an Arlington handicap prospect.

Boston visitors to the classic included Phil Reid, Barrett Wendel and Mr. and Mrs. Abel Clark.

Lady Broadcast, preparing for the American matron handicap, turned a mile in 1:40 3-5, the first half in 48 1-5, over the Arlington course yesterday. Silverdale of the stable of Edward Beale McLean, another Arlington handicap candidate, galloped a mile and a furlong in 1:59. Silverdale, originally thought to be a sprinter, is learning fast how to stay.

GALLANT FOX BY A NECK; BATTLE THRILLS 50,000

Gallant Knight Makes Easterner Hustle.

of the year. Vice President Curtis was a spectator. Gov. Emmerson presented the trophy to the winning owner. Thousands of easterners were in the throng in the clubhouse and the exclusive Post and Paddock club.

The crowd traveled to the scene of the Classic in thirty-five race trains operated by the Chicago and North Western railroad, in thousands of automobiles, which filled all the available parking space inside the track and taxed the capacity of an adjoining field. A dozen planes landed at the airport. Others walked from the near by north shore communities.

Gallant Fox and Sande, as they came out to run in the Classic, received the noisiest reception any horse or any jockey ever got from a Chicago race crowd. And as they galloped back slowly to the winner's circle after their hard struggle the applause all but lifted the roof off the huge stand.

The field was at the post a minute, and when the break came Ned O's nose was flashing in front, Dark Entry was second, and Maya was running third.

As they rounded the Post and Paddock club turn, Maya flashed to the front and was leading Gallant Fox by a length and a half, and Gallant Knight had moved into third place.

Then came Sande's drive through next to the rail on the back stretch. Gallant Knight went right with him. Came their thrilling run into the stretch and then on home. The Classic was history. The Fox had won, but it was the narrowest escape from defeat he had experienced this yer.

Risque Wins Lassie.

All the best 2 year old fillies from the east and west went to the post in Lassie stakes, third on the program. Harry Payne Whitney's Panasette, a daughter of Whisk Broom II.-Panasine, was a 2 to 5 favorite at post time.

Risque, a daughter of Stimulus-Risky, racing in the yellow and black jacket of Mrs. John Hertz, was the winner, running a brilliant race and coming from behind to whip Panasette in the stretch and go on to win by three lengths.

After Risque whipped Panasette the Whitney filly quit badly and Glidelia from the Rancocas stable moved up to beat her for second money.

Risque paid $12.44 in the betting and ran the 5½ furlongs in 1:05 4-5, within a fraction of a second of the track record. She was ridden by Jockey E. Steffen, and the performance stamps her as one of the best of her age and sex in the country.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

ARLINGTON PARK.

It is the vogue to say nice things about Arlington Park and its second race meeting under the present management. Landscaping of the infield, the new paddock, comforts and conveniences for patrons are visible to the eye. Yet one thing possibly has escaped attention. How many have stopped to think that the track itself, or racing surface, has not been bad on a single day? Yet there have been heavy night and morning rains several times during the two weeks.

Twice The Wake has gone to the track thinking it would be a day for mudlarks. Thursday was one of those days. Yet before the afternoon was over a mile had been stepped in 1:38. For an oval which horsemen do not regard as a "pasteboard" track it is one of the fastest drying out courses we ever have seen, really remarkable in that respect.

Now, that did not happen just by accident. Aside from the fact that Track Superintendent Billy Myers knows his business, money has been spent lavishly to accomplish that purpose. Tiles almost get in the way of each other to provide drainage. Then a large force of workmen always is at hand ready to work the track. It all seems so perfect we are curious to see what will happen when rain falls all afternoon while racing is in progress. Our guess is that even then we'll still be agreeably surprised.

All this may seem irrelevant to some readers. Yet when you or The Wake go to a horse race we hope for a fast, dry track, don't we? That is the normal condition for tests of speed. Anything contributing to that condition, then, or contributing to a quick return of that condition, is an asset. That's why we cannot refrain from complimenting the Arlington Park management on its foresight in providing drainage and care for the track proper.

Rogers Hornsby.

The Wake did not like the sinister implication in the rumors, promptly denied, that Hornsby might not play again for the Cubs. This column always has had a profound respect for Rogers as a baseball player. Several years ago New York wanted and made offers for the then star Cardinal. Hornsby knew of this and it looked like a transfer to a pennant team. The deal failed. Did Rogers sulk at a supposed lost opportunity? No, he went right along playing baseball and eventually, as manager, led St. Louis to a pennant in 1926. Then his transfer to the Giants, and then to Boston from the Giants for reasons never fully understood, and finally to the Cubs. Here his presence was accounted a large factor in winning the 1929 pennant. Some time Hornsby will retire from baseball. But, as President Veeck says, "We're not trying to get rid of .375 hitters."

Air-Minded.

How have we crawled upon the earthly ooze,
Thinking a Hero trod in Habit's shoes?
How but to song has turned the skyward flight
Of wild birds winging bravely through the night?
Then to our grubby task with spade and hoe
We've dug our way to fame—or other woe;
As blind our hope as that of any mole
Still unemancipated from his rôle.

These peerless ones that fly toward the Sun—
What have they with Earth's old traditions done?
Gone marching—an aerial cavalcade,
Like burnished armies swinging on parade,
They wheel and turn and casually climb
Beyond the stuffy world of toil and time;
To what free empires bend their buoyant wings
Beyond this cluttered mess of soulless things?

Where have they thrown the clumsy tools we keep?
Their ways are swift and debonair and steep.
Now as I watch them from a stubby tower
My soul cries out—changed in a dizzy hour!
I shall not dig again in mud and stone
Where only stationary sepulchers have grown;
Out of the sod my fledgling heart upturns
And to the Sun and God with rapture yearns.
Arrow-Head.

Rushing the Season.

It's a little early to talk about football, but we cannot refrain from mentioning that we saw Hank Bruder, captain elect of Northwestern, recently. He looked brown as a berry and fit to crash through an opposing line. It was at Skokie Country club, where Hank is employed during the summer. Incidentally, we're told the Purple will have a lively aggregation of footballers this fall.

Sande's Ride a Duplicate of Derby Win

Then something happened which might have appeared strange to the stands. Sande, observing that Maya was running wide of the rail, shot his mount through on the inside. If Maya had closed in it might have been fatal for the Fox.

As I saw this move I recalled that on Friday Owner Woodward had told me the one thing he feared was getting in a tight place with Gallant Fox between two other horses. That is the Fox's only temperament, according to his stable. He will run outside or inside another horse, but not between two rivals. That probably was the reason for Sande's tactics.

The last quarter mile of the journey was comparatively the same as at Louisville—slow with the difference in margin as previously told. Gallant Fox still is undisputed 3 year old champion, apparently with none able to beat him. Gallant Knight probably has been underrated.

Now about this money winning angle. Before the Classic Gallant Fox won $19,890 last year and $190,340 this season, a total of $210,230. The net value of the Classic was $64,750. Grand total, $274,980.

Other American horses which have won over $200,000 are: Zev, $313,639; Display, $250,376; Exterminator, $252,596; Man o' War, $249,465; Sarazen, $225,000; Blue Larkspur, $220,420 (not including 1930); Crusader, $203,261. Display and Blue Larkspur are still in training. With a stake or two more, Gallant Fox will pass Zev in earnings for all time.

DAN O'LEARY, 91, WALKS BASES AT SOX PARK TODAY

Dan O'Leary is still Dan O'Leary. The celebrated long distance walker, who, like John D. Rockefeller, observed his 91st birthday last week, will give a demonstration of his prowess at Comiskey park today preceding the Yankee-White Sox game.

The old fellow will endeavor to prove that he can walk 720 yards, or around the bases six times, in at least five minutes. He has been doing this stunt for the last ten years and predicts that in another ten years he will be able to lower his mark to four and one-half minutes.

BLAST DAMAGES ARLINGTON AS CROWD GATHERS

Only a few hours before a crowd of 50,000 began gathering for the running of the Arlington Classic at the Arlington Park race track yesterday, an explosion damaged the grandstand. First reports that a bomb had caused the damage were denied by W. Kenny, general superintendent, who said that defective wiring and an open gas jet had resulted in the explosion.

The blast ripped a hole in the concrete of the grandstand, upset a concession stand, and did some damage to one of the mutuel offices. Repairmen were put to work at once and it was expected that all traces of the explosion would be removed before the crowd arrived.

"All the hot dog stands beneath the grandstand have gas pipe connections," explained Kenny. "One of these pipes broke and the gas accumulated. It was set off by a spark. The damage was very small, not more than $20."

Clifford Sutter of New Orleans and Tulane university, winner of the recent intercollegiate title, was seeded second and five others in the field of 64 were placed on the preferred list. In order they were Edward Jacobs of Baltimore, Sidney B. Wood Jr. of New York; Keith Gledhill of Santa Barbara, Cal., the junior national champion; Ellsworth Vines of Pasadena, Cal.; Philip Neer of California, the 1921 intercollegiate titlist; Donald Cram of Nashville, Tenn.; the third ranking southern player.

Having broken even in yesterday's opening matches, the Italians now need to take only one of tomorrow's two singles matches to clinch the series and qualify to play the United States for the right to challenge the French.

Australian Cricketers Score Only 566 Runs

LEEDS, Eng., July 12.—(AP)—England's bowlers, who were pounded unmercifully in the cricket test match with Australia yesterday, redeemed themselves today. Australia piled up 458 runs for three wickets yesterday, but before lunch today they were all out for 566, seven wickets adding only 108 runs.

Don Bradman, the sensational young Australian, added 25 to his prodigious overnight total of 309. He finally fell when he misjudged a ball bowled by Maurice Tate. England was 212 for 5 when stumps were drawn for the day.

WHAT'S WILDCAT DO IN SUMMER? N. U. HAS ANSWER

Grid Stars Engaged in 15 Different Labors.

Summer occupations of college grid stars who in a few months will be performing in crowded stadia are many and varied. A check of Northwestern university's varsity candidates shows that the youths are engaged in no less than fifteen kinds of labor such as life guards, farming, walk a police beat, construction work, caddy masters, and in one instance taking a Mediterranean cruise. However, this latter case could hardly be termed labor.

Capt. Hank Bruder, star half back, who is counted on the play a prominent part in the Wildcats' grid fortunes next fall, is employed as caddy master at the Skokie Country club. Paul McDonald, sophomore center candidate, is holding down a similar job on a north shore course.

Four Engaged as Laborers.

Four players are engaged as laborers on construction crews in and around Chicago. They are Larry Oliphant, varsity end; Sid Burnstein, half back; Jimmy Evans, guard, and Jimmie O'Mara, sophomore half back prospect.

Jack Riley, husky varsity tackle; Ted Egbert, end, and George Dilly, sophomore tackle, are life guards on Chicago and Evanston beaches. Wade Woodworth, varsity guard, is having a busy summer with his outboard motor boat in which he has been winning cups and trophies throughout the middle west.

Dallas Marvil, giant tackle, returned to his home town in Laurel, Del., where he reports that he is holding down a job as truckman in a warehouse. Red Clark, regular center, likewise returned to his home in Detroit, where he is working in a factory.

Moore an Artist.

Lee Hanley, varsity quarter back, and Bob Gonya, tackle, are at work keeping the university tennis courts rolled and in shape during the summer. Paul Engebritsen, tackle, sends word that he is working on a farm near his home in Chariton, Ia.; Al Moore, half back, the artist of the team, is doing commercial illustrating in Chicago.

MISS CARSTAIRS ENTERS 2 BOATS AGAINST WOOD

Detroit, Mich., July 12.—(AP)—As the sole hope of England in the Harmsworth trophy regatta here Aug. 28 to 30, Miss Marion B. Carstairs is getting two speedboats in readiness at Gravenhurst, Ont., for the clash with Gar Wood, who has held the trophy since 1920. The death of Maj. Sir Henry O. D. Segrave at Windermere, Eng., a month ago, while testing his Miss England II., left Miss Carstairs alone as the challenger for the trophy that symbolizes the world's speedboat championship.

Maj. Segrave was driving his craft at 98.76 miles an hour the day he was killed, and indications are that approximately that much speed will be needed by the winner here next month.

The Estelle IV., which Miss Carstairs used last year in an unsuccessful attempt to take the trophy back to England, has been reconditioned and is said to be capable of close to 100 miles an hour.

MANDELL TO RISK TITLE AGAINST SINGER THURSDAY

Singer Floors Mate

Singer, who meets Sammy Mandell in a lightweight championship bout at the Yankee stadium on Thursday, took on Schweitzer after shadow boxing a round. In the midst of a lively exchange Singer got inside one of Schweitzer's lefts with a nicely timed uppercut which felled Schweitzer like a poled steer. After restoratives had been applied Jackie went back to finish the round.

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—Young Al Singer, who will be 23 on Sept. 6, bids against Sammy Mandell, world's lightweight champion, for the title Thursday night at Yankee stadium.

Only a few days more than three years ago, July 2, 1927, the New York Hebrew fought and won his first professional bout when he knocked out Jim Reilly in the second round at the Ridgewood Grove S. C., Brooklyn. For that battle, a scheduled four round preliminary, Singer received $75. All Al was entitled to was $40, which was the current rate for preliminary boys, but he earned an additional $35 through a percentage on the number of tickets he sold for the fight.

At Top in 3 Years.

Now, three years later, Al meets the master boxer of the lightweight division, and according to reports from his training camp at Delaware Water Gap, Pa., has an excellent chance to terminate Mandell's four year reign on the throne he wrested from Rocky Kansas July 3, 1926, at the White Sox ball park, Chicago.

Singer's second professional fight, which he won in four rounds from Joe Salomoni at the same Brooklyn club, was for the current $40 purse. The promoters decided no youngster was worth $75, despite an increased ticket sale. Yet two years and one week after this $40 bout Singer received $44,227 for fighting Kid Chocolate. He lost this 12 round battle, but his purse that night set a boxing mark.

No fighter, including Benny Leonard, ex-champion of the lightweight, or even the one time heavyweight king, Jack Dempsey, ever jumped from a $40 preliminary boy to a $40,000 fighter in two years.

Fourth Defense of Title.

This championship defense is Mandell's fourth since he won the title in the first bout fought under the Illinois boxing law. In 1927 Sammy met Phil McGraw in Detroit and won the ten round decision. He knocked McGraw down in the sixth round and there was no doubt but that he was the victor by a wide margin. It was his second match with the Detroit boxer. The first, two years earlier, was declared a draw.

The following year Sammy defeated Jimmy McLarnin in New York over the 15 round route. McLarnin, who even then was outgrowing the lightweight class, could not match Sammy's boxing skill, although he was to gain revenge two years later when he defeated the champion in an overweight battle. The weight advantage was a deciding factor.

Mandell's third defense of his laurels was against Tony Canzoneri Aug. 2 last year. Again Sammy proved he had lost none of his cunning and speed and he outpointed the Italian in ten rounds.

Important Fight for Sammy.

Now comes Mandell's fourth defense, and it is considered by those who have watched the challenger in his camp drills the most important in his career. These experts reason that Singer is particularly dangerous because he possesses a capable left. Mandell has proved time and again he cannot be hit squarely with a right hand, but that a good left causes him trouble. Then, too, the ruling of the New York boxing commission on fouls will be an aid to Singer's plan of attack.

The commission's attitude for this and subsequent battles under its jurisdiction is that all fouls are fair. Singer has been drilling daily, shooting his left to the body. With worry over low body blows eliminated, it is apparent this style has possibilities of success.

Singer's proponents perhaps fail to remember Mandell's boxing skill when they predict the challenger's success. Ever since he donned the gloves for the first time in Rockford, Ill., Mandell has been one of the best masters of the left jab the ring has seen. Mandell's long success is attributed to this straight left, coupled with ability to hit just a bit quicker than his opponents.

Fighting 11 Years.

Sammy's only 26 but he has been fighting eleven years. In that time he has lost only five bouts in his seven score engagements.

His reach is above the average and is related to his height, for Mandell is the tallest boxer ever to hold the lightweight title. Sammy's five feet eight inches top Oscar Battling Nelson by a half inch. Freddie Welsh was five feet seven, while Jack McAuliffe, Frank Erne, Ad Wolgast, Willie Ritchie, Benny Leonard and Jimmy Goodrich were five feet six inches. Joe Gans, the old master, was a half inch taller than this group.

Rocky Kansas measured five feet five and George Kid Lavigne, second in the list of champions, was the shortest, being five feet three and a half inches.

Mandell is quoted as saying at his Orangeburg, N. Y., camp that he wishes to hold the title two more years, then retire undefeated. Singer, of course, has right to object, but it probably is more than an even bet if Mandell wishes to retain the title two more years he will keep it.

of both clubs. Stephenson again opened with a single and got around as a result of Grimm's sacrifice bunt and a single by Beck. The Braves started their half of the inning mildly enough, but before they were through they had the 10,000 spectators in an uproar. Chatham fouled to Hartnett and then Spohrer beat out an infield hit. He was forced by Clarke. Maguire walked. Neun batted for Cantwell and singled to center, scoring Clarke and putting Maguire on third. Richbourg doubled to left center, scoring Maguire. Neun was out when he tried to score, Wilson to Beck to Hartnett. The Bostons protested en masse, and the crowd joined in.

Cubs Jar Brandt.

The Cubs became a little alarmed at the foregoing display of enemy power, so they went after Lefty Brandt with a vengeance in the first of the seventh. A double by English, a single by Cuyler, a walk to Wilson, and Grimm's second double hung up three runs before Frankhouse came in and calmed things.

The Braves added a run in the seventh on Sisler's single, an error by Beck, and a single by Spohrer. Cuyler's double, an infield out, and Stevie's sacrifice fly in the ninth gave the Cubs their seventh run.

British Team Perils Yankee Track Reign

Reports of the great track and field team being assembled by the British empire for its meet with the United States at Soldiers' field on the night of Aug. 27 indicate that the American athletes face a hard assignment to defend their supremacy in the sport.

Lord David Burghley recently set new records in both the 440 and 120 yard hurdles in the British championships.

Canada is grooming a formidable team for the games here. The Canadians will be led by their sprint star, Percy Williams, winner of both the 100 and 200 meter races at the 1928 Olympic games. Alex Wilson, Notre Dame quarter miler, who is a native of Montreal, will compete for the empire, as will Jack and Pete Walter, the two star milers who competed for Marquette university last spring. Both hail from Ontario.

The British team will be selected from outstanding athletes in ten of the dominions, who will compete at Hamilton, Ont., Aug. 16 to 23, in the empire games.

To withstand the invasion, officials who will select the American team are urging all candidates to start training for the tryouts. The team will be chosen at the national A. A. U. championships at Pittsburgh, Aug. 22, 23 and 25.

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Question.

Which do you enjoy the most, summer or winter sports?

The Answers.

George W. Rowell Jr., 210 East Pearson street, manager Furniture club of America — Summer sports because it's the time for golf and baseball. True, I am one of the "dubs" still hoping to break the century mark consistently in golf. In baseball I can get the greatest "kick" of any sport. I love to see both the Cubs and Sox win, and it hurts me as much as the managers to see them lose. I like to watch such golf experts as Bobby Jones.

Joseph F. Kral, 6018 West 22d street, Cicero, merchant—Summer sports for me. There's golf for exercising and to help forget your worries; baseball for memorizing the names of players and positions, which helps you to remember the names of your customers. And there's swimming to cool you off. The three sports give you a chance to relax so that you will feel more like work the next day.

Mrs. Julia Taylor, 825 Montrose avenue, secretary — I prefer summer sports. They give every person the opportunity to enjoy himself without being burdened with heavy togs necessary for the winter sports. My favorites are tennis and baseball, but I like to play golf.

Mrs. Emily Wilke, 4848 Henderson street, housewife — I prefer summer sports, especially swimming. There's nothing more refreshing than a plunge in cool sparkling water on one of these hot days. Then, too, you can play golf and tennis and many other sports that you must miss during the cold winter. You can't do much except catch cold and run up doctor bills in the winter.

A. P. Haake, 721 Ninth avenue, Wilmette, managing director, National Association of Furniture Manufacturers — My idea of the best sport in the world is to be in the Canadian woods during the month of August with a pack, plenty of dried fruit, some flour, sleeping bags, fishing tackle a canoe and three regular fellows for company.

Course Near Wheaton Opened in 1893.

It is no more than fitting that a series of articles on the golf clubs which surround Chicago should begin with the story of the Chicago Golf club. For the earliest traditions of the game in this district center about a certain farm house to the south of Wheaton which was bought one day by Marshall Field, Robert T. Lincoln, James B. Forgan and a group of their associates.

On the rolling fields which surrounded this little house fairways were laid out, greens were sodded and hazards were artfully placed.

Since that day in 1893 when the farm house was transformed into a clubhouse and the barn into quarters for the caddies, the appearance of the place has changed entirely. The house has burned to the ground and a new and sumptuous one has taken its place; the fairways have been plowed up and laid out on a different plan until only three remain in their original positions; an artesian watering system has been installed which keeps the grass green through the August heat.

Charter Members Still Play.

But while all these changes have been taking place, Jarvis Hunt, E. W. Cramer, and J. M. Mackay have been coming up the driveway beneath the oak trees week after week as they came in 1893 when they were charter members of the new club.

During the 37 years which have passed since the pioneers of golf drove away the flocks of sheep which were accustomed to graze upon the fairways, this tract has become famous as a battle field upon which the greatest players of the world have met to fight for the national and international championships.

Men have risen to prominence upon this course. Their names became familiar to hundreds of thousands so many years ago that now some have been forgotten by all except a few. It was here that H. J. Whigham defeated W. R. Betts for the amateur championship of the United States. There are not many now who remember them, but in 1897 when this match took place, their names were in nearly every newspaper from coast to coast.

Scene of Walker Cup Matches.

During the same season Joseph Floyd won the national open over this course and Harry Vardon did likewise in 1900. Bob Gardner took the amateur crown there in 1909 and Jerome D. Travers in 1912.

It was only two years ago that such great names of Bobby Jones, Harrison Johnston, George Von Elm, Francis Ouimet and a dozen others appeared on the register of the Chicago Golf club when it was the scene of the Walker Cup matches between the best amateurs of the United States and England.

The clubhouse as it is today stands at the top of a gentle rise in the shade of many trees. To the west is a formal garden, and close beside it is a rockery, while to the south stretches 243 acres of rolling fairway. There is a picturesque pond with a tee on one side and a green on the other, and it was here that serious trouble was encountered even by such adept players as the members of the Walker Cup teams.

The membership of the club, of which Leonard A. Busby is president, totals 150. Two of the younger players, Morry Waud and John Van Nortwick Jr., qualified in the Chicago district amateur meet last week.

Horton Smith, the 22 year old New York professional, who led the field in the national open Friday, and scored 74 in the final 18 holes for a total of 292, is pitted against Espinosa of Medinah and Evans of Edgewater in the first round.

Tribune 100 Yard Swim Races Draw Entries of 400 Boys, Girls

Four hundred boys and girls between the ages of 12 and 15, inclusive, have entered THE TRIBUNE's 100 yard swimming races which will be held in the Lincoln park lagoon two weeks from today. However, the entries do not close until July 21, one week from tomorrow, and by that time the number is expected to be doubled.

Each boy and girl who completes the 100 yard course will receive a TRIBUNE merit badge. Four champions will be determined, but all may earn the merit badge. The slowest swimmers have just as much chance as the fastest. Mail your entry and report for the races July 27. When your turn comes, plunge in and swim to the finish line. Perhaps another year, with added practice, you will be a competitor for the championship trophies. But this year your merit badge is proof of your ability.

Swim Statues Are Prizes.

Gold, silver, and bronze medals will be awarded to those finishing second, third and fourth in the four races. There are two age divisions for boys and two for girls. Those who are 12 and 13 compete together and the 14 and 15 year olds form the senior group.

Oscar Knop, director of recreation and small parks of the Lincoln park system, has completed preparations for the meet. Two large floats will be anchored in the lagoon 100 yards apart. The starting barge will be opposite the Canoe club boat house. The finish float is to be south of the boat house.

Lanes Well Marked.

The lagoon is 75 feet wide, ample space for ten lanes. Each lane will be five feet wide. The tape lines, stretched along the surface of the water, will enable the swimmers to follow a straight course.

Dressing rooms will be provided in the club house. While none save contestants and officials will be permitted within this enclosure and on the floats, the east bank of the lagoon and the stone bridge north of the starting line, furnish excellent vantage points for spectators. Thousands are expected to watch the races and programs containing names of the competitors will be distributed without charge.

Every precaution will be taken to prevent accidents. A corps of life guards from the Lincoln park organization, assisted by junior life guards, will patrol the banks to prevent spectators from crowding too close and to watch the swimmers carefully from start to finish. Others will be stationed in boats so that any swimmer who becomes exhausted can be taken from the water.

Veteran Officials to Work.

The judges, starters, clerks and timers, are veteran officials, insuring capable handling of the meet.

Individual entries may be made on the blank printed in today's TRIBUNE. Instructors and directors of parks and pools may make team entries but must furnish the age and residence of each contestant. All the park districts, the board of education and city parks and playgrounds are coöperating in securing entries. There is no limit to the number of swimmers who may earn merit badges.

SWIMMING ENTRY BLANK.

Please enter me in The Tribune amateur swimming races to be held in the Lincoln park lagoon Sunday, July 27. My parent's or guardian's signature attests I have his permission to compete and that The Tribune will not be held responsible in case of accident.

Canoe Scouts Finish Cruise; Home Today

BY BOB BECKER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lafayette, Ind., July 12.—After tenting last night on a campsite that in 1811 was within gunshot sound of the battle of Tippecanoe, THE TRIBUNE canoeists said good-by to the lovely Tippecanoe river this morning and sallied forth upon the broad Wabash, thus touching in the same morning these two famous streams which are linked together in early American history.

When the fleet of green canoes, paddled by the Scouts, who are almost as coppery skinned as the Indian first settlers of this region, swung out of the mouth of the Tippecanoe and started down the Wabash, the boys let go a few war whoops of the 1811 variety and then dug in their paddles for the stretch to Lafayette.

Coming Home Today.

Tonight the Chicago youngsters who make up this canoeing expedition will spend their last night beneath canvas, because tomorrow afternoon they leave for Chicago at 2:27 o'clock over the Monon route, arriving in the city at 5:30 o'clock standard time or 6:30 Chicago time.

This morning's trip, covering just a short stretch of the Tippecanoe and the Wabash down to Lafayette, was a dandy. Most of the paddling was done before the hot July sun could bear down very hard, since Armin Hess, the expedition's official bugler, had tooted his tin horn at 4:30 o'clock instead of 5:30, as the program specified. When the irate paddlers learned how they had been tricked plots against the poor bugler were quickly hatched so that he and his tin horn could make no more errors which might cut off an hour's sleep.

Most of the boys slept out without tents last night, thus demonstrating how easy this camp business is if you know how. They simply made up their blanket beds on the grass in a grove of oak trees overlooking the Tippecanoe. When it came time to check out this morning, there wasn't much to do but eat breakfast, roll up the packs, and chuck them in the canoes.

Paddle a While, Then Wade.

Before reaching the Wabash, the Scouts had several more chances to combine paddle work with a little wading, because the river is so low that it was impossible to get a loaded canoe through some of the riffles.

When a swift, shallow riffle appeared everybody stepped out and waded until water deep enough to float the ships was found. So in the cool of the morning the young canoeists followed the winding shaded channel of the Tippecanoe, alternately wading and paddling until the wider, deeper Wabash was reached.

A heavy program is ahead of the Scouts before they take the train home tomorrow. The Lafayette Scout council has invited the party to camp tonight at Cary camp, about five miles from town. The Chicago boys had the whole place to themselves, as it has not been opened for the 1930 season. E. L. Wheeler, chief of the local Scout organization; Frank M. Cary, donor of the camp which bears his name; H. H. Heimlich of the Lafayette Journal and Courier, and others interested in the Scout organization here have arranged a tour of the Tippecanoe battle field for early tomorrow morning.

Will Hear Story of Battle.

Cars will be provided for the boys so that they can see a number of interesting places which are associated with the early French, British and American occupation of this territory. At the Tippecanoe battle field the Chicago lads will be told the story of the battle in a ten minute talk. From there the party will go down the Wabash to the site of old Fort Ouiatenon, the picturesque trading post and fortified blockhouse built by the French. This place has been rebuilt so the boys will see what an old frontier trading post looked like some 200 years ago.

If time permits the Lafayette hosts will take the young canoeists to the historical museum, where special attention will be given to Wabash historical relics. With this program the Chicago Scouts will learn a lot about the early days down here on the banks of the Wabash.

MOTORS—TRAFFIC—HIGHWAYS

BETTER URBAN AUTO ROADS IS NEXT PROBLEM

Cities Are Neglected for Rural Votes.

BY HAL FOUST.

The first quarter century of automobiles has been attended by the development of the rural road. Dirt trails have been converted into hard surfaced speedways. Fifty and sixty miles an hour have become common touring speeds.

The next quarter century will be devoted to improving traffic facilities in cities and villages, especially in large centers of population such as the Chicago metropolitan area. The need for urban improvements is becoming more generally recognized, and, with the drift of population from the country to the city, the large centers are gaining sufficient political power to get what they seek.

Votes Get Roads.

Twenty-five years ago, highway officials concentrated efforts upon the rural roads because there was the greatest need for improvement. A large portion of the mileage between cities was impassable much of the time. Buggies sank deep in sand in dry weather and deep in mud in wet. The infant automobile was almost helpless.

This original concentration of effort upon the rural roads was for reasons practical. It was continued, at the expense or neglect of cities, for reasons political. The farmer vote controlled state politics. Pavements were built where they counted most in votes.

Today, the pleasure, convenience and economic benefits of fast rural motor travel are lost, to a large measure, by the obstructions and hazards in municipalities. The village of 500 population drags traffic down to twenty or thirty miles an hour; the town of 1,500 has stop lights and parking on the state highway; and the city of 3,300,000 has narrow congested streets with heavy and frequent currents of cross traffic.

The Modern Migration.

There are reasons practical why the cities should now receive a larger share of benefits from the highway funds. And there are reasons political why the cities are going to get what they want. The modern migration is from the farm to town and from the town to the city.

The 1930 census estimates list Chicago at 3,375,235 and Illinois at 7,630,-[illegible]. The votes in the northern section of Illinois are worth consideration by any state administration in planning its highway program.

Gov. Emmerson saw and appreciated this situation. He approved a program for the state to spend $19,-000,000 in 1930 and 1931 on roads in the metropolitan area bounded by state route 22. Most of the money is for widening of radial highways within approximately thirty-five miles of Chicago. Although this program is not as much as the area is entitled to—it still is paying much more in taxes than it is receiving from the state—yet it is more consideration from a state administration than the metropolitan district received in many years.

1932, '33 Improvements.

For 1932 and 1933 the Chicago Motor club is campaigning for the widening and otherwise improving of the radial highways for approximately 100 miles from Chicago. The program, which will be presented at the next session of the legislature, calls for 864 miles of widening and sixty-three grade separations for this larger metropolitan district.

The district has a large majority of the state's population and a small majority in the general assembly, notwithstanding the low representation due to the failure of legislature to reapportion the state in accordance with the constitution. The club's program is receiving a warm approval from civic leaders and public officials in cities around Chicago. It seems to stand a good chance of being adopted by the legislature.

With Gov. Emmerson's 1930 and 1931 program completed and with the motor club's 1932 and 1933 program finished, there will be a great improvement in the traffic situation but there will still remain the weakest link in the metropolitan highway system, the hazardous and slow passage through municipalities.

High Speed Streets Needed.

The requirement for Chicago is obvious, a system of highway speed thoroughfares with continuous grade separation, without cross traffic of either vehicles or pedestrians. It would save thirty minutes or more in the drive from the Fox river and the Rock river valleys, for example. It would save twenty minutes or more for downtown workers in the trip to and from home.

The state can help Chicago build such super boulevards as soon as it stops spending Chicago motorists' money on rural roads of secondary importance downstate, construction of which was pledged by the Len Smau bond issue program. The federal government in time will probably contribute heavily toward the cost of important urban links for interstate commerce, just as the government now aids in building miles of roads of secondary importance.

"The Chicago Motor club," said Charles M. Hayes, president, "would favor a program for the state to concentrate its road taxes collected from this area upon the construction of super boulevards for Chicago, broad streets with continuous grade separation from the boundary of the metropolitan district to the loop.

Trend in Right Direction.

"Such construction would be of benefit to a wide area. But I'm sure such a program would be rejected by the 1931 session of legislature. The motor club, in drafting a program for consideration by the next assembly, spread the improvement over an area sufficiently broad that it will be of obvious benefit to a majority of the state's senatorial districts."

The highway plan for the future in towns and villages has not received the attention it deserves. The trend is in the right direction, however. Through traffic is being taken off business streets and away from school houses, although there are still many towns that lack this improvement.

Some of the later highways have been built with a by pass around villages. This has been of great benefit to both local and through traffic, keeping them seperated, but it is not the permanent answer to the problem.

Cross Traffic Increased.

Towns grow around the by pass route, increasing the cross traffic of vehicles and pedestrians. There are some villages where the growth has left the railroad of its original site and moved to the highway by pass since motor transportation has become more important to the communities than rail commerce. This leaves the by passes as longer routes with none of the original benefits of their extra miles.

Ultimately, and not so far in the future, continuous grade separations will be required for express motor traffic through villages as well as big cities.

NORTH-LAKE GRADE CROSSING

This is the state's plan for a grade separation at North avenue and Lake street, in Elmhurst. Construction is delayed indefinitely because, it is charged, the owners of property needed for the structure are demanding an excessive price, taking advantage of the urgent need for the improvement to relieve a bad traffic congestion point. Condemnation proceedings were started last week.

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

AROUND THE LAKE.

Chicago, July 9.—This letter might be of interest to a few of the thousand Chicago motorists planning a trip around Lake Michigan.

The highways are in splendid condition now. If Chicago's poorest streets were as good as the few detours we would have no kick.

The trip can be made very easily in five days, with plenty of time for stopovers. For the tourist will surely want to see the boats go through the locks at Sault Ste. Marie. Almost three hundred daily pass through the locks. Then the Big Springs, a short distance off route U. S. 2, between the towns of Manistique and Cook. The "Big Spring" is amazingly wonderful and beautiful, and must be seen to be appreciated.

If you are driving north through Wisconsin on route U. S. 41, don't forget anything over 45 miles per hour is considered reckless driving by the motor cop in Abrams.

It is a pleasure to drive through the state of Michigan, and its highway rules are a fine example for the other states to follow. A few of the state's traffic regulations are as follows:

Vehicles must not be driven at an unreasonable rate of speed, with due regard to traffic, surface, width of highway, and not greater than will permit stopping in the clear distance ahead. In town the limit is twenty per. Parking on the highway pavement is not permitted. License plates must be visible and clean. Brakes must be adequate to control the movement and hold the car. Horns must be audible for at least 200 feet; sirens, exhaust and spark plug whistles are prohibited.

Spotlights are permitted if they are not placed higher than the center of the windshield, and must shine down to the right.

Since some windshield posters have the earmarks of a dirty crack, and cast some unwelcome reflections on the United States customs men and revenue agents, the state of Michigan's newest law says all windows and windshields must be free from signs, posters, or any other nontransparent material, or the penalty is a fine of $25. D. A.

SPEED TRAPS.

Chicago, July 11.—Now that summer has come again, the tired city toiler is automobiling out of town for relaxation from business cares. He imagines he can be less alert and gain a little rest. But such is far from true. His pocketbook is in more danger than in this supposedly wicked city.

Rural police seeking money are enforcing out of date laws, well knowing that they are not enforced generally, but using them for their own convenience. Send to Springfield for a complete copy of motor vehicle laws [free], and show the yokels that the city man is smarter than they are.

These fellows shun publicity. If you tell them you will write to THE TRIBUNE they commence to back up. Try to get the officer's correct name. I have had them change it a little to throw you off the track, especially if they think you are going to make a complaint. Write in to THE TRIBUNE when any new rackets are pulled, so we can all get wise to them—and thanks for the tip about North avenue. You folks from other states look out and don't go over 45 miles per hour. Surrounding states have no limit, so you are liable to be swindled. According to the newspapers, the legislator responsible for this law said he merely put 45 miles in it, but intended that people should go faster. However good his intentions were, what is in the law is what is enforced. There are no warning signs on the main entrances to the state. There are a few signs, but they are miles away from the state line and give plenty of opportunity for arrest before you can see them. L. C. BENNETT.

WANTS ROADS WIDENED.

Tucson, Ariz, July 7.—It is with great interest and hearty approval that I note that THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and the Chicago Motor club sponsor the construction of highways forty feet or more in width. As a former resident of the middle west and having motored through Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, and Michigan last summer I fully realize the great safety and time saving possibilities in wide highways.

We of the far west are in sore need of such arteries of communication. While our traffic is not nearly of such heavy volume as that of the middle west, it is needless to state that a greater percentage of accidents occur on our narow highways each year than through the great lakes regions. With the yearly increase in motor car registration it is highly imperative that a champion of better roads puts in an appearance.

The volume of motor car fatalities is a disgrace to our nation and it is the solemn duty of every law abiding citizen to expend serious thought on the matter. Better roads is the first and greatest move toward safe motoring. Let every man support it and perhaps we will soon see the day when motor accidents are reduced to a negligible figure.

More power to THE TRIBUNE and the Chicago Motor club. FREDERICK GATES.

WEST BOULEVARD SIGNS.

Chicago, July 10.—I would like to call your attention to the fact that new signs are needed along Warren boulevard and Washington boulevard in the west park system, to notify the motorists of the one one way regulation. Very few motorists who do not travel this route regularly know that these are one way drives and the old signs which are now in place are almost illegible.

These signs are particularly needed at such important cross streets as Ashland avenue, Sacramento avenue, and Oakley boulevard. JOSEPH HERRIN.

ONE WAY ON DEARBORN.

Chicago, July 8.—Dearborn street is being widened and repaved. According to my understanding, the width to be added to Dearborn street is not to be very great. Therefore, I would like to offer one suggestion for the regulation of traffic when this street is opened. Would it not be a good idea to make Dearborn street, between North avenue and Kinzie street, one way southbound in the morning and one way northbound in the evening?

This street would not be wide enough even with the widening to permit traffic to move freely in both directions. For this reason, I am offering this suggestion for the consideration of the authorities. A. S. WHITE.

CHILDREN IN STREETS.

Chicago, July 7.—Now that vacation time is here, I have noticed that children more than ever are playing in the streets. They seem to prefer the streets as a playground rather than their own backyards. I have seen a ball game going on in the middle of the street with a vacant lot or city playground only a block or two away.

It should be brought forcibly to the minds of parents that they should educate their children against this dangerous practice. (MRS.) ROWENA DORN.

WANTS TRAFFIC LIGHTS.

Chicago, July 8.—Would you please use your powerful influence to have a stop and go light placed at 1st avenue and Roosevelt road in Maywood? Both of these highways are wide and smooth and invite high speed traffic. (MRS.) EDNA SHEFFIELD.

VARIOUS TRAFFIC LIGHTS.

Chicago, July 9.—Why is it that the colors used in stop and go lights vary in different parts of the city? Some places just red and green are used. In other places, we find a green light used with two red lights. Some signals show an orange light both before and after the green and some show it only following the green and not following the red. The latter system seems to me to be the most sensible. Why can't the various traffic authorities in Chicago get together and establish a definite practice in this regard? L. N. T.

INCUMBENTS OF C. A. T. A. GAIN RE-ELECTIONS

Officers of the Chicago Automobile Trade association for 1930-'31 were elected by the board of directors at a meeting held recently. All officers of the last year were reëlected, as follows:

President, J. R. Histed, president and general manager, Hudson Motor Company of Illinois; vice president, R. G. Tiffany, general manager, Chicago branch, Cadillac Motor Car company; secretary, H. A. Wehmeier, vice president and general manager, Community Motors, Inc.; treasurer, Thomas J. Hay, president, Thomas J. Hay, Inc.

SUMMER MONTHS TAKE BIG TOLL IN CHILDREN'S LIVES

Autoists Asked to Use Unusual Care.

July and August are months that take a heavy toll of children killed by automobiles. The school vacation puts more boys and girls on the streets and the warm weather brings out more motorists. As a consequence, these two months last year, for example, took thirty-eight lives of the 166 children killed by cars in Chicago during the entire year.

During the school semester the children are in their classrooms part of the day. In going to and from their homes, they have the influence of the safety lessons taught by motor clubs in coöperation with the board of education. They are away from this influence during the vacation period.

Secretary of Commerce Lamont, at the meeting this spring of the national conference on street and highway safety, paid tribute to the safety education being carried on in the schools.

Child Fatalities Down.

"In seven years," he said, "while adult fatalities were more than doubling, the deaths of children from automobiles has increased less than 25 per cent. In 1922 children made up more than 29 per cent of the motor toll; in 1928, less than 20 per cent.

"Furthermore, 1928 registered an actual decrease in the number of children killed as compared with the previous year, and partial returns for 1929 indicate a still further decrease.

"This improvement is largely attributed to safety education in the schools and to the successful operation of schoolboy patrols."

The Chicago Motor club's safety department reports that for the first five months of 1930 there was an increase of 28 per cent in the number of adults killed by automobiles, as compared with the same period of 1929, whereas there was a decrease of 18 per cent in child fatalities.

Safety Education.

"This safety education should be carried on by the parents," said Charles M. Hayes, president of the motor club. "In fact, it should be started well before the child reaches the school age. Parents can aid greatly in reducing the juvenile toll by keeping their boys and girls from playing in the street and by teaching them caution in crossing pavements.

"But the parents' duty does not detract from the responsibility of the motoring public. It behooves every driver to exercise more than ordinary caution in approaching a child in the street or on the curb. Because the child does not have mature judgment does not excuse a motorist from practicing unusual care to avoid an accident.

"Let every one do his share to prevent thirty-eight children from being killed by automobiles on the streets of Chicago this summer."

NEWS AND VIEWS

Studebaker last week announced new models, incorporating a new engineering device known as free wheeling. When pressure is released suddenly from the accelerator, the engine idles and the car coasts free of the drag from the motor. Gears may be shifted from high to second and from second to high at any speed without touching the clutch. The clutch is used only for starting and reversing. When the use of the engine as a braking medium is desired, such as in descending hills, a touch of the shift lever places the car in conventional gear and suspends the free wheeling for as long as the driver desires. The new models also have more powerful engines and longer wheel bases.

Harry W. Cooper, accessory pioneer of Chicago's automobile row, has opened a super service station at 22d street and Indiana avenue, carrying a full line of accessories and selling gasoline, oil, grease, tire service, brake testing, storage and parking.

The Universal Credit company, Ford's financing organization, is observing its second anniversary. It has handled business in excess of $425,-000,000 for 800,000 time purchasers of Fords.

W. F. Whitney, 2412 South Michigan avenue, has been named distributor in the Chicago territory for the Ruxton front wheel drive.

PHILIPPINES HAVE 7,000 MI. OF AUTO ROADS

Puts Them Ahead of Any Other Oriental Country.

BY FORD WILKINS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANILA. — [Special Correspondence.]—Seven thousand miles of good motor roads put the Philippine islands ahead of any other oriental country in modern motor transportation. There are more than 30,000 motor vehicles in the Philippines, ranging from the most deplorable buses of ancient vintage and doubtful stability to the high powered limousines and sport roadsters that parade Manila's Dewey boulevard at the sunset hour.

Most of the automobiles are owned in Manila, Cebu, Iloilo, and a few of the larger provincial centers, but they manage to reach almost every nook and corner of the archipelago over a system of roads ranging from fair to excellent. In 1924 the Philippines had only 13,140 registered motor vehicles.

Eighty to ninety per cent of the automobiles that ply Philippine highways are of American manufacture. There are only a few of British, French, and Italian origin, and none is manufactured in the orient.

The original cost of a machine is high. Added to the expense of bringing a car 7,000 miles across the Pacific ocean in a ship, there are numerous local levies, including sales and luxury taxes, which boost the sale price to about a third more than the same car costs in the United States.

Gasoline Is 27 Cents.

Gasoline sells at the equivalent of about 27 cents a gallon. Filling stations are quite modern although far less frequently encountered than in the United States.

The high cost of motoring is further complicated by the necessity for hiring a chauffeur. Almost nobody drives his own car. A chauffeur can be hired for anywhere from 30 to 60 pesos a month, and their number is legion, driving a car being considered a comparatively high class occupation, one step above a muchacho or house boy.

Even the poorest of those who own cars generally manage to hire a chauffeur and ride in the back seat. An independent person who refuses to hire a chauffeur incurs the wrath of the Chauffeurs' union, and he is apt to find a nail sticking in his tire when he comes out of the movies at night.

Motoring is a pleasure almost anywhere in the Philippines. The countryside is beautiful, and comparatively unmarred by billboards. The roads are good, well built and well maintained. In 1904, when the late William Howard Taft was civil governor of the islands, there were almost no roads at all. W. Cameron Forbes, one of his successors in office, is really responsible for starting the road system that prevails now. In fact, he bears the name "Caminero" Forbes in the Philippines. In Spanish "caminero" means road mender.

The Zig-Zag Trail.

Forbes saw the need of establishing communication in the provinces, and he put the department of public works on the job building roads. The famous Zig-Zag mountain trail to Baguio, one of the most beautiful roads in the world, was his conception.

First class Philippine roads are of good sound macadam construction, surfaced with fine gravel or shell. The average width of the surfaced portion is 23 feet.

Roads are maintained partly through insular government aid and partly by the municipalities and provinces. Part of the high cost of gasoline is on account of the gasoline tax imposed by the government, which is divided among the provinces for road maintenance. Maintenance is almost entirely done by man labor, using the "caminera" system.

A "caminero" wears brilliant red pants and a blue jacket and adds not a little color to the tropical scenery. Each laborer has one kilometer of road for which he is responsible. He repairs bad spots and is seen every day of the year plying a broom, keeping the margins clean and neat and pushing the dust back into the center of the road.

Little Modern Machinery.

Most road construction in the Philippines is done by the task system. Sub-grade work is let under contract by the government or by the province to a Fillipino who hires his roadmakers and does the work for 25 centavos a cubic meter. Comparatively little modern machinery is used in road construction. Grading is laboriously done with pick and shovel.

Included in the 7,000 miles of Philippine roadways are first and second class roads only. The second class highways are good excepting in the rainy season, when they sometimes become impassable. In addition there are more than 3,000 miles of mountain trails where only horses may travel.

The motorbus business is highly developed in the islands. There are more than 7,000 passenger buses in operation. A good percentage of them are broken down traps run by independent operators who are considered a menace to highway safety. It is almost impossible to take a 50 mile motor trip in the Philippines without passing half a dozen dingy buses at the side of the road with passengers standing around idly and the driver underneath the machine fixing something. Wrecks are not infrequent, although the slow tempo of motor traffic keeps the death toll pretty low.

The major portion of the bus business is highly organized and well run. There are a dozen or more large bus companies operating in the islands, covering almost every civilized corner of the archipelago. The buses are not of the de luxe type. They are large open affairs seating about 20 passengers on the average.

Traffic rules in the provinvial towns are very strict, but not very well enforced. The speed limit in many municipalities is eight or ten kilometers an hour, an impossibly low rate.

MORELAND WILL FIGHT BRIDGE EVIL IF ELECTED

Contesting Nomination of Michaelson.

James C. Moreland, congressional aspirant from the Seventh district, yesterday issued a statement on Chicago's bridge nuisance, pledging his support, if elected in November, to the fight for the relief of thousands of motorists and pedestrians who are daily delayed by the passage of river craft. He is contesting the Republican nomination claimed by Congressman M. A. Michaelson, who is perhaps best known as the dry voting legislator whose wardrobe trunks leaked on their return from Cuba last winter.

Mr. Moreland's statement reads as follows:

"If the old basic law of the 'greatest good for the greatest number' is applied to the present 'bridge nuisance,' the bridges over the Chicago river will be closed to such craft as are unable to pass beneath the structures, or at least they will be regulated so as to keep them closed during the hours that the bridges are most used by autos and pedestrians.

Bridge Traffic Important.

"There can be no denial of the fact that at the present time the traffic over the bridges is of more importance than that beneath them, and that the rights of the people whose tax money build and maintain the bridges must be considered and safeguarded.

"There are few people in Chicago who have not been victims of the 'bridge nuisance.' Long lines of motor cars, extending for many blocks, must stand while the bridge is lifted or swung and a boat drifts lazily by; thousands of people (some of whom have important business) and many commercial vehicles are kept waiting for the passage of a load of sand or an empty boat.

"There are seven bridges between the mouth of the Chicago river and the forks where the river diverges into the north and south branches. On the north branch there are seventeen additional bridges to Belmont avenue, and the south branch has a total of twenty-two bridges without counting the two over 'Bubbly creek.'

"For a boat to make the trip from the mouth of the river to Belmont avenue on the north branch, it is necessary to lift or swing twenty-four bridges and a like number on the return trip. The one boat causes the opening of forty-eight bridges for the round trip.

Wants Real Harbor.

"Speed the day when Chicago can have a real harbor where the large boats will be unloaded and the freight will be relayed up the river if desired in fast low boats that will have no need to whistle for the bridge, and the rest of us human beings will be permitted to proceed to our various places of business without interruption. That would certainly be the desirable thing both from the citizen's point of view and also from that of the boat owner if he would but consider that his boat has been released from that slow and hazardous trip up or down the river.

"I am a firm believer in the right of the people to decide questions of public policy. My primary campaign was based upon that principle, and I pledged myself to abide by the wishes of my constituents in every matter concerning them. I am convinced that they are overwhelmingly in favor of the closing of the bridges during the hours that the motor traffic uses them, and therefore, as their representative, I shall exert every effort to bring about this reform if I am fortunate enough to be elected in November."

Three nominees running against sitting congressmen have not responded to requests for statements on this bridge question. They are: Harry Baker [Dem.], First district; Frank V. Kara [Rep.], Fifth district, and Thomas Rohan [Dem.], Ninth district.

ALLIED TRUCK INTERESTS BAND TOGETHER HERE

The Allied Motor Truck Interests of Illinois was organized recently with S. U. Hooper, vice president of a large furniture and carpet company, as its head. It is described as a "statewide council of associations interested in the operation of commercial motor vehicles."

The motor freight industry, which has grown to tremendous size at a tender age, is organizing to protect itself from its internal ills and from external attacks.

The council aims to win public good will [and thereby protection from unfair regulation and taxation] by correcting the bad driving of a minority of the chauffeurs who abuse the advantage in traffic of the weight of their vehicles; by eliminating the overloading that breaks pavements, especially on hard tires; by suppressing night noises on the countryside from poorly kept machines, and by educating the public to an appreciation of the saving in the cost of living from this economical method of short haul.

"It has long been felt," said Mr. Hooper, "that an organization of this character could do much work of real and lasting benefit. There are many things that can be done and many special advantages in presenting a unified front in the interests of constructive motor truck legislation, fair taxation, safety on the streets and highways, and the good will that careful, courteous driving produces on the part of the public.

"We sometimes feel that the motor truck comes in for more than its just share of abuse. It is often criticized unthinkingly. My experience with motor truck drivers has shown me that the majority of them take pride in keeping their equipment in good condition and repair. A wholesome pride such as this goes hand in hand with a natural interest in the welfare of their employers, and these conditions in turn cannot but help instill proper consideration for other motor vehicles as well as pedestrians.

"Considerable good work has been done in the past along these lines. More can be done with mutual benefit to the public and motor truck interests. Proper, safe and courteous driving pays dividends in reducing operating costs and good will."

LONG ENDURANCE FLIGHTS MAKING AIR CONTRIBUTION

Proving Stability of Plane Engines.

BY ROBERT WOOD.

While there may be some who regard refueling endurance flying as a sublimated variant of flag pole sitting or marathon dancing the repeated efforts at boosting the world record for sustained flying have made one important contribution to aviation. They prove the inherent stability of aircraft motors built by reputable manufacturers.

The Hunter brothers in their flight over Sky Harbor showed that an airplane engine with only casual repair is capable of running for 23 days without once missing fire. After over 38,000,000 revolutions the motor of the City of Chicago was still turning over when John and Kenneth Hunter ended their successful attempt to break the world's record.

Why Do Motors Fail?

The Hunter boys previously attempted to break the record and piled up 200 hours before coming down. But they were forced to land because of adverse weather, not because of engine failure. The St. Louis Robin, previous record holder for endurance flying, stayed in the air 17½ days and its motor was still running evenly when its pilots were ordered to land.

These repeated testimonials to the stuff of which good motors are made have given rise to the question: "If airplane motors are able to keep running for weeks at a time without care why is it that the records of passenger flying show so many cases of motor failure?"

It is admitted that some engine failures cannot be prevented by any amount of care. No engine is infallible. The question, nevertheless, seems a fair one.

Gossip in flying circles frequently brings to light cases in which motor failure resulted from iron filings in gas lines, of accidents resulting from the failure of a motor which was known to be faltering when the plane took off, of make shift repair, which later resulted in accidents. All accidents arising from these and similar causes indicate the failure of ground personnel in giving proper care to motors.

Southern Cross' Proof.

Operators are still having difficulty in impressing upon the ground personnel that the slightest mistake or oversight in the maintenance of airplane motors may result in disaster in the air.

Proof that motors, properly cared for, are inherently reliable is not lacking. This point has been dramatically brought out in the history of the Southern Cross. Even back in 1928 when Kingsford-Smith started his flight across the Pacific, the motors of that plane were "second hand." And in the last two years that plane has kept on making aviation history with the same motors, climaxing a glorious career with its latest flight across the north Atlantic from Ireland to New York. When Kingsford-Smith stopped in Chicago recently he declared that "the old motors are still as good as ever." Asked the secret of their long life, he said:

"They were good motors in the first place, and we always took good care of them."

Fog Flying Hazardous.

Perhaps the most valuable contribution of the last flight of the Southern Cross was its demonstration that an airplane, in the hands of an expert crew may be navigated safely through fog. For the greater portion of the flight from Ireland to Newfoundland, the Southern Cross was enveloped in blinding fog, yet the combined skill of a trained pilot, navigator and radio operator brought it safely through.

Fog flying, however, is still a hazardous undertaking for any but the best of pilots and unquestionably dangerous for scheduled air passenger flying. Despite these dangers there are still pilots who will attempt to push their way through perilous fogs with a load of passengers aboard.

While there are no comprehensive records showing the number of planes that have met disaster through attempting to flying in weather which may be termed impossible for passenger flying, there are a number of outstanding examples which bring out the perils of such attempts.

Poor Flying Weather.

The crash of the Transcontinental Air Transport-Maddox Ford plane near San Clementi, Cal., was attributed to fog and rain which prevented the pilot from judging his distance from the ground. Two other planes started from Agua Caliente to Los Angeles about the time the T. A. T. plane took off, but they turned back on account of the weather.

The crash of another T. A. T. plane on Mount Taylor when the pilot was lost in fog was another pure case of attempting to fly in impossible flying weather. And so was the more recent crash of a Colonial airways plane at Jersey City when the ship, trying to find its way through fog, tangled in wires and crashed. Bad weather was forecast before the plane left Boston on its way to New York.

PILOTS TO LEARN TO SHOOT WITH CAMERA RIFLES

DAYTON.—Army pilots will soon be taking their planes off the ground here and after climbing several hundred feet engage in aerial combat by "shooting" at each other and even though direct hits are made, no one will be hurt.

The secret is that a new gun camera is being used in the army air corps for training pilots in the firing of machine guns upon other aircraft. The gunner aims the camera as he would a gun, but instead of firing, a picture is made which shows whether a hit or a miss would have resulted had he fired the gun.

The steel parts of the gun are of stainless steel, and this is probably the first instrument of its kind incorporating stainless steel ball bearings.

QUESTIONS

Questions relating to aviation are answered in this section by Maj. R. W. Schroeder, famous world was flyer, who formerly held the world's altitude record. Inquiries should be addressed to the Aviation Department, Chicago Tribune, Chicago.

Q.—I am a student in high school and I plan to take up aviation as a life work. I want to get ground work in the engineering part of aeronautics. What would you advise?—H. F., Princeton, Ill.

A.—Go to a university and get a good basic education specializing in engineering. There are a number of the larger universities which now offer thorough courses in aeronautical engineering. Such a course will provide a guide for you to whatever outside study you care to make. You will, of course, want to learn to fly. Be sure when you do that you learn from good hands for, while flying is a pretty easy trick to learn, it should, like anything else, be learned thoroughly.

Q.—What is a tail slide? Is it the same as a tail spin?—V. A., Chicago.

A.—The tail slide is the backward and downward motion, tail first, which certain airplanes may be made to take momentarily after having been brought into a stalling position by a steep climb. In a tail spin the motor of the plane goes down first.

Q.—Can you give me the names and addresses of all the reliable glider clubs located in the city or a reasonable distance from it?—J. G., Chicago.

A.—You can get this information from Maj. Reed Landis. Address him at 26 East Huron street, Chicago.

Q.—I want to make a relief map of the municipal airport in Chicago for our class in school. Where can I get a good map to work from?—J. B., Joliet, Ill.

A.—Write Walter W. Wright, superintendent of parks, playgrounds and aviation for the city of Chicago. Address the letter to him at the city hall, Chicago.

Q.—I read in the paper that the Los Angeles and maybe the Graf Zeppelin are coming here for the national air races. Where will they put them when they land?—E. R. C., Elgin.

A.—The dirigibles will probably be moored to a portable mast. They will probably arrive here some time during the afternoon, float around until evening, and land about the end of the day's program. There will be a large ground crew to handle the smaller blimps which will be here all through the races and this crew will help in landing the big ships. The stub mast will probably be erected on the flying field and the dirigibles will stay here overnight, taking off again the next morning before the race program starts.

Q.—Is there any way I can take part in the national air races when they are held in Chicago?—T. C. L., Chicago.

A.—Get in touch with Cliff Henderson, manager of the races. His headquarters are on the second floor of the Sherman hotel. There will be a number of attendants, gate keepers, messengers, and a large ground crew for visiting dirigibles needed and perhaps Mr. Henderson will be able to find something for you.

Q.—What is the make of the "mystery ship" that took part in several races this year?—McL. C., Chicago.

A.—The mystery ship, so called, is a low wing Travelair monoplane. It established a speed around a closed course of 194 miles an hour last year. This ship will be in Chicago, at Curtiss field, on July 4.

BUSINESS HERE FIRST 6 MONTHS 9 PER CENT OFF

Credit Association Makes Survey of Conditions.

Business in the Chicago area was 9% slower during the first six months of 1930 than during the corresponding period of 1929, according to a survey which was made by the Chicago Association of Credit Men among manufacturers and wholesalers in the Chicago metropolitan area. The basis for the statement made was a comparative check of volume of sales, collection, and production during the first half of the year, although two-thirds of those interviewed reported that the volume of sales was smaller during the first six months of 1930 than during the same period of 1928. Of those reporting 28½ per cent found a greater volume of sales and 4.9 per cent reported the same amount of sales.

A less favorable comparison is made with the first six months of 1928. Sales during 1930 were reported smaller by 73.6 per cent, the same by 5.4 per cent, while only 21 per cent reported greater sales during the first six months of 1930 than during the corresponding period of 1928.

Smaller Collections.

Collections were more difficult for 45 per cent of those interviewed, in comparison with the first six months of 1929. Thirty per cent reported improved collections and 25 per cent the same. Comparing the first six months period of 1930 with the corresponding period of 1928 58.8 per cent reported smaller collections for 1930 as compared with 1928; 29.4 per cent reported better collections for the same period and 11.8 per cent reported collections the same.

Production during the last six months was smaller or 50 per cent than during the same period of 1929, while 42.8 per cent reported greater production, and 7.2 per cent the same. Production during the last six months was smaller, according to 72.3 per cent, when compared with the first six months of 1928, while 27.7 per cent reported greater production.

An upturn in business in the next three months is predicted by 53.3 per cent of the manufacturers and wholesalers interviewed. A greater degree of optimism is expressed in regard to the future of business within the next few months, 95 per cent of those interviewed declared that they expected business to make an improvement before the last half of 1929.

Some Optimists Found.

There are likewise optimists to be found in comparing the expected business during 1930 with the business done in the last six months of 1928. This number is 38.4 per cent of those interviewed. Those who do not expect business during the next six months to come up to the last half of 1928 total 46½ per cent. Those who expect business to be the same for the two periods are 15.5 per cent.

An optimistic view toward the next six months is recorded in the fact that 55.5 per cent of the manufacturers have production schedules that will be greater during the last six months than during the preceding six months of 1930.

Although advanced orders on the books July 1 were smaller for 46.1 per cent of the manufacturers and wholesalers included in the survey, 30.9 per cent reported a larger number of advance orders than were on the books July 1, 1929. Twenty-three per cent reported the same amount of orders. The advance orders are considerably smaller when compared with the advance orders on the books July 1, 1928. Finally 70.1 per cent reported smaller orders, and 29.9 per cent larger volume.

SAYS FIRE LOSSES INCREASE DURING TRADE DEFLATION

A fourteen million dollar increase in fire losses in this country during the first five months of 1930, as reported by the National Board of Fire Underwriters, is additional proof that such fire losses invariably increase when general business enters a period of depression, according to Frederick I. Ettlinger, president of the Empire Fire Insurance company of Brooklyn.

"A graph chart of the past decade will show definitely that this trend of fire loss totals per year is in reverse ratio to the upward or downward trend of general business prosperity. For instance, during the years of our greatest prosperity, that is, from early in 1926 to the latter months of 1929—fire insurance losses have shown an annual decrease, with losses for 1929 approximately $100,000,000 less than for 1926.

"On the other hand, the year 1920, which bore the brunt of the nearest previous depression period, suffered a fire loss increase of more than $125,000,000."

June sales of the John R. Thompson company were $1,224,681, a decrease of $88,230 as compared with June, 1929, when four more houses were operating in the restaurant chain. For the first six months of 1930 the company reported sales totaling $7,601,989, against $7,857,617 in the first half of 1929, a decrease of $255,628 with four fewer houses operating than a year ago.

COTTON MOVES HIGHER

Higher cables from Liverpool, combined with continued dry hot weather over a large part of the belt yesterday, with the exception of parts of Texas where there were showers, brought a covering movement and higher prices. Weekly trade reports were rather better; with prices firmer.

Liverpool, however, closed 12 to 13 points lower despite the higher opening, but failed to affect American markets, which closed with new crop futures in Chicago 11@15 points higher, and other markets up 1@2 points. Spots were up 10 points with New Orleans 12.70c; New York, 13.20c; Galveston, 12.60c, and Houston, 12.40c. Prices follow:

Investment Opportunities of a Decade
Seven Companies Analyzed
Market conditions for the past two months have so thoroughly deflated prices in a great many instances as to afford excellent opportunities for the prudent investor to acquire sound stocks on an attractive income basis. A wise choice in securities, at this time, is bound to result in substantial enhancement in values later on.
Seven companies offering the above opportunities, together with other important recommendations appear in the

GREATEST BANK HOLDING CONCERN TO CUT DIVIDEND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 12.—The annual report of Transamerica corporation, the world's largest bank holding company, issued today to its 185,000 stockholders, shows that its assets, consisting predominantly of bank holdings, totaled $1,167,116,000 on Dec. 31, 1929, the end of its fiscal year.

The report covers the various financial, industrial, and commercial holdings of the corporation in this country and abroad. It discloses that its consolidated net profit for 1929 was $67,316,000, equivalent to approximately $3 a share on the stock outstanding on Dec. 31. There were outstanding on June 30 approximately 24,000,000 shares of $25 par value each.

The report declares that the company's management will recommend to the board of directors that the October quarterly dividend be cut to 25 cents a share, compared with the present quarterly rate of 40 cents a share. The corporation will distribute a 40 cent dividend on July 25, together with a 3 per cent stock dividend declared last March.

An extra stock dividend of 1 per cent each were also paid in January, 1930, and October, 1929, and a 150 per cent stock dividend was paid in September, 1929. The policy of the corporation in the future will be to declare extra stock dividends in round amounts, instead of quarterly as heretofore, the directors have indicated

Sales of Trans-American corporation reached tremendous proportions today on the San Francisco and Los Angeles stock exchanges when the stock fell to a new all time low of 20⅜.

San Francisco brokers handled 111,000 shares during the three and a half hour session, while in Los Angeles 35,800 shares changed hands.

Armour & Co., in its review of general packing house trade conditions, says:

"Back from its holiday week-end, the public early this week displayed the power of its demand for meat, buying almost all kinds in good volume, at firm to higher prices. With only a moderate amount on sale, dressed lamb showed a good clearance at satisfactory prices, live markets holding about steady. Beef showed some improvement under the influence of lighter supplies."

Forward Movement of High Grade Issues Bond Market Feature

PUBLIC FANCY IN LONDON TURNING TO STOCKS AGAIN

Interest Continues Despite Holidays.

BY SIDNEY CAVE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 12.—Concrete signs are abundantly evident of the return of public interest to the London stock markets. There was a decided expansion in nearly all departments and the fact is the more favorable considering the arrival of the summer holiday season when slackness generally predominates.

The investment section outstandingly continues to be the brightest spot, with British government stocks continuing to lead the advances. The flow of surplus funds, home and foreign, into purely investment securities again is providing the most cheerful feature. Much American money is still coming into the market for the British government's 5 per cent war loan and 4 per cent funding loan, both of which have been listed on the New York Stock exchange.

Considerable American balances held in London were also utilized this week for the purchase of these loans, the attraction evidently being the fact that the interest is paid without the deduction of the British income tax to residents abroad.

Sterling Is Strong.

As a consequence, bigger demands have sprung up for sterling from New York, keeping the New York sterling rate well around $4.86½. Most of the other exchanges moved in London's favor, especially Holland, where there are indications that considerable batches of money are coming from Amsterdam to London.

It is too early to state definitely that the turn of the tide is permanent, but market interests certainly were notably optimistic despite the uncertainties of the political situation and the trade depression, but the volume of business during the present week induced a better feeling in City circles than has existed in months past.

Professional operations returned to the fold, while the immediate success attending the recent new issues, especially the $25,000,000 five per cent stock of the London Electric railways which ended this week, shows that there is plenty of money available from the investing public for good issues.

The British bankers' manifesto on the question of free trade versus protection, which adopts the creed of immediate reciprocal trade agreements between the units of the empire and indicates an open mind regarding the imposition of duties on all foreign imports, appears to have created the impression in the minds of public investors that the leading influential interests believe the time is opportune to bring about a change in the nation's financial policy.

Markets Appear Oversold.

Markets appear oversold in many directions, with the consequent result of renewed supports which have already influenced rising prices the same as when the recent depression ruled, the quotations marked down were out of proportion to the actual amount of business transacted.

Regarding the money outlook, most quarters were disposed to adopt a rather cautious view, consequently there has been practically no forward operations in bills at lower rates than spot quotations. France again was an exceptionally large buyer of gold from London, both in the open market and from the Bank of England. Since the early part of last month about $10,000,000 has been bought by France from the Bank of England in addition to about $15,000,000 purchased on the bullion market.

PARIS MORE CHEERY

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 12.—In a purely professional way the bourse came to life this week, and while there was no marked trend in any direction there was a general manifestation of activity and a much more cheerful tone than has been seen for a long time.

Prices for the most part moved upwards with the exception of on Tuesday when there was a general slump. Both these movements were without profound cause. Trading is so purely professional these days that one leading financier was moved to remark facetiously that there are not more than ten amateurs interested in the Paris bourse. Under these circumstances activity of even the feeblest nature produces quick responses one way or another.

Politics Causes Worry.

During the last two days there was considerable uneasiness over the political situation and serious fears of the downfall of the government which were not removed until the adjournment for vacations was announced tonight. The uneasiness did not produce any strong effect on the market, however, nor did the bourse manifest any reaction to the favorable trends of Wall street and in London, proving once again that the market here is only sensible to surface currents these days.

On the whole the market ended this week stronger than it commenced, and most of the gains were consolidated. Fairly heavy movements of bullion from England have swelled the treasury reserve again, it is reported. Money is a little easier.

U. S. Helps Some Farmers and Hits Others

BY SCRUTATOR.

In line with the effort to place agriculture on a parity with other industries in an economic sense, some attempts might be made in the farm relief movement to equalize the opportunities of different classes of farmers.

Quite a bit has been done by government to aid wheat farmers and cotton growers. Estimates run as high as forty million dollars on the paper loss of the federal farm board corporations in stabilizing those crops. On the other hand, there are tobacco growers.

Last year the tobacco crop in nineteen states reached a billion and a half pounds and was sold at a farm price of 285 million dollars. It is probable that at least 300,000 farm families derive most of their income from the raising of tobacco. The work is arduous and lasts from one end of the year to the other.

No Special Tax on Wheat.

What sort of break is the tobacco grower getting as compared to his wheat or his cotton producing brother? No special taxes are levied on the latter, but the federal government collects on tobacco, after it is manufactured and before it gets into the hands of the final consumer, the sum of 450 million dollars a year. The revenue is about one-eighth of all the government has.

The levy on cigarets of ordinary size is $3 a thousand, or 6 cents on a 15 cent package. Representative Craddock of Kentucky recently asserted in congress that, while the farmer got 25 cents a pound for the tobacco that goes into cigarets, the government gets $1 a pound. Smoking tobacco is taxed 18 cents a pound, at least as much as the farmer gets for it, and cigars from $2 to $13.50 a thousand.

Consumers Pay Bill.

It is the theory of taxation on luxuries that the consumer pays the entire bill. Mr. Craddock does not believe so. He argues that the tax is partly paid by the farmers in his district and that removal of it would give his constituents alone an increase of a half million dollars a year in income. Moreover, it seems to be the only one of the war taxes or "nuisance taxes" of importance that is still left in full vigor.

There is a touch of the moralistic in a tobacco tax. There always has been. Regardless of the importance of the crop, the early Virginians passed laws to compel planters to grow two acres of corn to every acre of tobacco. At the same time their ministers were paid in pounds of the evil weed.

Ease of Collection.

Ease of collection recommends the tobacco taxes. They are hidden in the sale of each unit and there is no consumer complaint. There might be if each buyer had to pay $20 in a lump each year, as he would have to if he bought one package a day. And after all, nobody has to smoke to maintain life, and he does have to eat.

Yet it remains a fact that here is one major crop that has had a steadily increasing demand for many years. Manufacturers have advertised so extensively that they have made the public cigaret conscious. From sixteen billion in 1916, the production has risen to 110 billion a year. There is no disposition here to argue that a tobacco tax is wrong from the consumer's standpoint, but it seems inconsistent to place a governmental burden of 450 millions on a 285 million dollar crop and use a lot of the proceeds in equalizing other crop production with manufactures.

BANCORPORATION PLANS EXPANSION IN TRUST FIELD

WARD C. CASTLE.

Expansion of the National Republic Bancorporation into the general investment trust field was revealed yesterday when directors voted to authorize the issuance of an additional 50,000 shares of the capital stock and to offer rights to the stockholders to purchase the stock at $17.00 a share in the ratio of one share for each ten shares held.

Rights to subscribe to the new stock will accrue to stockholders of record July 19, 1930, and payment must be made in full on or before the close of business Aug. 1. The present stock was traded in yesterday in over the counter transactions at around 20½ bid, 21¼ asked.

"The funds made available through the sale of this stock will be used in acquiring a diversified portfolio of high class securities other than bank stocks," said Ward C. Castle, executive vice president of the National Bank of the Republic and secretary of the National Republic Bancorporation. "The directors believe that now is the ideal time for the accumulation of prime American investment securities."

Weekly Debits Decrease, Reserve Bank Reports

Debits to individual deposit account reported to the Federal Reserve bank of Chicago for the week ended July 9, 1930, by 239 banks in 38 leading clearing house cities in the seventh federal reserve district, aggregate $1,283,485,000, a decrease of 29.2 per cent compared with a week ago ($1,813,339,000). Compared with the corresponding week of last year ($1,469,763,000) a decrease of 12.7 per cent was shown.

RAILS PUSH UP DUE TO DEMAND OF INVESTORS

Purchasers Paying Top Prices.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 12.—The zest with which high grade railroad bonds have moved forward during the week just completed has been the outstanding feature of the bond market since late spring.

Brisk buying on the part of insurence companies, savings banks and large investors have pushed prices on many rail issues up to new highs for the year during the last few days. The purchases made by bankers to date, however, have been rather disappointing.

Second and third grade railroad bonds have not received any very enthusiastic support. As a matter of fact, many of these issues are selling at or very close to the lowest prices recorded during the year to date. The new legal list for savings banks issued by the New York state banking department removed a few railroad issues but not many.

Investors' Expectations.

The monthly earnings statements of the various roads thus far have not indicated that the railroads have "turned the corner" but it is evident from the character of the present buying of railroad bonds that the purchasers are favoring those roads which are calculated to show increases in revenue and reductions in operating expenses the next month or two.

Thus it would appear that many expect that the pivot on which the business revival will manifest itself most clearly is the improvement in railroad earnings.

Trading was extremely quiet in the listed bond market during the two hour trading period today. Total transactions amounted to less than $4,000,000. Most of the price changes in all groups were of small consequence. Railroad bonds, however, continued steady to firm, particularly the high grade issues.

Atchison 4s, Union Pacific 4s, Canadian Pacific 5s, Nickel Plate 4½s, Denver, Rio Grande and Western 5s, and Cleveland Terminal 4½s were moderately accumulated and gained from ¼ to ½ point. Missouri Pacific 4s sold off ¾ of a point. Western Pacific 5s lost ½. Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis 4s, up ¾, and Norfolk and Western 4s, up 1⅝, established new highs. Convertible rails were firm with the exception of St. Paul 5s, which lost nearly a point.

Public utility bonds have ranked next to the leading railroad issues in strength this week and the gains in this group were well maintained yesterday. Industrial issues, however, continued to show minor irregularities, due, of course, to the different conditions ruling in the various issues.

Foreign Issues Quiet.

Foreign bonds were quietly traded today. German industrial and utility issues were firmer and German government issues were steady. French government and municipal loans showed but little change in moderately active trading. South American loans continued irregular.

There was a very thin market in United States government obligations. Most of the trading centered in the first and fourth Liberty 4¼s which are selling close to the highs of the year. The net changes in the government group were slight.

TIRE COMPANY REPORTS MAY SHOW DECLINES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 12.—Reports of the tire manufacturing companies for the second quarter of this year, which will be issued shortly, will be generally disappointing from an earning standpoint, it is believed in the industry. On account of poor business in the first quarter, earning statements were exceptionally poor, for that period. The outlook for the final six months of this year, however, is believed to be better, provided present prices are maintained. Since July 1, an improvement in the demand for replacement tires has taken place, it is stated.

Although the final results for the year will be far from satisfactory, it is said, indications are that results for the last six months will be offset to a certain extent by the unsatisfactory earnings of the first six months. The failure of the replacement market to develop as generally expected and the reduction in tire prices during the second quarter are among the important factors responsible for poor earnings in the tire industry for the first half of 1930.

The decline in the prices of raw materials, especially rubber and cotton, which necessitated considerable inventory write offs as of June 30, last, and the decline in original tire equipment business as a result of the falling off in automobile production are also other factors to be considered in the results for the first six months.

N.Y. Clearing House Banks Show Decline in Deposits

New York, July 12.—(AP)—The weekly statement of the New York clearing house shows: Total net demand deposits [average], $200,330,000 decrease; time deposits [agerage], $8,512,000 decrease; clearing week ending today, $6,715,201,962; clearing week ending July 5, $7,329,056,848.

IT'S NOT A RECORD BREAKING AMERICAN WHEAT CROP WHICH MAKES THE PRICE SO LOW

CHICAGO BANK STOCK PRICES TREND LOWER; TURNOVER IS SMALL

Chicago bank stocks showed a slightly lower tendency with very little trading during the last week. Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company stock was some 15 points easier at 617 to 620. First National Bank of Chicago eased off from early sales at 628, closing 620 bid, 624 asked.

Foreman State National dropped to low sales at 620, but improved in late trading to 626 bid, 629 asked. Northern Trust company showed extreme activity, advancing 50 points to sales at 590. The rights soared 30 points to high transactions at 150, at which level they eased slightly with closing transactions between 142 and 145. Central Trust Company of Illinois was in good demand, improving 10 points, last transactions being recorded between 325 and 330. National Bank of the Republic lost 2 points, at 118 to 120. The rights which expire Saturday, July 12, were traded between 1⅝ and 2.

Harris Trust and Savings bank was in supply at 780, with little interest on the bid side—off 10 points. Union Bank of Chicago continued firm, being wanted at 260, with limited offerings at 265. Peoples Trust and Savings bank was 5 points easier at 470 to 475. Terminal National bank lost 1 point at 61 to 62. Chicago Bank of Commerce was unchanged at 144 bid, 147 asked.

In the miscellaneous group Chicago Title and Trust company, after early sales at 440, improved to 447 bid without attracting sellers below 452. There were few reported transactions in Elgin National Watch between 34 and 34½. Chicago Daily News was wanted at 26, with offerings at 27. The preferred was fractionally easier at 90¼ to 91.

TRUSTS NEARING AGREEMENT ON STOCK DIVIDENDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 12.—Recent reports for investment trusts reveal that they are coming closer together on the problem of how stock dividends received from portfolio holdings should be treated. This problem, which has been the source of several court cases and many differences of opinion among accountants, became additionally complicated with the rapid growth of investment trusts.

Almost universal agreement has been found among the trusts that they should not consider stock dividends as income, which is in accordance with the provisions of the income tax law as interpreted in a case before the United States Supreme court. There are still some, however, which do not adhere to this belief as far as their published income accounts are concerned, and still include the sale of such dividends in their profit and loss statements.

In recent reports it has generally been found that there is a statement to the definite effect that stock dividends have not been included. This very fact, however, is taken as an indication that enough of the companies still take them for income that it is still worth while to call attention to the fact that profits might have been larger had such a policy been followed.

CONTINENTAL CAN COMPANY'S SALES RUNNING HIGHER

O. C. HUFFMAN.

"Sales of Continental Can company for the first half of 1930 exceeded those for the corresponding 1929 period," O. C. Huffman, president, states. With average crops for the balance of the year, 1930, should be a normal year for the company and equal to 1929," he added.

"All of our plants manufacturing fruit and vegetable cans in the middle western territory are operating at capacity," Mr. Huffman said. "The plant at Clearing, Ill., is employing 1,500 people to turn out the largest number of cans ever made there. Shipments from this plant and two other plants located in the Chicago district are averaging 100 carloads a day, and on July 3 shipments were 130 carloads, almost all open top cans for packing the pea crop."

Increasing popularity and consumption of canned goods is predicted by Mr. Huffman under the new McNary-Mapes bill signed by President Hoover, which provides for establishing standards of condition, fill, and quality for all canned goods, except meats and milk, which are regulated by previous legislation. "This law was sponsored by the National Canners' association and allied industry," said Mr. Huffman and should assure to the consumer improved and uniform quality and tend to eliminate misbranding."

A skeleton force will man the plants until the mass vacation ends on July 28. The company called it "probably the largest industrial vacation exodus on record." Ninety-seven per cent of the factory employés are receiving vacations with pay.

Week's Bond Issues Total 153 Millions

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 12.—New offerings of bonds this week reached $153,092,000, which was a larger total than had generally been expected. The improvement in bond prices this week encouraged investment bankers to place a number of large issues on the market, several of which had been tentatively scheduled for later in the year. Last week bonds in the amount of $75,564,000 were marketed and during the corresponding week last year the total of new issues was $88,913,000.

Foreign financing led this week, consisting of an issue of $16,100,000 City of Buenos Aires 5 per cent six months' notes, an issue of $7,500,000 City of Montreal, Que., one year notes, and an issue of $25,000,000 Canadian Pacific railway collateral trust 4½s which were offered on a 4.62 per cent basis.

State and Municipal Financing ran a close second, with a dozen issues aggregating $45,351,000. The principal issues of this group consist of $18,000,000 State of Arkansas 4¾ per cent highway bonds, which were offered on a 4.60 per cent basis, and $15,000,000 City of Philadelphia 4 and 4¼ per cent bonds, which were offered at prices to yield 4.025 and 4.07 per cent respectively. Six other municipal issues of $1,000,000 or more were marketed this week.

Four Utility Issues.

This week's public utility financing consists of four issues, the largest of which was that of $12,000,000 Commonwealth Edison company 4½s which were offered on a 4.65 per cent basis, with the second largest issue that of $7,500,000 Consolidated Gas, Electric Light and Power 4½s which were priced to net 4.58 per cent.

The principal piece of industrial financing was an issue of $14,931,000 Armstrong Cork company 5s, which were priced at 98, to yield 5.25 per cent. The railroad financing included an issue of $15,000,000 Reading company 4½s due 1997, marking the first time that the company has borrowed in 29 years except for the purchase of new equipment. During the interval the company has been able to finance its improvements out of earnings.

List of Offerings.

The new offerings of bonds, by groups, of this and last week follow:

| | This week. | Last week. |
|---|---|---|
| Foreign | $ 48,600,000 | ........ |
| State and municipal | 45,351,000 | 26,640,000 |
| Public utility | 24,400,000 | 34,600,000 |

| Railroad | 15,810,000 | 14,324,000 |
| Total | $153,092,000 | $75,564,000 |

No date has been announced for the offering of the new Austrian loan in London, the various continental centers and in New York. There has also been talk of an Australian loan, but it is expected that such a loan, if offered in the near future, will be done entirely or principally in the London market.

SALES OF WOOLEN WORSTED GOODS SEEN GRATIFYING

Bearing evidence of the general business recession, sales of woolen and worsted goods have been far from gratifying in recent months, says a recent survey of the Standard Statistics company of New York. The survey continues in part:

"Orders obtained, in fact, have permitted only a few mills to operate as high as 60 per cent of capacity. Examination of conditions affecting the important outlets for this trade, moreover, indicated that no material improvement in demand for woolen goods is in early prospect. Not only is retail trade suffering from curtailment in consumers' purchasing power, but also the automobile industry, another leading customer, is operating at a considerable reduced rate."

American Rolling Mill Plans $1,000,000 Expansion

The American Rolling Mill company announces an appropriation of $1,000,000 to be spent in additions and replacements at its Ashland, Ky., plant. The appropriation was made at a recent meeting of the directors at the home office in Middletown, O. This appropriation is in addition to one of like amount made in January, and the $2,000,000 will be spent in increasing facilities for the Ashland steel mills which now employ more than 3,600 men at full capacity. The new construction work will begin at once, officials stated.

Tax Refunds Allowed in 1929 Total $75,672,888

Washington, D. C., July 12.—(AP)—Expressing hope that the peak of high tax refund years had passed, the report of the joint congressional committee on internal revenue taxation made public today showed a total of $75,672,888 allowed in overassessments of taxes in 1929 involving in excess of $75,000 each. The report was submitted by Chairman Hawley and L. H. Parker, chief of the committee's staff. It said the rate of overassessment had decreased 58 per cent, as compared to that of the seven month period beginning June 1, 1928, during which $106,569,839 was refunded.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 12.—True to the reputation for eccentricity it has been making for itself here of late, the stock market advanced in rather vigorous fashion in the abbreviated week-end session today. And that, too, on about the dullest trading of the week! It appeared that those bent on taking their profits had played their hands out yesterday afternoon and either hied them away to their favorite resorts or elected to stand by for the session.

Except for a brief but unsuccessful effort to extend Friday's selling movement, in the first thirty minutes or so the market showed a consistently strong tone and most of the leaders closed at their best levels for the recovery movement. American Can, U. S. Steel, General Electric, National Biscuit, Standard of New Jersey, Johns-Manville and other "pillars" of the market closed up 2 to 3 points or more. Case provided its usual display on an improving market by bounding ahead for 7⅛, while Detroit Edison, Columbian Carbon, rose six points or so each and Hershey Chocolate 5¼.

Radio Perks Up.

What the street interpreted as something of a demonstration, coinciding with the return of its sponsor, was staged in Radio during the course of today's short session. The stock changed hands in rather substantial volume, compared with the market as a whole, reaching the best levels in several weeks. The closing sale recorded a net gain of 3 points on the day. The extension of the rally in the stock was in the nature of a "welcome home" to M. J. Meehan, prominent operator who has guided its destinies marketwise for several years. Naturally Wall street is disposed to look for a better market still in Radio.

For a change, the railroad shares were inactive, although prices for the most part were firm. Exceptions were provided by Atchison and New York Central, each going ahead for about 3 points. By and large, the carriers have had the best they have enjoyed in a long time and this in face of the recently published earnings reports which left a bad taste in the mouths of their followers, generally.

Tobacco shares were strong and the utilities moved along with the procession.

Various specialties were given a fling.

News Is Light.

Such news as came to light during the morning was hardly of a character to weigh heavily on speculative sentiment, particularly with the market's lethargy indicating that quite a few of the larger traders had remained away from the street for the day. Trade journals failed to note any material improvement in conditions generally, but after all, this is not the season of the year when such a development might reasonably be anticipated.

The most favorable condition, and incidentally coming in for greater attention, is the multiplying evidence that distributors' stocks in various lines are unusually small. Thus a pickup in consumer demand, should it develop unexpectedly early, would necessitate no little speedup of machinery that such stock be augmented.

When Are Stocks a Buy?

ARE stocks a buy when prices are down 25 or 50 or 100 points from previous high? Not necessarily. Maybe the previous high was never justified by either earnings or immediate prospects. Is this or that stock a bargain at the present low price? It all depends upon what the low price reflects. It may indicate a weakened financial position, or bad trade outlook, or over-expansion, or readjustment to a proper level on a basis of current earnings.

And again it may mean that a particular security is greatly underpriced as a result of short-selling, forced liquidation and general pessimism. All of which demonstrates how impossible it is to make intelligent investment decisions involving thousands of dollars, without having each day, the earnings reports and analyses, the news of business and corporate developments affecting and revealing values and probable price movements, first-hand through an acknowledged financial authority—THE WALL STREET JOURNAL. # CHICAGO STOCK PRICES MAINTAIN A STEADY FRONT

Market's Behavior Seen Encouraging.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Week end profit taking was unusually light in the short trading session on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday. Prices maintained a steady tone as the volume of sales shrank to 64,000 shares, the lightest turnover for a two hour Saturday trading session in months.

To most observers the behavior of the stock market during the last week has been highly encouraging. A good deal of investment buying was reported and it is the consensus of brokers and traders that this type of buying will continue to play an important part in the market for some time.

It was admitted that the short covering which helped the market advance last week weakened the technical position, but the fact that the bears failed to make any concerted attack as the week ended was regarded as an encouraging factor.

New Buying Trend.

Brokers reported that the tendency to buy securities outright became more pronounced during the week. This type of buying which lost much of its popularity during the bull market days of 1928-'29 is gradually coming into its own again.

One house pointed out that many customers regard margin trading as highly dangerous now although it seemed safe a year ago. This house goes on to say that the risk involved now in trading on borrowed money is a great deal less than it was last year.

To substantiate this view the house points to the fact that the margin requirements of brokers have been reduced and the bankers are more friendly toward collateral loans now than they were during the bull market.

The range of prices yesterday was narrow but practically all final quotations represented moderate gains over Friday's close. Middle West Utilities was the most active issue on the board with sales of about 13,000 shares. At the close the price was 27¾, nearly a point higher for the day.

Stock Values.

The fifty most active stocks traded on the Chicago Stock exchange during the week ended July 12 had a market value of $2,296,104,735 at the close of business yesterday as compared with $2,229,873,907 at the close of the previous week, according to a compilation by Otis & Co. This represents an increase of $66,230,828 or 2.97 per cent.

The analysis shows that thirty-one of these stocks were listed and traded in last year. These stocks had a market value of $559,835,947 Saturday as compared with $956,194,850 on July 13, 1929, a decrease of $396,358,903 or 41.45 per cent.

CHICAGO CURB EXCHANGE STOCKS

Pettibone spurted 2½ points on light sales yesterday to lead the Chicago curb list into generally higher ground. American Tobacco new common B was up a peg at 116½, and a number of good fractional gains were marked up in the general list. Activity for the day was confined principally to gas and oil stocks, with Southern Union Gas common receiving the bulk of the attention. This issue finished ½ higher, at 25, and there were fractional advances in Standard of Indiana, United Gas new stock and warrants.

WHEAT PRICES AGAIN DECLINE TO LOW LEVELS

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Crop news on wheat from parts of the American and Canadian northwest rather bordered on the sensational yesterday, yet September and December in the Chicago market dropped to the lowest levels of the season.

The decline reflected the inert weakness of the situation. At the same time there was fair support, at times accompanied by liberal speculative and hedging pressure.

A report from Kansas City intimated that several million bu of wheat recently sold to millers to be shipped by July 10 had not been taken out and that it was being hedged. Later advices said it was merely a changing proposition. This created selling in the local market and aided in depressing prices to new low levels.

Hits New Low.

July wheat at the low point was 86¼c, with the finish at 86½c, or the same as Friday. September touched 89c after having a range of 89@90⅝c, and closed at 89⅝@89½c, a decline of ⅛c. December at the low point was 95c and closed at 95⅝@95½c, a net loss of ¼c. The trade is becoming accustomed to lowering of season's prices and they are attracting less attention.

There were reports of scattered showers in the Canadian northwest, as reported by the Canadian Pacific railroad. Winnipeg reported that prospects in central Saskatchewan are disappointing and the need of soaking rains is urgent.

Crop reports from South Dakota said temperatures were high and the spring wheat crop deteriorating. Donovan, reporting from northwest North Dakota, said temperatures were cooler, there was a small amount of moisture in the soil, but crop continues to deteriorate; Canadian Pacific railroad's crop report showed a little rain in a few spots and considerable in others.

There were heavy receipts in the southwest, Kansas City having 1,102 cars, and six southwestern points had 2,434 cars, including Kansas City. Indications are, however, that the peak of the movement in the southwest is over.

See Larger Supply.

Trade expectations are that there will be a good increase in the visible supply on Monday. Primary receipts for the week were practically 20,000,000 bu against 5,633,000 bu the previous week, and 16,630,000 bu last year. Shipments were 9,045,000 bu against 3,788,000 bu the previous week, and 8,248,000 bu last year.

Closing prices on wheat as compared with a week ago show losses of 3⅞@4¼c, with corn ¼c lower to 1⅝c higher, the latter on December. Oats were ¼c higher to ⅛c lower. Rye closed 1@2c lower than a week ago.

Professionals bought corn early and advanced prices, but the market eased off later with wheat. There was more pressure on July which closed around the low point 77@77¼c, a loss of 1⅜c, with other futures 1⅛@1¼c lower, September finishing at 74⅝@74⅜c, December 68¾@68⅜c.

July oats were strong and closed unchanged, while distant futures were off ¼@½c. Rye offerings were light and net gains were ¾@1c for the day.

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

The run of cash wheat is increasing under the influence of the liberal to arrive bookings which were made during the last week. Prices eased off in sympathy with the break into new low ground in the futures, running from 1@1½c lower, the trading basis being ½c easier also. Saturday's to arrive bookings were smaller at 65,000 bu all new crop, and sales to interior mills amounted to 22,000 bu. Charters for 300,000 bu to go to Buffalo were made. Export business was limited in size, with some intimations that a little hard winters and Manitobas had both been taken.

Corn prices eased off with the July, sales running from 1@2c lower. Trading basis was a trifle easier, running from unchanged to ½c lower. Light shipping demand noted. Charters for 360,000 bu were made to go to Buffalo and the Bay. In the spot market No. 2 mixed was quoted at July, ¼@½c over; yellow, ½@¾c over, and white, 4@4½c over. No. 3 mixed, ½@1c under; yellow, ½@¾c over, and white, 4@4½c over.

Official grain receipts at Chicago on Saturday were as follows: Wheat, 182 cars; corn, 98 cars; oats, 22 cars; rye, none, and barley, 3 cars.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Wheat sentiment is a little more divided although it leans largely to the bear side. There is said to be evidence of a little letup in the movement in the southwest, but the trade would like to see the wheat shipped out of the country rather than stored in terminals and country elevators and on farms. There are traders who have been bearish who express themselves as being afraid to sell wheat short at present levels, but at the same time they say they are timid about buying except for quick turns.

Broomhall estimates the carryover of wheat in the United States at 250,000,000 to 270,000,000 bu, or approximately 260,000,000 bu, compared with 280,000,000 bu last year and 84,000,000 bu in 1928, with 74,000,000 bu in 1927.

The Australian visible supply is 41,000,000 bu, compared with 40,000,000 bu last year, and there is 30,000,000 bu available for export, of which some will be carried over into the new crop season. Recent rains in Victoria and South Australia have permitted the completion of seeding. Broomhall says that a large quantity of this year's Argentine crop will be carried over and mixed w high grades of next year.

Ten countries reporting on this year's wheat crop have an aggregate of 1,570,000,000 bu, against 1,557,000,000 bu in 1929. The Hungarian crop is 81,000,000 bu, against 75,000,000 bu last year. Five European countries, Belgium, Spain, Italy, Hungary, and Rumania, have a total of 601,000,000 bu, a decrease of 3,000,000 bu from 1929. Italy is the only country reporting a decrease. A smaller crop is indicated in France and Jugo-Slavia.

Top yesterday, $11.50; average, $10.75.

Estimated receipts at Chicago Monday, 19,000 cattle, 43,000 hogs, and 15,000 sheep.

Hog prices were strong to higher, considering quality on the week-end session, although both top and average prices were 10c lower at $9.75 and $8.80, respectively, due to the absence of choice grades.

Packing sows made up bulk of the meager supply available and some orders for choice light and butcher grades had to be returned unfilled. Only pen holders and a few cheaper grades were left at the close.

An upturn in the local wholesale market for fresh pork loins, coupled with urgent eastern demand, reversed the trend of the hog market after a two day break in mid-week. The week's market, as a whole, was little different than a week ago, prices averaging $9.00, against $8.95 the previous week.

This average, however, shows a decline of $2.45, compared with a year ago, and is $1.70 under the corresponding week in 1928. The larger proportion of packing sows brought the week's estimate average weight to 255 lbs, the heaviest since September, 1929. Light hogs were scarce and in demand at all points. Shippers during the week bought 26 per cent of total arrivals at Chicago, against 19 per cent of the previous week's receipts and 17 per cent a year ago.

Hog Futures Weaken.

Losses of 5@10c were recorded in the hog futures market yesterday, with trading slower than usual for the week-end session. September mediums opened at $9.50 and closed at $9.45, against $9.75 early in the week.

Light weights for Monday's delivery carried bids of $9.75 on the "to arrive" market. Light packing sows were bid $8.25 and buyers were willing to pay up to $8.00 for a few heavy grades for the same day.

There was a general readjustment of cattle quotations last week. Light weight steers and yearlings fared best, coming to the head of the price list for the first time in many weeks. Demand for several months has been for medium and weighty steers, the heaviest getting preference over all others.

During the last ten days, however, orders from all points have switched to lighter weights, which advanced 50@75c in less than a week, while heavy beeves came down 75c to $1 in value. The general average at $10.40 compares with $10.15 the previous week, but stands $4.45 lower than a year ago and $4.65 lower than two years ago.

Shortage in Lambs.

Although all reports indicate that there are plenty of lambs to come on the market in the next few weeks, there was an acute shortage at all distributing centers last week. A break in mid-week brought a flood of eastern orders and closing prices were highest in nearly two weeks.

The general average at $10.40 compared with $10.35 a week ago, but is $4.15 lower than a year ago and $5.50 lower than two years ago. Shipments from Chicago during the week were largest since early May.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 19,000 cattle, 43,000 hogs, and 15,000 sheep, against 23,077 cattle, 36,025 hogs, and 7,866 sheep a week ago, and 14,948 cattle, 54,574 hogs, and 16,775 sheep, the corresponding day a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 43,000 cattle, 135,000 hogs, and 80,000 sheep, against 38,527 cattle, 143,149 hogs, and 64,740 sheep a year ago.

NEW BUILDING, LIFE INSURANCE SALES IMPROVE IN ILLINOIS

Two business indicators showed improvement in Illinois during the last month, according to the regular monthly survey sent out today from the research department of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce.

Most of the other lines reporting showed the effects of seasonal curtailment and readjustment, although, according to the report, none were much out of line with what was expected for the season. The F. W. Dodge report for June construction contracted for in northern Illinois totaled $36,667,800, a five million dollar increase over May, though nearly 27 million dollars under June, 1929. This progress was reported as fairly general throughout the state.

Life insurance sales for May, latest figures available, were $76,727,000, as compared to $75,571,000 for the same month a year ago. For the first five months of this year sales are running $14,000,000 more than for the same period a year ago. New car sales declined in June, with June sales totaling 16,339, as compared to 23,036 in May. June registrations totaled 25,784 cars.

On July 1 twenty-six coke furnaces were in blast in the Illinois-Indiana district with a daily production of 19,050 gross tons, as compared to thirty-two furnaces in blast on June 1. The daily gross tonnage also declined 3,350 tons. Pig iron production for June totaled 620,941 gross tons, as compared to 719,328 gross tons for May and 682,171 for April. Production of crude petroleum in May was 537,000 barrels, an increase of 17,000 barrels over April production. Electric power production in Illinois for May decreased 14,416,000 kilowatt hours as compared to April.

Steel Industry Quiet, Trade Journal Says

Cleveland, O., July 11.—[Special.]—Daily Metal Trade today says: "Midsummer quietness is on in full force in the steel trade at Cleveland. Producers see no light ahead until September or October, although a few anticipate a slight upturn in August. Structural steel awards continue light at Chicago, but the promise of increased inquiry next month appears favorable. Reinforcing bars, however, are active, with shipments the heaviest for this season in two years. Chicago steel scrap is off 25c a ton. Other markets are dull and unchanged. Metal markets continue little changed."

HAYNES ASSERTS COMBINES MUST BE VOLUNTARY

Railroad consolidations must be voluntary and not arbitrary mergers destroying the initiative of the various carriers, declares James P. Haynes, executive vice president of the Chicago Association of Commerce and transportation authority, in an address on "Railroad Consolidation" before the school of commerce and administration at the University of Chicago.

"Consolidations should be voluntary and depend upon the best interests of the carriers and the public involved in each particular instance," said Mr. Haynes. "It seems almost impracticable to provide an arbitrary system which the carriers will be required to follow in the consolidation of their respective lines and thereby reconstruct the transportation facilities throughout the United States into systems different from those which have gradually grown up through the use of continuous development to meet the particular interest of the sections which they serve.

"There is little room for doubt that many economies can be effected by a certain degree of consolidation," Mr. Haynes added. "Particularly is this true with respect to the many short and weak lines.

"If such smaller lines can be consolidated with the larger systems in such a way that the traffic will be more evenly balanced and a greater use can be made of the equipment and terminal facilities, it seems evident that such a movement would result in advantages to the communities served by these lines and to the public as a whole. On the other hand, the systems should not be so large as to become unwieldly, and lessen to any material degree the competition between carriers."

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, July 12.—(AP)—Cotton goods were slightly firmer in the gray goods division today. New lines of bedspreads for fall will be opened on Monday. The garment retailers' association will hold one of the important style shows of the year Tuesday and is expected to give cutters a definite line on fashions. Burlaps on the spot were quiet and unchanged. Fine combed goods production is being held down closely in mill centers. Very low raw silk prices are making it difficult for silk merchants to decide upon a basis of trading for new fall lines. Some already opened were revised downward.

What Is the Value of a Stock?

Any one contemplating the purchase or sale of a stock wants to know what that stock is worth. If he is buying it he wants to be satisfied that it is not overpriced.

And that is a difficult question to answer. Whether any stock is a "good buy" is necessarily a guess. Opinions differ and this difference makes a market. There must be two parties to every sale and each party believes his action justified.

Some investors seem to believe that there is a formula by which the value of a stock can be measured. Some ask for the "true value"; others inquire about the "book value" or the "liquidating value."

These phrases mean little. No mathematical or algebraic process has been invented by which one can determine the exact value of a stock. Although it is not always advisable to consider a stock worth merely what it will bring in the open market, still that is a safer guide than trying to evaluate it by using a slide rule on the figures in the balance sheet.

The book value of a stock is usually understood to mean the value of the assets behind each share. It may be a good measuring rod in the case of a bank, but it is not a fair guide in the case of industrial corporations.

If earnings should stop for any reason, the replacement value might easily shrink to "junk value." The investor does not want to put his money into a company that is liquidating. Why, therefore, should he try to measure the worth of a stock by its estimated value in the event of liquidation?

The main question for the investor is what a company can earn. The best indication of this is what it has earned in the past and what it is doing at present. The company's assets have large value only as they produce earnings.

The book value of a stock and its market value rarely strike the same figure. Seasoned stocks with large assets behind them, conservatively carried, often sell in the market for less than their book value. Other stocks, with small assets behind them, but producing large earnings, frequently sell for much more than their book value. The factors which affect the market price of a stock, causing it to fluctuate, do not have an equal effect on book value.

News and Gossip of Stock Markets

Rubber Stocks.

United States Rubber preferred seems to be meeting better buying in the low forties, which is probably for the account of interests who believe that, while profits for the current year will show considerable reduction from 1929, the outlook for 1931 should be much improved. It will be recalled that tire and rubber stocks never advanced very far in the 1929 bull market, but suffered just as much as the general market in the break that followed.

Gets Good Support.

International Harvester is one of the stocks which have received good support around the $80 level, though it has had some difficulty in maintaining recent recoveries. Due to the unsettled condition of agriculture, the outlook for implement companies is somewhat clouded, but the diversified business of International Harvester assures it of a steady source of revenue.

Conservative Policy.

The Gold Dust management seems to be following a conservative policy of expansion and is not reaching out for a big increase in the volume of new business in the current year. Net profits for 1930 should be at least on par with the previous year and may be a trifle larger.

PRICE DECLINE OF COMMODITIES STILL UNCHECKED

NEW YORK, July 12.—A definite check to the protracted decline of commodity prices would be welcomed in many quarters as an indication of more stable business conditions, but no sign of it has thus far appeared.

On the contrary, recessions in the majority 59 of a total of 71 changes in Dun's list this week being in a downward direction. That is an even wider ratio of reductions than occurred last week, when 34 of 51 alterations were toward lower levels.

The further concessions this week embraced most groups of articles, including pig iron and tin among the metals, lumber, hides, rubber and raw silk. After early weakness, however, the grain markets developed rallying tendencies, with a better showing being made by all of the principal cereals. Similarly, cotton gained in price, and the firmer undertone in the leading farm products was favorably regarded.

NICHOLAS SENN HIGH SCHOOL IS TO BE ENLARGED

Name New Building for Joyce Kilmer.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

JOYCE KILMER.

Two important north side schoolhouse developments which will relieve overcrowded conditions were announced yesterday by the architectural department of the board of education. One is for the enlargement and modernization of the Nicholas Senn High school and the other is for the construction of the Joyce Kilmer Elementary school at the northwest corner of North Shore and Greenview avenues.

Taking up the Senn High school, occupying the block bounded by Thorndale, Greenview, Ardmore, and Glenwood, first we are told that when the work planned for is completed in September, 1931, it will be able to provide educational facilities for approximately 4,000 students without the necessity of having to use portable buildings.

Two wings are to be extended eastward from the north and south ends of the building which are to be in architectural harmony with the present structure. The present building, completed about 1912, is of classic renaissance design and this style will be carried throughout the additions.

Will Add Two Wings.

Senn High when built had accommodations for 2,000 students. It now has approximately 4,000 pupils, a large part of whom are housed in 17 portables on the campus. Paul Gerhardt, the board's architect, has prepared his schedule of work so that there will be little interference with the school's routine. The two wings will be constructed first and then the work of modernizing the interior of the existing structure to bring it up to present day educational standards will be undertaken.

When the entire work is completed Senn High will have 65 classrooms proper. There will be ten laboratories for science studies, four study rooms, and nine art and drawing rooms.

Exercise and athletic training will be given in four gymnasiums, two for boys and two for girls. There will be special rooms for the Senn band and orchestra, which have been prize winners in recent high school competitions.

Complete Departments.

Then there will be quarters for boys' clubs and a special room for the R. O. T. C. Besides the large assembly hall, there will be a smaller auditorium for more intimate gatherings.

In the manual training department will be found shops for printing, woodwork, forging, automobile study, and carpentry. Unusually elaborate equipment and facilities are to be installed in the commercial department which will have special rooms for the study of stenography, bookkeeping, commercial geography, etc. One feature seldom found in a high school is a department for giving calculating machine instruction.

Appetites of the students will be catered to in an entirely new lunchroom, with a kitchen adjacent. The power plant is to be remodeled and there will be new office facilities for members of the faculty. One point almost overlooked was the proposal to modernize the school's swimming tank. When installed it was about the first tank to be put in a Chicago high school and it has since become out of date.

Honoring Poet-Soldier.

And now for the school which is named for Joyce Kilmer, poet-soldier who possibly is best known for his poem, "Trees." Kilmer was a sergeant in the United States army when he was killed in action in France, July 30, 1918. This school will be erected opposite the Roger Sullivan Junior high, with which it will conform architecturally.

There will be 13 classrooms and the other facilities of the typical Chicago schoolhouse. When completed it will do away with the portable houses at Loyola and Lakewood and at Clark and North Shore. A feature will be an arrangement whereby the building will be heated from the plant of the Sullivan Junior high.

SIX STORY HOTEL IS PLANNED FOR AUSTIN DISTRICT

A new hostelry is to be added shortly to the hotel district which has developed in the vicinity of Central avenue and Lake street, Austin, during the last two years. The latest is announced by the Towers Hotel Building corporation for 5614-16 Fulton street—about a half block south of the Lake and Central station of the Lake street elevated line.

The new hotel is to be called the Towers. It will be a straight hotel without the fancy frills of some of the apartment hotels. The structure will be six stories high, with a six room bungalow at the top. There will be seventy-one suites, each with a private bath.

Charles A. Kristen designed the structure, which will be of modern architecture. The front elevation will be finished in marble and Indiana limestone. The two stores to face the street on the ground floor will have bronze fronts.

It is stated that the structure will cost about $195,000. The site measures 40x100 feet. Work is expected to start in time to have the hotel open in December. P. T. O'Pizzi, who operates the Hotel Fullerton, has leased the Towers.

The work of remodeling the old Central Theater at 62-66 East Van Buren street into a de luxe motion picture establishment has been started by the Punch & Judy company, lessees of the property. Eugene Fuhrer, architect for the remodeling, says of the work, "We are discarding designs of the past and developing a new type of architecture. The interior of the theater will be most unusual and will be something to talk about." What Mr. Fuhrer means by this remains to be seen. Besides movies the theater will be used for concerts. There will be about 400 seats.

DURKIN EXPLAINS UNION'S PLAN TO AID ITS JOBLESS

Steamfitters Pay $1 a Day to Fund.

BY THOMAS WREN.

MARTIN DURKIN.

With unemployment acute among Chicago building trades workers, the local steamfitters, whose labor organization is classed as one of the most progressive trade unions in the country, are contributing $1 a day to a fund which is dolled out to unemployed men of the steamfitting trade.

This assessment amounts to 7½ per cent of the steamfitters' pay. The officials of the Steamfitters' union, headed by Charles M. Rau, the business manager, are assessed 20 per cent of their weekly salaries. The fund gives unemployed members of the steamfitters a weekly stipend of $10 and the total fund collected to date for relief of the men out of work is said to exceed $30,000.

Durkin Explains Plan.

Martin Durkin, Rau's assistant and the vice president of the Building Trades council, explains how the unemployed fund is distributed.

"Members seeking relief file application and this is handed over to the union's unemployment relief committee," Durkin said.

"This committee is composed of William Ek, Joseph Newman, George McKinley, John Gorman, John Gillespie, and Everett Oaks. Meetings of the committee are held thrice weekly. Married men with small children are placed in the preferred class and immediate relief is furnished in cases where dire need confronts youngsters unable to provide for themselves. Following them come the cases of men in graduated degrees of want and relief is furnished accordingly."

Union Has 3,000 Members.

Durkin said plans of the Steamfitters' union call for relief of its unemployed members until building activity resumes. It is said there are approximately 3,000 members in the union, which is housed in headquarters of its own at Van Buren and Leavitt streets.

The headquarters include a meeting hall, an athletic hall and the offices of the union. The officials of the Steamfitters' union are men who learned the steamfitting trade and were working at it when they were selected by the rank and file of the trade union to direct the business affairs of the organization. Open discussion at meetings is encouraged by the officials, who declare the best interests of the entire membership can be promoted in that manner.

HOME BUILDING AND REMODELING

EXPLAINING WAYS BY WHICH HOUSE MAY BE FINANCED

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

LOUISE BARGELT.

If everyone had enough cash to pay in full for the home he buys or builds, there would be no financing problem to home ownership. Since this is not the case and most people pay part in cash and borrow the rest, the ways and means of obtaining the necessary funds for the purchase are usually one of the major problems in the home owning adventure.

It is comforting to reflect that the old idea of the mortgage on the home being a veritable skeleton in the closet has long gone into extinction along with the dodo bird. Borrowing money to own a home is a perfectly natural and normal step to take and in many ways a desirable one since hundreds and perhaps thousands of families—say in the last ten years alone—have learned the habit of saving through becoming home owners. This move on their part has meant financial independence. They have put their savings into a dwelling for themselves and families, rather than into ingenious schemes which promise impossible dividends, uncertain stocks which crash, securities which are anything but secure.

Five Ways to Finance.

There are five general ways of financing the home.

The first is paying for it completely at the start.

The second is paying for it by means of a first mortgage only. This means that the buyer has usually the equivalent of 45% or 55% of the cost of the home; that is if he buys a $10,000 house and has around $5,000 to put down on it, he can secure the remainder on a first mortgage. These first mortgages are considered safe investments and may be secured from a number of sources; from a savings bank, a trust company, a building and loan, an insurance company or some builder or real estate developer who is selling the home or from some disinterested individual who has some money to lend at reasonable interest on good security.

The third plan is followed often by people who have around 25% of the cost; $2,500 for instance, to pay down on the above mentioned $10,000 home. But they must have still another $2,500, the difference between their savings and the first mortgage. This can be secured by a second mortgage.

The fourth way of financing a home is through the building and loan association. This is a popular method as is evidenced by the number of such associations in the country; around 13,000 in all and with total assets exceeding $7,000,000,000!

There are different types of these associations and the prospective home owner can frequently obtain loans amounting sometimes to as high as 80 per cent of the property value. By the amortized plan of paying back, the family acquires a home on monthly payments like rent. Officers of these associations are usually ready to give good advice to home buyers and often keep them from making unwise purchases.

Still a fifth way is by "contract for deed"—making the purchase on contract, paying something down and something each month. This plan is especially desirable to those who have little or no money to start with.

SECOND STORY PORCH GREATLY ENHANCES COMFORT OF HOUSE

Did you ever consider the comfort and convenience of a second floor porch?

Such a room as this can easily become the favored spot on the second floor, because it is open on three sides; it is a joy to sit in and to sleep in all during the summer months, and in winter, too, it receives ample sunlight and is always cheery.

Modernizing a house by adding such a porch is not a difficult matter where it has a first floor porch. Naturally a competent contractor or architect should be called in to do the supervising, as it is important that such an added porch form an integral part of the house and not look as if it had been tacked on as an afterthought.

Insulation of the roof of such a porch is important if the porch is to be cool on the hottest summer days. In winter such a roof will also keep the heat from escaping outdoors.

If one wishes, such a porch may merely be screened for summer, though by fully enclosing it one can use it all the year around. This latter process is a little more expensive, but since it adds to the home's value it can be looked upon as an investment.

Other items to consider carefully are its exterior finish, its snugly fitting windows, its flooring and woodwork.

Insulation board can be used as sheathing to prevent draughts and loss of heat, and then over that one of the various forms of wood siding, brick or stucco applied.

TWO YEARS' PAY IS CALLED RIGHT PRICE FOR HOME

BY HOMER GRANT.

It is a decisive step that the average man takes when he decides to buy or to build a home and agrees to pay out a not inconsiderable part of his income for ten or twelve or fifteen years.

But in order that the delights and advantages of owning a home may not be swallowed up in various worries, it pays to decide carefully and to consider a number of things.

In most cases the house and lot purchased should not cost more than twice the family's yearly salary.

Wise to Be Conservative.

If a family pays one-sixth of its income for rent it may devote one-quarter or more of its income to buying and maintaining a home, since part of this money can be considered in the light of savings.

It is always a good policy to pay off part of the loan at regular intervals and as quickly as possible.

If one is going to build, one should engage the best architect or contractor one can afford.

In buying a ready built house thorough examination of its construction should be made.

Be Sure, Then Go Ahead.

In planning to build one's own house, know just what is wanted first—and then go ahead.

Remember that the sensible prospective home owner need not be disturbed over some heedless friend's mistake who had bought a larger house than he could afford, perhaps, or had been overpersuaded to make a bad bargain.

The advantages of home ownership are many and the likelihood of failure small where the adventure is undertaken with conservatism and judgment

FOR THE MOVIE ALBUM

MARY BRIAN here comes "smilin' through" for your albums. This is one of her latest and, we think, most charming photographs.

LILLIAN ROTH, you will remember, had an important part in "The Love Parade" with Maurice Chevalier. (She's not a girl whom one forgets.)

LILA LEE said, "Why, certainly I can look oriental if I try!" And the photographer snapped her—trying. Don't you think she succeeded?

WHO IS THIS SENORITA all so Spanish? She's Kay Francis, dressed up in a fashion that should make any matador lose his heart.

The Sparkling Blue of Sky and Water Match the Sparkling Vigor of their Play

THEY DIVE . . . they swim . . . they golf . . . under an azure sky. Their sun-tanned bodies glisten in the sun. Supple, muscled with steel, they move and health is in every motion. They drink "Canada Dry."

With such bodily vigor, such health, comes an exhilaration, a keenness, a marvelous sustaining quality like that of this fine old beverage, "Canada Dry." For clear as eyes which gaze out to sea . . . cool as the clean breath of the trade winds . . . "Canada Dry" has rightly taken its place as the sportsman's beverage.

And do you wonder that the healthy men and women of this country drink this fine old ginger ale? Its stimulating bodily vigor comes from basic excellence. Its very foundation is "Liquid Ginger"—which we make from selected Jamaica ginger root by a special process. This process is exclusively controlled by us and, unlike any other method, retains for "Canada Dry" all of the original aroma, flavor and natural essence of the ginger root. Rigid laboratory control assures uniformity, purity and highest quality. A special process of carbonation enables "Canada Dry" to retain its life and sparkle long after the bottle has been opened.

Try it, yourself! Notice its wonderful flavor. Taste the sportsman's beverage, reflecting in its subtle, healthy quality the vigor and drive which make aristocrats.

HAVE YOU TRIED — ?

Canada Dry's new Golden Ginger Ale. Never before have you tasted a golden ginger ale with such a marvelous flavor. The secret of its delight comes from a secret and exclusive process of beverage making. Buy it where you buy "Canada Dry."

Canada Dry's new Sparkling Lime. This wonderfully refreshing beverage brings you the lure and romance of the tropics. Let it win you with its keen, cooling lime taste as it is winning countless others daily. Buy it where you buy "Canada Dry."

The Sparkling Orange Drink
Crush-Dry
The Little Side Table

"WHY didn't they find how to carbonate fresh orange juice before? What a reminder! What a solace!"

Memories of the cellars of Rheims and that trip to the Pacific coast mingle in the wonderfully blended taste of Crush-Dry. Even the brilliant jet bottle adds to its tang.

Fresh, uncooked juice of those splendid oranges, the real health drink at last—with a dashing blend of lime and lemon, a genuine taste of the peel, and carbonated water, giving this new-day drink the bubbling sparkle of champagne.

Don't Squeeze—Pour!

Time to go – but still time to use MUM

Those times when you must be ready in a jiffy! Just time to slip on your dress. Not a moment more to spare—yet you must not chance perspiration offense.

Then's when you're most grateful for Mum!

In no more time than it takes to powder your nose, your underarm toilet is made with Mum. One dab of snowy cream under each arm, and you're safe. Slip into your dress, and step forth—with utmost assurance. For Mum doesn't even have to dry. It is soothing—not irritating—to the skin. And just as harmless to the daintiest fabric; Mum doesn't even leave the skin greasy.

This likable, usable deodorant has removed the last excuse for offending. For Mum is always ready for any and all occasions. It offers you permanent protection, for its daily use can do no harm.

Mum does not arrest the action of the pores, or interfere in any way with their normal, necessary work. And its constant use is actually beneficial to the skin.

Why chance embarrassment—ever—when you can always have absolute protection in this delightful form? Just dip a finger-tip in Mum, dab it on the underarm—or any part of the body—and it will neutralize every bit of odor. For not the slightest suggestion of any odor can possibly penetrate that protecting film of Mum. You are safe for hours.

Keep a jar of Mum on your dressing table and make its use a daily habit, morning and night. If you travel, carry Mum with you. Many women keep it in the purse, just to be ready for any emergency. Be sure to investigate the important special use explained in the directions:

Spread a little Mum on the sanitary napkin and you will be serenely sure of yourself; confident of perfect daintiness at all times.

Mum isn't expensive. Its most liberal use is scarcely an item if you buy a 60c jar (containing about three times the quantity of the 35c size). All toilet-goods counters.

THERE'S ALWAYS TIME TO USE MUM

If you will mail this coupon to MUM, 80 Varick St., New York, you'll receive a complimentary Box of Mum for a free demonstration!

Our Pioneer Women

By W. E. Hill

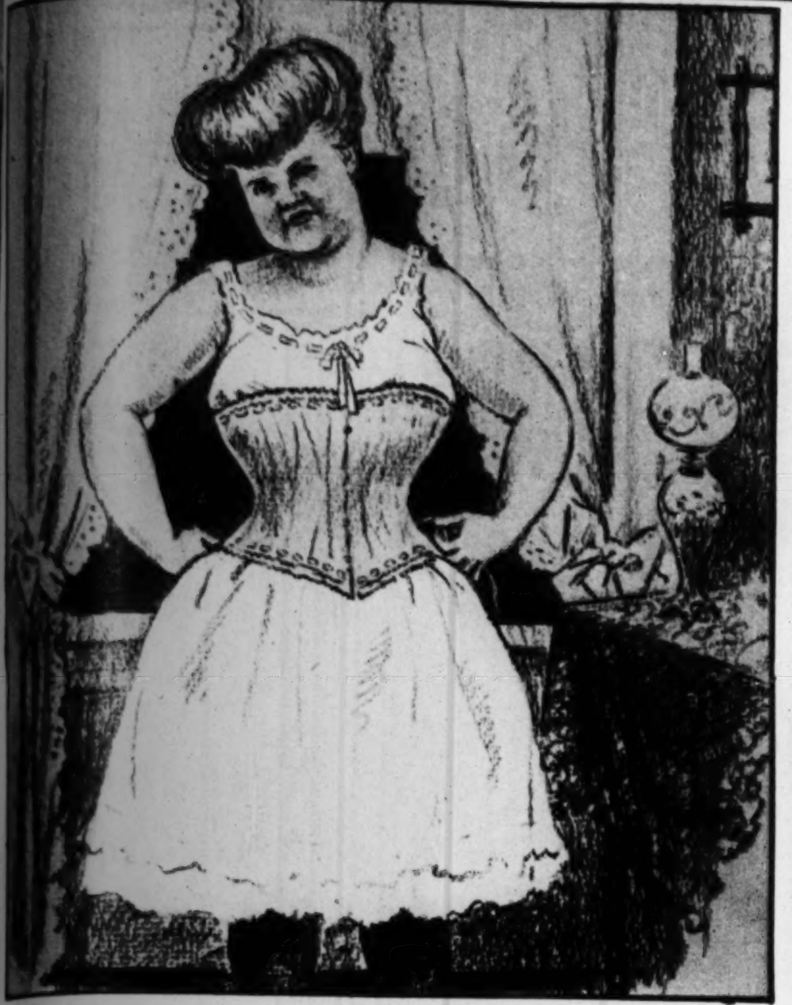
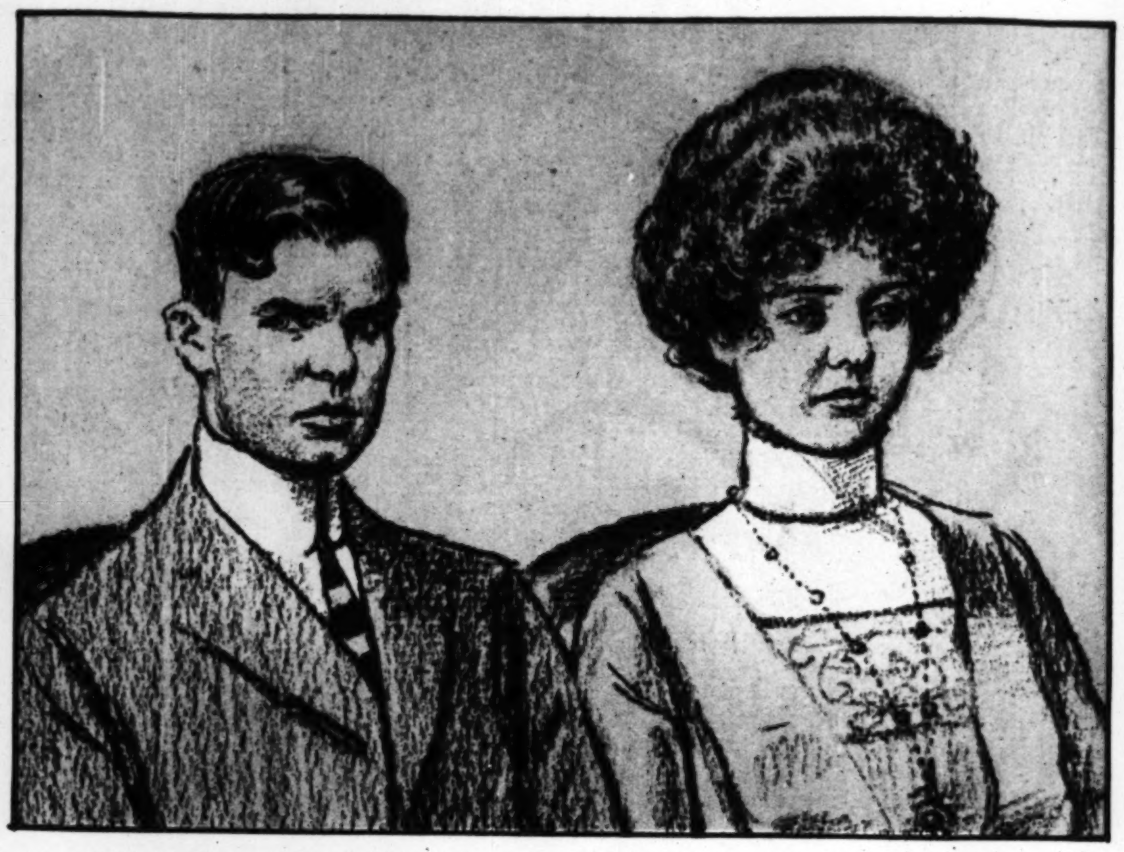
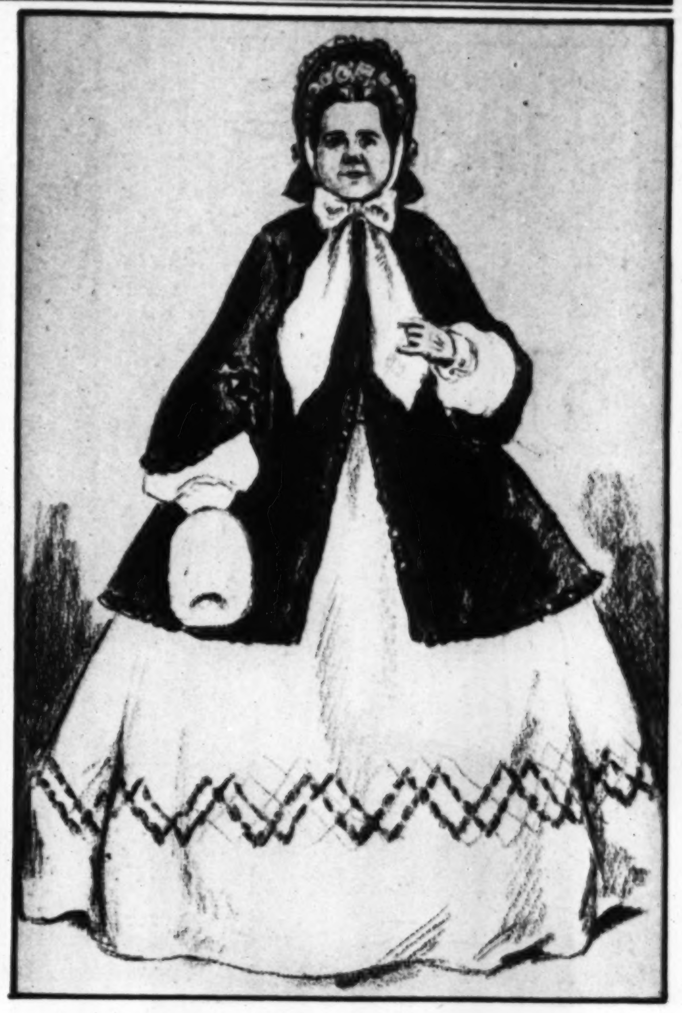
[Copyright: 1930: By The Chicago Tribune.]



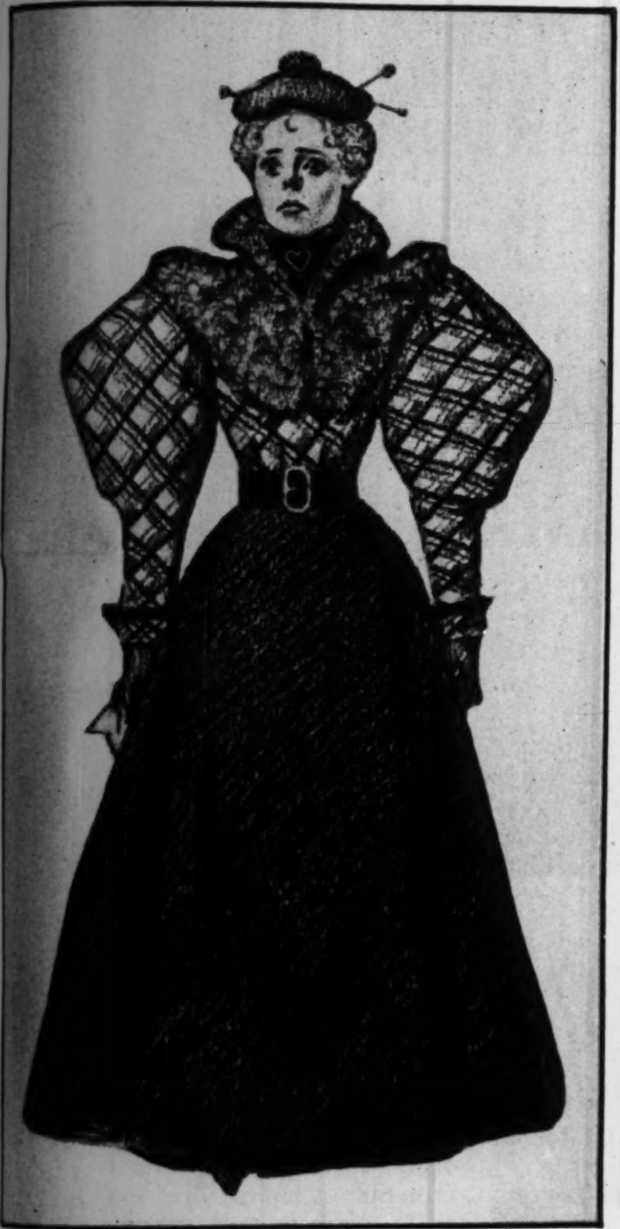
The sweet girl who used to disrobe by the window in a perfect glare of light was of great educational value, for she it was who got the bachelor population of these United States used to lingerie.



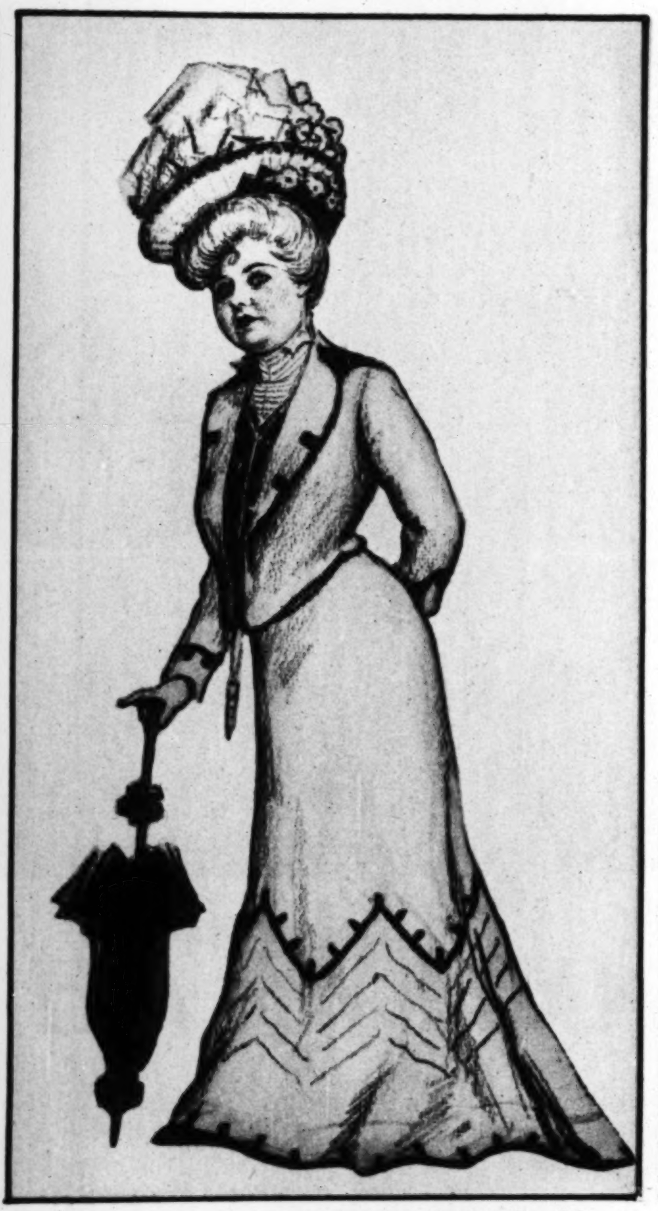
Meet the brave girl who first resolved not to say, "Wilfred, take me home," during a matinee of the problem play when the dialogue waxed frank and open. Nowadays a healthy girl will up and leave if the play is too refined, but in the old days it was the other way 'round.



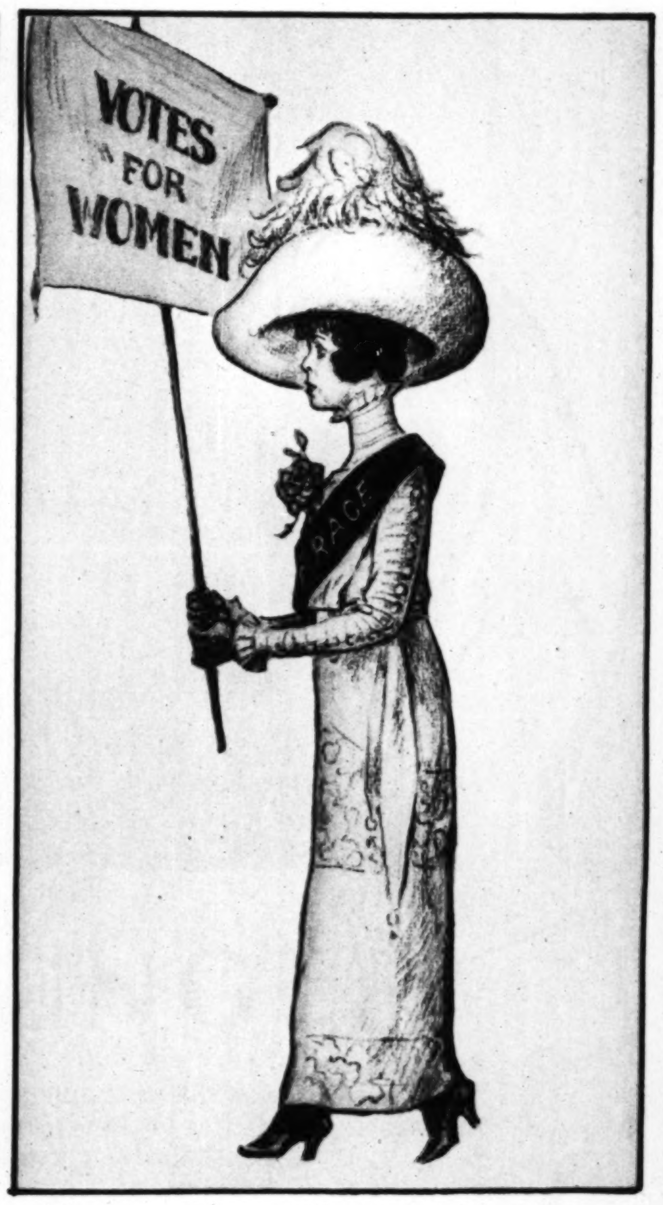
A San Francisco beauty of the late sixties—the first California girl on record to boost the California sunshine and the climate in general. She it was who first told about the blankets they sleep under at night—even in the warmest weather.



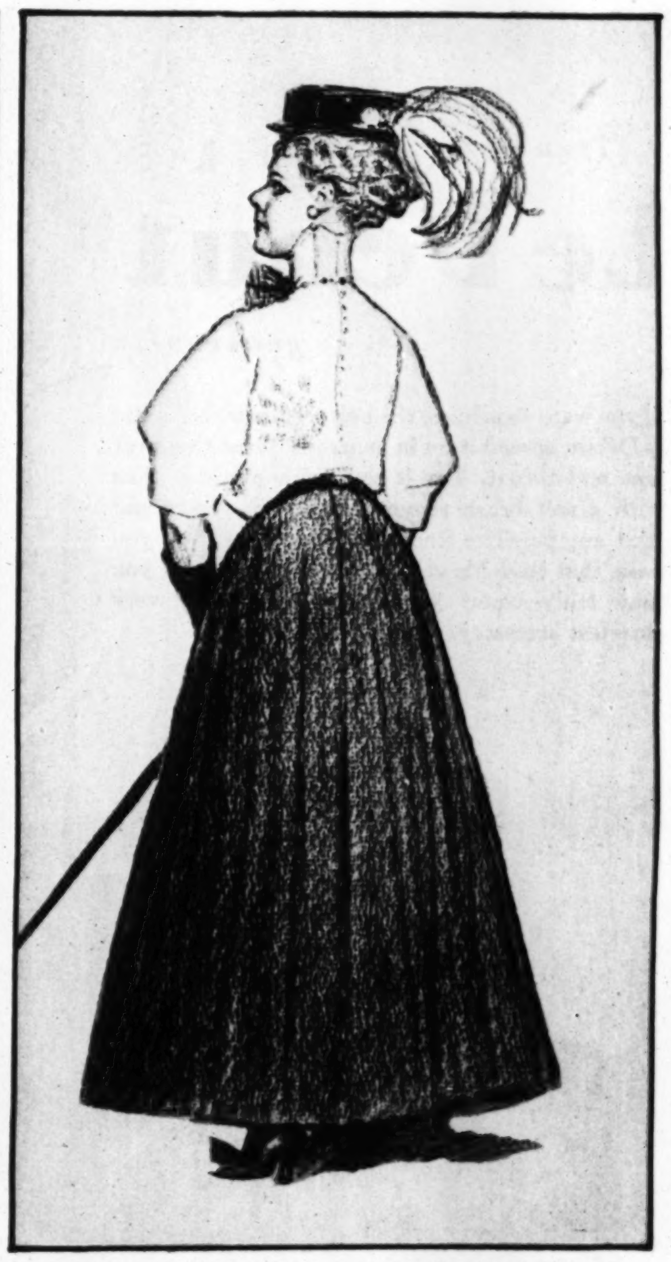
An early American stenog who, having loosed the home ties and given the lie to the old belief that woman's place was in the home, went after a job and became the vanguard of America's tired business girls. Her family warned her continually to beware of letting the boss entice her to a hug and a kiss, and the boss' wife was sure she sat in his lap and typed letters.



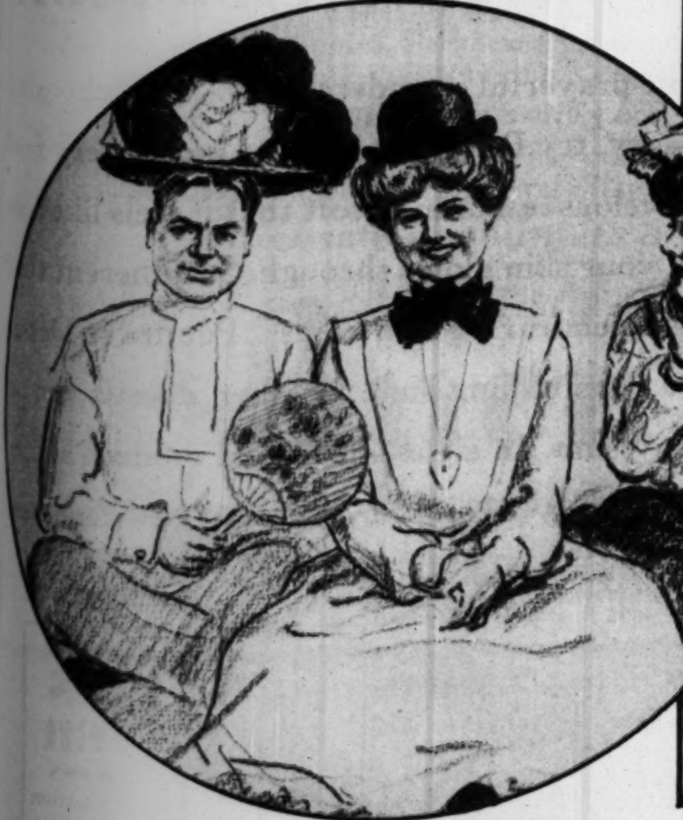
It was tough going in the days gone by for the girl who rouged and used make-up, and, O, the nasty things the neighbors used to say about her. Nevertheless, she paved the way for the rose-tinted cheeks and ruby lips of the girl of today.



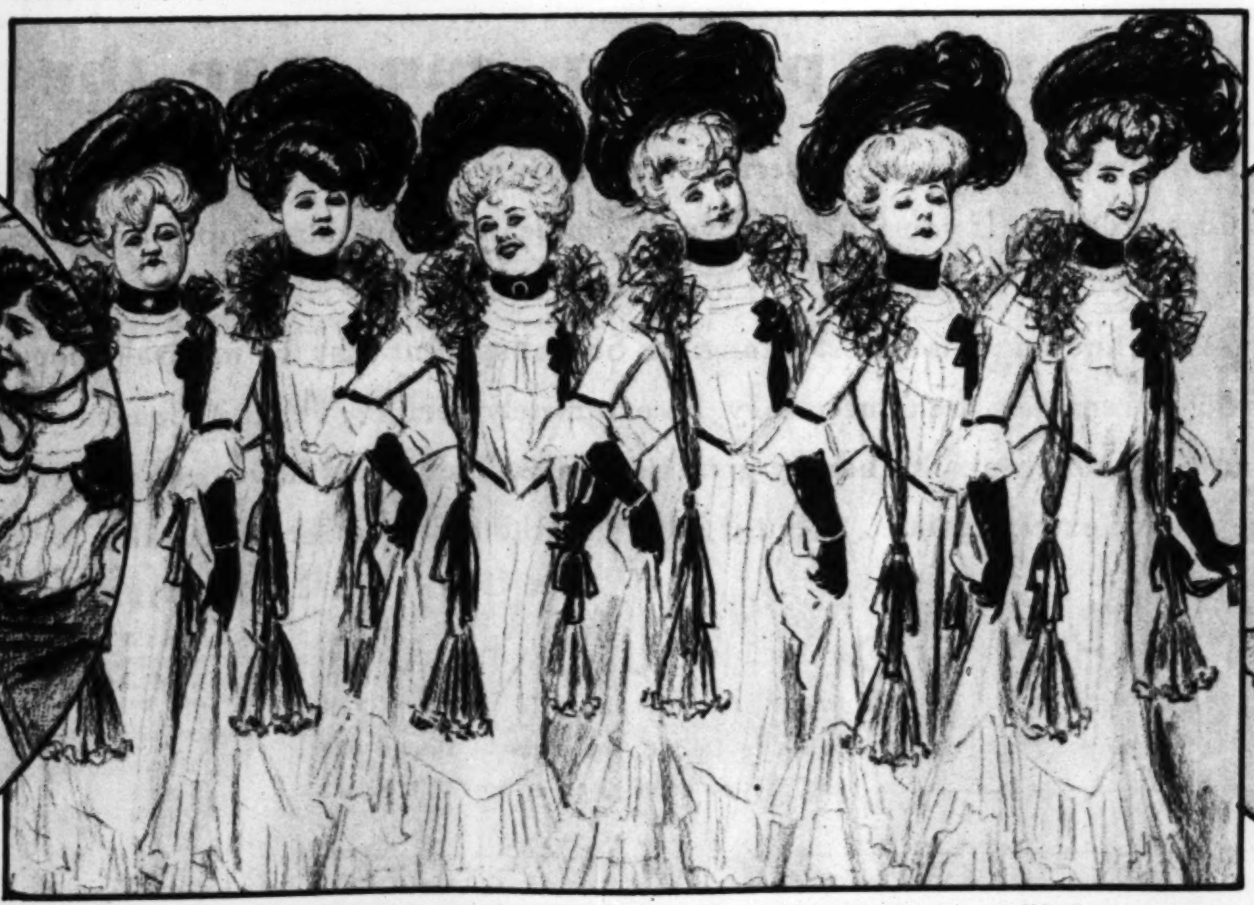
A pioneer suffragette, all fixed up in her best willow plumes, about to march to victory in the "Votes for Women" parade.



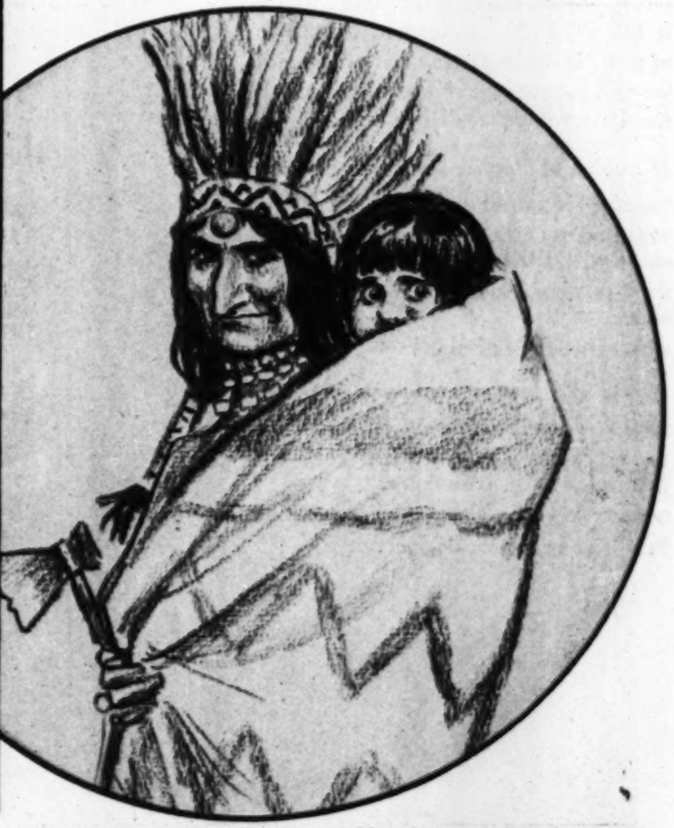
And here we have the young lady who, for the first time in history, told it about that she had never yet walked home from an auto ride. Some believed it and some didn't.



Here's to the memory of the first girl who thought it would be pretty cute to change hats in the group snapshot.



The early American glorified girl as typified by a Florodora sextet. These hardy pioneers did a lot to make America chorus-girl conscious.



Squaw "Up-and-at-'Em," granddaughter of Pocahontas, who originated the sparkling line, "I certainly have everything on but the kitchen stove!"

If you too, count your complexion your most important accessory, try Poudre le Début. In the very first trial you will see the reason for its distinguished acceptance . . . its texture, its marvelous texture. So soft that it feels like rose petals. A 10-minute Miracle of Rejuvenation; Buena Tonic Well Vacu-Patted In!

LOOK YEARS YOUNGER

. . . . at once! You'll marvel at Buena Skin Tonic's delightful transformation! A single application, and your mirror will reflect a charming change. All traces gone of oily, greasy skin. Coarse distended pores become invisible. Lines and wrinkles disappear. Dull, sallow complexions become vibrant with healthy life. The soothed, softened skin stays velvety for hours.

An end to oily skin

Dermatologists say nose shine and oily skin are signs of seborrhea, which if neglected covers the skin with enlarged pores, blackheads and eruptions. But seborrhea yields instantly to Buena's soothing touch.

Balanced formula works swiftly and smoothly

Speedily the loose laxity of crepey skin is firmed and the lines and wrinkles erased—yet without the smarting burn of alcoholic astringents. Instantly the ageing acidity of perspiration and grease-gland activity is corrected by the bland but potent alkalinity of Buena Tonic—yet none of the roughness of magnesium results. The skin is delightfully smoothed and softened—yet without the too-drying after-effects of a glycerine wash.

Preserves youth thru ageing years

That's why Buena has been used by the same women, thousands of them, year after year—preserving the soft texture and glowing health of skins kept virile and young. And that's why Buena is so definitely and positively guaranteed to you.

That's also why men find Buena so delightful after shaving, before golfing—and as a protection from weather exposure. Try it.

dermis, or inner layer of skin, where sunburn does its damage and where Unguentine goes.

● DON'T expect a lotion or toilet cream to stop sunburn. Lotions and toilet creams only reach the outer surface of the skin . . .

Unguentine penetrates. It stops the pain quickly, and heals, because it goes right down to the dermis, or inner layer of the skin. It is in this inner layer that the burn usually occurs.

Sunburn is just like any other burn. It needs the same kind of treatment. So always use Unguentine, the famous antiseptic ointment used for burns in 8 out of 10 hospitals.

Insist on Unguentine. Only 50 cents for the long-lasting tube. At your druggist's.

DOWN THE RIVER FROM TRIBUNE TOWER (once it would have been "up"), the Merchandise Mart, the world's biggest building, has received the final touches from the illuminating engineers and now presents this spectacle to the night.

The Glass that Cheers Like the Beer of Old

All the joys remain . . . Same sparkle, foam and flavor

The old-time bottle of beer is something that many miss. Some are seeking like effects in home brews, in near-beers or in other drinks. But they fail to find them, for they are not there.

Atlas Special Brew is made to bring those old days back. It is brewed exactly like the old-time Atlas, always the leader in Chicago. The same masters brew it with the same old care. It has the same quality, same age, same purity. It has the same sparkle, foam and flavor. It brings you all the old delights, all the aids to good digestion.

After the process is finished, we evaporate most of the alcohol. That is the only difference, and you cannot discover it. Alcohol always was a minor factor, and the meal-time bottle is far better without it.

The Benefits of Beer

No need to miss beer. No need of makeshifts, flat, green or impure. You have the best you ever had in Atlas Special Brew.

If you liked the zest and flavor, they are here. If you liked the mellowness, it's here. We treat the water in this Brew to bring you that rare European flavor.

If you liked purity, here you have it at its utmost. Atlas Special Brew is sterilized, gradually cooled, filtered through white wool pulp, then pasteurized in the bottle. A famous laboratory certifies the purity on each bottle.

If you liked the aids to digestion, they were esters and aldehydes. Both are here in full. If you liked the tonic-effects, they were those aids to digestion, plus hops.

What Not to Do

Don't expect from green "near-beers" any of the old helps or delights. Don't expect them from home brews, wretched and impure.

Atlas Special Brew offers you the best that all the ages have produced in a malt-and-hop brew. Get it

Atlas Special Brew is supplied by over 15,000 grocers, delicatessen stores and drug stores in Chicago and surrounding states. It is also served at most golf courses, restaurants, hotels and clubs. It costs only 15c a bottle, much less by the case of 24 bottles, whether delivered direct to your door or from your neighborhood store. Be careful of the brand—Atlas Special Brew. Look for the green Atlas Special label on each bottle. Atlas Brewing Company, 2107 Blue Island Avenue, Chicago, Ill. A DAY AT THE CHICAGO GOLF CLUB—At one of the oldest and most exclusive of Chicago institutions devoted to the ancient and royal game, near Wheaton, the camera observes Chicagoans at play. The waterhole here portrayed is of typical beauty.

THE FOLLOW THROUGH as exemplified by R. B. Whiting at a water hole, while T. F. Foster, H. R. Evans, and W. G. Houston look on.

BROWN STUDY—Lennox Nairn observes the rite of making himself invisible and inaudible as Mrs. Nairn sinks a painstaking putt.

TELL ME, DAISY—Did Harold M. Scott, or didn't he, make the putt good?

NEXT—Walter W. Crawford awaits his turn at the tee.

PARIS.—(Special.)—The follower of fashion must be a versatile creature. She has to live up to her complicated, sophisticated afternoon and evening clothes and she must be equally at one with her simple summer frocks for sports and country. Fashion is asking us to play as many roles as a stock company star, and the only way to be chic is to do each and every one of them well.

Dressing your type is no longer enough. You have to dress what you do, also. There's just one means of escape. If you can't get away with a certain kind of clothes, don't do what these clothes are designed for. Cowboys don't go to afternoon teas. They live the kind of life their clothes call for, and they are just as chic as the smartest woman in the world. The exotic, languid siren has no allure in a tennis frock, and the simple maiden would better remain aloof from the draped and complicated dress unless she can transform her spirit to suit what she wears.

There is a simple side to Paris fashions, and this side is for those women who can, at will, be healthy, vigorous young things, or who are just naturally born that way and can't help themselves. For such, these fashions are made to order. They are intended for moving around, and they make no bid for attention apart from their suitability to the sportive scene.

On the simple side of Paris styles you will find that waistlines are natural, hemlines just below the knees, no seams fitted, and collars and sleeves reduced to their least common denominator. No lace-trimmed lingerie details swell the profit side of a laundry ledger. No separation of waist and skirt imperil the oneness of the frock during strenuous sports. No cutting up and sewing together of bands and whatnot disturb the real, true simplicity of these styles. They are what they seem, and their accessories are of the same uncomplication.

Hats of homespun straw, starched tricot hats, and berets and tiny caps are the fashionably simple millinery for such clothes. Gloves of chamois, minus the tiniest button fastening, slip on easily because they are worn a bit too large so as to leave the hands quite free inside them. Jewelry is only appropriate when it stays at home in your jewel box, or what have you? Low heeled oxfords, or something in an open, low heeled sandal are worn on the smart, sportive foot. A large bag of leather to match the shoes is what the particular Parisienne carries with such a frock.

While simplicity is chic, itself, beware of the simplicity that is also dumb. Nothing monotonous is ever smart. What is smart is the simplest of frocks with character, and that character in the style movement of today. The sweater and skirt are out. Having grown too familiar, they are bores. The cardigan jacket is a drug on the chic market for the same reason. The sleeveless dress is rarely worn alone. Short sleeves are new, and they are smart because of this.

The sports dress that is going to be worn into action usually has little capes instead of sleeves, because they leave the upper arm free for a wicked up stroke, and they are just as smart as the short, fitted sleeve that interferes with the game. Some of the most fashionable summer sports outfits wear their sleeves in little jackets, so they can be removed when the game is on.

The cape, as a wrap, has no place in the chic sports clothes wardrobe. It is out of character for this side of fashions, although it is extremely fashionable to wear with a simple summer dress that isn't intended—or worn—for anything like active sports.

The sports dress invariably has a wide skirt, and if this skirt is fitted at the top the fitting is never very tight. The ordinary plaited skirt is not the most fashionable type for simple sports fashions. Some of the smartest Paris sports frocks have circular skirts. Others have box plaits distributed at intervals around the skirt. Others are both circular and box plaited, giving a new and tricky line.

This kind of a skirt is shown in one of our sketches today. It is made of Irish green and white tweed cut in a complete circle and then stitched down into four box plaits at sides of front and back. These plaits are stitched flat to below the hipline, from which point they flare. There is a wide belt at the waistline, sewed on to the white pique's blouse, that has notched edgings à la Chanel.

This blouse has box plaits from a suggested yoke at the sides of the front, with a little flap pocket at the top. The white pique jacket is flared from the shoulder yoke and has notched borders. The hat is made of green tricot, with its brim starched into draped lines, as shown.

Pink has gotten into the sports mode this year for the first time in many seasons, and pink shantung is a favorite fabric. The model shown in another sketch is made of this material, but it has other claims to chic, for the line of this model and its details gives it an ideal smart simplicity. As shown on the smaller figure, this dress has a real Empire waistline, decorated with crystal buttons, and from this waistline the plaited skirt begins. It is held flat by a belt of brown patent leather at the normal waist. A second row of crystal buttons is placed at the bottom of the shoulder yoke, and a detachable bertha of pink shantung has buttonholes along the lower edge at front and back, so it can be buttoned on to the waist, or removed for actual sports. The hat is made of pink linen trimmed with bias bands. The gloves are brown antelope and so are the oxfords.

The sports ensemble shown on another figure is made of white cotton serge. Lyonnel, the new sports couturier, sets the buttoned red leather belt into the dress, which is sleeveless and has a three-section yoke at shoulders and hipline. The skirt below is flared by two box plaits at front and back. The cleverest detail of this ensemble, and the one that endows it with Paris chic is the bolero jacket with short cape sleeves. This jacket has a soft, rounded collar with two jabot ends, which attach it by passing through crystal rings. A group of tucks at the neckline in back fit it neatly.

Patou's tennis helmet of white paillasson straw, banded with red ribbon is shown. The gloves are chamois. This ensemble may be worn for a game of tennis or golf, or it may serve simply for a hot weather costume for country club wear. It is both spectator and active sports chic, though for the side lines sportswoman a wide brimmed hat of paillasson straw would be substituted for the helmet.

Our fourth sketch shows another white sports model from Lyonnel. This frock is made of coarse linen, and has the circular skirt that is such a favorite with the Paris sportswoman. This skirt is scalloped around its hem, and a panel in front is buttoned on to the top of the skirt under scalloped borders. This effect is repeated at the top of the waist, buttoning the cape sleeves to the body of the waist. A black patent leather belt fastens with one button, and a black tricot beret is worn on the head.

Color Enhances Charm

—By Antoinette Donnelly—

Remember in Choosing Your Dress Shades the Value of Bringing Out Your Best Features and Strengthening the Weak Points.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The classification of women by types is a task to confound a Solomon. There is nothing on record to prove that he, with all his wisdom ever attempted it.

A few daring souls have tried to compromise skin, hair, and eye coloring with dress shades with the result that there are charts for guidance, interesting some of them but most of them too intricate for practical use.

To begin with you have the task of deciding whether you are Castilian brunette, or the Slavonic, Celtic, Iberian or Ethiopian version of that type; or it may be that your unerring instinct will guide you to the conclusion that you are a Nordic, a Venetian, an Anglo-Saxon, or per chance a Lithuanian blonde.

On still another hand, you may be a titian, or one of those two strange types so much admired in Europe, the Polish ash-blonde and the Rumanian brunette, both of whom are characterized by the famous "eye put in with a sooty finger," in other words, eyes that appear extremely brilliant and mysterious due to a dark surrounding shadow penciled by nature alone. As a matter of fact you are probably what is best described in terms of music as a "New World Symphony" and are blessed with more than a bit of each of these traits. And therein lies the difficulty with type and color charts for the amateur.

Be Guided by Reality.

A woman is prone to pick out the type she wants to be rather than the one she actually resembles, and when she dresses accordingly, effects are ofttimes startling. Witness the astounding varieties of Garbos and Clara Bows at large in a wondering world. Have you ever sat and gazed at a girl and pondered over the question, "Who in the world does she think she is looking like now?"

In this day and generation, as never before in history, does the world revolve upon an orbit of color, and what it has lent to feminine beauty you must realize as well as I. With the warning that there is no point in brooding over type and color chart, it may be mentioned that there are certain rules of color conduct to be observed nevertheless.

If you can face yourself honestly in the cold light of day and make up your mind that you look like yourself and nobody else, and that you'd really much rather, anyway—there are a few pointers in this color business that may help you to make the most of your charming self.

Black is often the key to ultrasmartness, but the key must fit the lock, for black can also be the dowdiest and most unbecoming color you can wear. Black to be smart must observe the strictest rules of cut, quality and the inherent poise of the wearer. It tends to make one appear slimmer, as all of us know who can boast one well cut black dress.

Colors with Reducing Effect.

Dark blue also gives a reducing effect, as do elusive shades like grayish lavender and the lighter, smokier blues. Colors that register instantly, like red, yellow, orange, purple and the more brilliant blues have precisely the reverse effect. Pure, bright colors also have a disposition to emphasize age and defects of the skin.

Dead white calls for an amazingly clear skin. The off whites are possible, however, and often extremely becoming to a wide range of types blessed only with the so-called average skin. The choice should be based only upon direct comparison with the color of the flesh.

Together with white, orange, henna, cold green, blue and tan shades should be closely observed for their sallowing effects.

There is a vital note in color choosing not universally enough recognized. "A color should never be permitted to triumph over your personality." And this is about as good a color guide as you can adopt. Color is of value only when it brings into relief your best feature or strengthens a weak one, as when it deepens the hue of the eyes or brightens and enlivens the hair. If a color darkens the shadows of the skin and overpowers either eyes or hair, or both, it is distinctly to be regarded as an unsuccessful shade for you.

Enrich Natural Charm.

Strongly contrasting colors in dress call for proportionately emphatic coloring of eyes and hair. Women of delicate or negative coloring are completely eclipsed by vivid shades of red, purple, violet, blues, greens and strong yellows. These types should attempt to deepen and enrich their own particular charm with colors which impart a soft glow—pink beiges, orchids which incline to pink, warm tans and peach shades have this effect.

The florid complexioned should endeavor to cool themselves with the duller greens, blues, browns, and those tans which have least pink in them. Any color reflecting pink or red should be avoided and it will be found that dark blues are kind in reducing a too high color in complexion.

Color can do a great deal for any woman, of any age. Indeed, age is no longer a determining factor in the choice of color. You may wear scarlet at 60 and lavender at 6—either of which would have been highly improper twenty years ago.

My Funniest Experience

What is the funniest experience you have ever had? The Tribune will pay $1 for every one published. Address Funniest Experiences, Sunday Tribune. No manuscripts returned.

"Roses, Good Quantity."

My husband frequently brought me roses when we were engaged. One day when he was out of town he wired the florist to send some to me. Twelve dozen roses arrived! The members of my family, who said they were convinced the man was crazy, helped me to find places for them. We gave some to the neighbors, filled all the vases in the house, and still had roses to spare. My funniest experience was telling my fiancé the next day where all the roses came from. It seems he had wired for "good quality" and the florist had sent "good quantity."

Seated on a Sage Brush.

On a return trip to the dude ranch where I vacationed last year, our horses were walking slowly and the riders were relating their experiences of the happy all day ride in the woods. Thinking to rest my feet, I let them dangle out of the stirrups. Suddenly my horse shied at a windblown sagebrush and jumped from under me. He stopped, dead still, and waited for me to mount him again, for I had landed quickly and comfortably on a sagebrush cushion. After the laughter subsided, we proceeded to the ranch house—my feet in the stirrups.

Calf Greeted Bridge Party.

We once lived in a small town where we had a lovely bungalow, both inside and out, and also a generous sized lawn. One afternoon I gave a bridge party and had worked hard to have everything look right both inside and out.

Imagine how I felt when I went to the front door to welcome my guests to observe a big red calf staked in the front yard and bawling loudly.

Investigation afterwards proved that my small daughter had removed the calf from a vacant lot and brought it home to be "good" to it. J. T. T.

Bridal Couple's Reception.

The funniest sight I have ever seen took place after a church wedding. When the bride and bridegroom came out of the church, instead of their limousine there stood a fire department auto. Attached to this was a grind organ with a monkey sitting on it. Amid roars of laughter they lifted the bridal couple into this bright red auto while the grind organ played "Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight." M. N.

Furniture for Midsummer

—By Edith Weigle

Carefully Selected Rattan and Reed Pieces for Porch and Garden Are as Refreshing as a Cool Breeze on a Hot Day.

A MONTH and a half of warm weather face us before we see the first crimson leaf of autumn and put the first tanned youngster on the train for school. And this period immediately ahead can be the hottest of the entire summer. Then, if ever, come sizzling days and torrid nights.

The clever woman, whether her house is on a baking city street or in a sunny country lane, sets her wits to working and camouflages the heat as much as possible with cool, restful interiors and appropriate summer furniture. The latter can do much to create an atmosphere of gayety and charm.

The porch serves as the center of attraction, and care in selecting its furnishings is amply rewarded by the pleasure they give. A uniform color scheme is essential for harmony. It is not always necessary to buy an entire set of rattan, wicker or reed furniture to insure this, however. Some old chairs may be skillfully painted or lacquered to harmonize perfectly with new ones, and even relics from the attic may appear, entirely disguised by new slip covers of flowered cretonne or glazed chintz.

In the city department and furniture stores I notice that all sorts of materials are being used to get away from the beaten path in porch and garden furniture. In one shop I saw a table and chairs fascinatingly foreign in character. Interlaced fiber rope was stretched across the metal framework of each article. The round table top looked like a large woven mat and made the most artistic background for china and flowers. Tablecloths could be entirely dispensed with.

Another new idea in wrought iron furniture is a chaise longue made of the iron framework combined with braided rawhide. The rawhide makes a most resilient seat, and is treated to prevent damage by rain. This chair had a long cushion of linen, but the back was of the rawhide without the cushion. Straight chairs and a three tiered wrought iron table accompanied the chaise longue.

The largest picture today shows a really lovely little group for a small porch. The natural color rattan settee is portable, having two rubber tired wheels at the rear, so you can push it out on the lawn if you care to, or bring it in when it rains. It is cushioned in a colorful glazed chintz, having a flower pattern on a black background.

The comfortable arm chair at the right harmonizes nicely with the settee, as its luxurious cushions are also black with a stunning profusion of colored flowers. Here the material is cretonne.

The little round table is rattan, too. On it are a simple pottery lamp with parchment shade banded in colors and an amusing elephant ash tray.

In the rear is a plant stand of wrought iron with three pots of trailing ivy, always a decorative touch.

The portable chaise longue is similar to one shown several weeks ago, except that this is not a rocker. Its "life saver" cushions are of flowered waterproof muslin and there is a receptacle for magazines in one of the arms of the chair.

A portable chaise longue for the terrace.

Another chair was unusually large and of rattan with spring cushions. The new feature of this article was that the arms were also cushioned. An accompanying table and lamp were of natural colored rattan.

Upholstering at Home

—By WillElla de Campi—

The Amateur Can Reupholster a Chair by Following These Simple Directions and Thus Have the Pleasure of a New Covering.

SINCE limited incomes are no longer considered a disgrace but rather something to be proud of, the creating of attractive interiors at moderate prices has become one of the most fascinating of indoor sports. Economizing is smart. Efficiency is frankly and boldly proclaimed. Making the most of each dollar is the ambition of every clever woman. Inexpensive possessions can have an air and distinction which are often lacking in more costly objects. Wise little ways and means of achieving interesting effects are sought out and flaunted by one and all, and success is a definite proof of ingenuity and keen wits judiciously exercised.

Reupholstering is one of the most efficacious processes of making something out of nothing. Many a good old chair or sofa wearing an old clothes hangdog look may be given new life by the simple expedient of new upholstery. The work of recovering is not as difficult as it might seem. It is advisable, of course, for the amateur to select a somewhat plain piece rather than a large or complicated one for the first effort.

To reupholster a plain chair like the one shown in figure 1 the first step is to remove the old upholstery, which in this instance was brown velour. This must be done carefully so that the old pieces may be used as patterns by which to cut the new material. In most chairs of this type, with the seat slipping down inside of the chair frame, there is an inside frame which supports the springs and the cushion itself. By turning the chair upside down it is easy to find the four screws which hold the seat in position. These should be taken out and the seat should be removed to facilitate working.

If the old padding has been flattened down it should be refluffed as much as possible and the lining, if badly worn, should be removed and replaced by new unbleached muslin before the new covering is put on. After the body of the chair is in good condition, the new material may be cut, using the old pieces as patterns. In this case, soft green wool damask was used for reupholstering. The front piece should be put on first, held securely by tacks [about number 3 size] placed approximately one and one-half inches apart. Beginning at A, the center of the top of the back, the material should be drawn taut and tacked across the top to within two inches of each side. Next, the center of the bottom, B, should be started and worked in the same way toward each side. The sides C and D should be tacked next in the same way. The corners should then be mitered carefully and tacked down firmly.

After the front has been securely tacked on, the flat back piece, cut large enough so that the edges may be turned under, should be put on. This back piece should just cover the tacks which hold the front. If the new material is heavy the edges need not be turned under. The joining should be covered with a flat, inconspicuous furniture braid, matching the material or its dominant color note. This braid should be put on with small, round-headed finishing tacks, and these should be so placed that they will be as unnoticeable as possible.

Next in order is the covering of the seat. Here again the old covering should be used as a pattern. Top and side sections should be cut separately, with at least three-quarters of an inch all around each piece allowed for seams. Biased strips of the material, one and one-half inches wide, should be folded and basted to the right side of the top of the seat, so that they will form a piping when the sides are joined to the top. The four side sections should then be sewed together, with biased pipings in the seams. Then they should be be joined to the top. Strong linen thread, closely back-stitched, should be used for this sewing.

After the cover has been firmly sewed, it should be turned and stretched on to the seat. Then it should be tacked along the bottom, starting from the center of each side and working toward the corners. If measuring, cutting and sewing have been accurate, the cover will fit perfectly, with a well-finished, tailored look. The seat, with its cover firmly tacked on should then be put into the chair frame and the four screws should be replaced. With its new upholstery, the chair is then ready to occupy a place of honor.

Another type of chair which may be safely tackled by the amateur upholsterer is the little French armchair shown in Figure 2. As the webbing in the seat was old and worn, the first step was to replace it with new. Each strip was cut two and a half inches longer than those which were taken out. The new webbing was then fastened to the inside of the wooden chair frame by means of large carpet tacks, each strip having been made as taut as possible. This webbing, of course, was woven in basket fashion as shown in the illustration.

The old upholstery of brocade was removed and used as a pattern for cutting a new cover of lovely ash-rose moiré. Back and side pieces, inside and out, were cut and tacked on first, starting from the center of each section, and working toward the corners in the approved method. A flat gimp matching the moire in color was used to cover the edges.

As the down-filled seat cushion is a separate unit, a new cover of the moire was cut and sewed to fit it with pipings made from bias strips in each of the seams. No tacking was necessary here. To complete the chair, a strip of the moire was tacked across the front of the seat just above the frame before the seat cushion was set in place. Little arm pads were covered and finished with the gimp.

Patterns and How to Use Them

—By Clotilde—

A Few Yards of Inexpensive Material, a Few Hours' Work and at a Negligible Cost You Have Varied Your Summer Wardrobe.

THE bodice of the charming afternoon frock made by pattern No. 3299 closes in surplice effect and the neck is finished with a one sided collar.

Short kimono sleeves will be just right for these summer afternoons and at the left side of the skirt there is a cascading drapery that provides a lovely fluttering fullness each time the wearer moves. The back of this dress, cut in one piece, is quite straight. The drapery is plaited at the upper edge and stitched beneath the extension of the right front. A small, pointed tab is stitched across the end of the surplice closing.

You can see at once that this isn't a difficult dress to make—only never forget to compare your own with the main measures of the pattern. See that the length is what you want, and that over the hips the dress will fit well, but not too tight. There is never any beauty in too close fitting. Pulling and drawing will be the result.

The drapery should be finished at the bottom and up the side before setting it in place on the dress. See that the bottom of the drapery comes exactly to the bottom of the dress. The dress allows for a hem below this point, so if you change the length bear that in mind, so that you can get the drapery exactly the correct length.

The sleeve edges are finished with a narrow bias binding, and the collar is of a contrasting color, bound with the color used for the sleeve binding. Then the tab is made of the color used for the collar, with a narrow, stitched band of the binding color set on through the center.

If a printed crêpe is used for the dress, these contrasting, plain colors can be the two most prominent in the print.

Pattern No. 3208 is for a demure one piece frock for small girls. Tiny shoulder caps are formed by the manner of cutting. The neck is cut round, and the bottom of the skirt may be finished with a deep hem or the edge may be scalloped. Perforations on the pattern show how to cut the scalloped edge.

French blue batiste with plaited ruffling, pastel handkerchief lawn, and candy striped percale are attractive selections for play hours. For dressy occasions Nile green taffeta, daffodil yellow organdy, and peach colored georgette crêpe with self fabric trim would be lovely. Another pretty dress would be dimity in rose pink and blue tones. The plaiting could be in rose organdy and the shoulder bow of rose pink grosgrain ribbon.

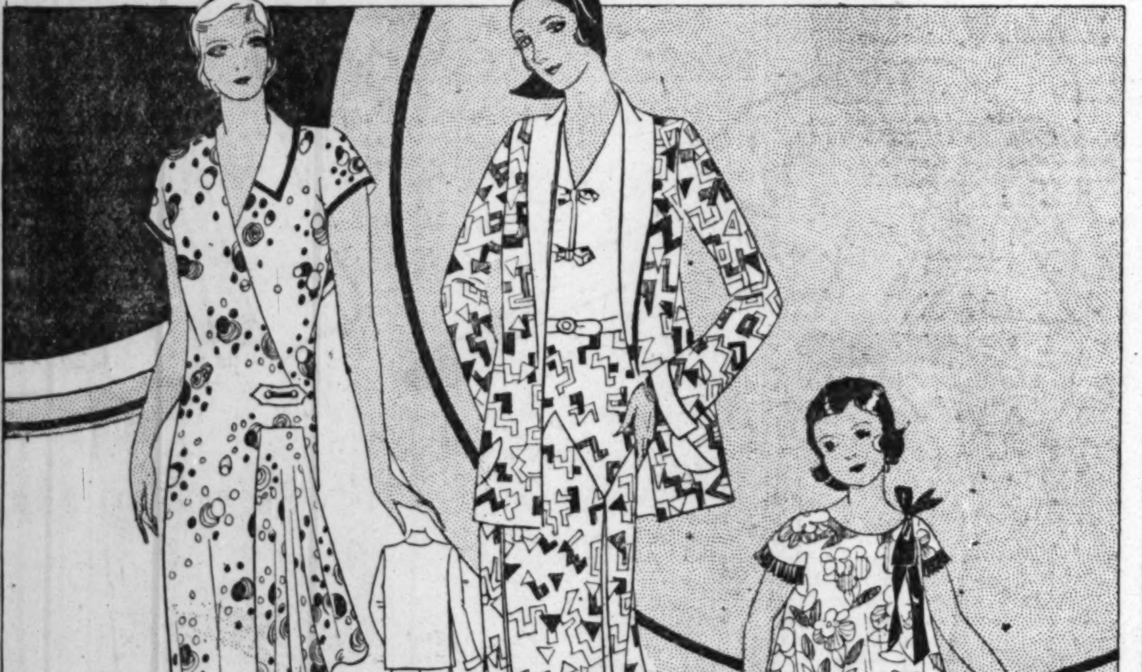
Suits are one of the most important items in a woman's wardrobe this season, and they are known as "dressmaker suits." The softness of their finishing makes it possible for women who sew to make them successfully, in which case the cost of the material is negligible. Pattern No. 3436 is a chic example of a smart suit, with its hip length jacket, simply made with the fronts underfaced and rolled back, forming revers. Patch pockets and turn back cuffs on the easy fitting sleeves complete it. The little waist is slashed at the center front, and the slashed edges are bound and finished for closing. The V shaped neck is both comfortable and becoming, and the inset cap sleeves are easy to make. This waist is attached to the skirt with its two piece yoke, shaped prettily. To the yoke is attached the four piece skirt, which has a box plait each side of the front, while the back is cut circular. The skirt at the bottom, for size 16, measures about 2½ yards.

Green printed silk crêpe combined with an eggshell shade; yellow and white sports weight linen with plain yellow sheer linen for the simulated bodice, and a chiffon print in hyacinth blue coloring for the dress, with the jacket of flat silk crêpe in a matching shade are delightful suggestions.



3299—Woman's and misses' dress. Sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 2⅞ yards of 39 inch material with ¼ yard of 27 inch contrasting and 1¾ yards of binding.

3436—Woman's and misses' jacket costume. Sizes 14, 16, and 18 years and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 4 yards of 39 inch figured material with 1⅝ yards of 39 inch plain material.

You'll Get Rid of Dandruff Sure

What a question dandruff has gotten to be and how to get rid of it. Dirt and dust combine with the fatty accumulations in the pores of the scalp and form this hair destroying and most objectionable embarrasing film we call dandruff. You can surely get rid of it by a simple and easy method. Get from your druggist a few ounces of liquid Calonite, apply freely to the scalp and after just one application you will find that every particle of dandruff and skin pore accumulations have been dissolved away entirely. Then once a week will keep your scalp clean and your hair will take on new life and stop falling.

Mercolized Wax Keeps Skin Young

DO you know that just beneath that soiled, discolored, faded or aged complexion is one fair to look upon? Nature causes the normal skin to peel off in tiny, unseen, flour-like particles, a little each day, renewing the complexion of youth naturally, but there comes a time when this skin shedding slows up. Worry, overwork, sickness, inactivity are reasons that cause the face to be blotchy, discolored, pimply and old looking. The thing to do, if you wish to look your prettiest at all times, is to assist nature in the process of absorption by using pure Mercolized Wax. Get an ounce at any drug store or beauty counter and use as directed. It gently but surely peels away the outer scarf skin, removing freckles, pimples, blackheads or a muddy complexion. The underneath skin, now in evidence is clear, pink, fresh and velvety, and the entire face looks years younger. Mercolized Wax brings out the hidden beauty.

To quickly remove wrinkles and other age lines we recommend a face lotion of unusual merit. One ounce powdered saxolite and one-half pint witch hazel.

This keeps the creamy mass from becoming too oily, a condition not favorable to fine texture. A set of measuring spoons and cups (obtainable in any department store) were used to obtain accurate measurements.*

Successful Cakes Depend on the Quality of the Ingredients, the Method of Mixing and the Baking.

"She bakes the best cakes I ever tasted. They are simply marvelous—light as a feather, delicate in texture, beautiful crust and excellent flavor. If I only could make cakes like hers."

META GIVEN.

Don't these remarks have a familiar ring? Aren't all of us boasters of some friend who bakes wonderful cake? And when we sing her praises don't we do so with more or less of a feeling that there is some secret or mysterious knack tied with her success? I believe we do. Yet most of us entertain the hope of acquiring that magic touch which will finally enable us to achieve the perfect cake. If we didn't we wouldn't go round asking our friends for their recipes. Of course, they will give them to us. It is a pleasure to write recipes for admiring guests. But after we are in possession of the treasured recipe are we sure of reaching our goal?

It is true that such recipes give us confidence. We set to work with high hopes. We try out carefully the treasured formula in our own kitchen. What happens? Does our cake always turn out as we want it to? In too many cases it emerges from the oven without the faintest resemblance to that of our friend's. We console or excuse ourselves by attributing our failure to our poor luck.

But such reasoning is nonsense. The success of any cooking operation depends upon the use of scientific principles that can be understood and used. When friends write recipes for us, too, many times they fail to give clear and accurate descriptions of everything they do to obtain excellent results. The most careful following of their directions will never help us to duplicate their cakes.

Three Important Factors.

It is a difficult task to tell others just how we make cake. Writing directions that others can follow and that will bring good results requires, on the part of the writer, an analysis of every operation that is necessary to attain success. The possession of good recipes, therefore, is one of the first essentials to success. In using the recipe one must keep in mind the three important factors that all good bakers consider—the quality and proportion of ingredients, the methd of mixing, and the baking. Each one of these factors is a source of trouble to the cook. If she uses good ingredients and follows carefully the directions of a good recipe she is sure to succeed.

Eggs, butter, and milk control in a large degree the color and flavor of cake and it is therefore highly important that these ingredients be fresh. Chose ingredients of good quality. The condition of the sugar influences texture. Coarse sugar produces coarse textures and fine sugar fine textures. If coarse sugar must be used it should be rolled and sifted.

Although the proportion of ingredients is an important factor in good baking a slight variation will not necessarily make the product a failure. It is not wise, however, for the inexperienced cook to attempt a variation, for failure comes when there is no longer a balance of ingredients. For example, if too much flour is used in a cake batter, the product will bulge in the center when baking and will be "bready" in taste; if too little flour is used the cake will fall.

Similarly, too much baking powder causes a cake to stick to the pan, to fall apart, and to blow full of holes, thus giving a coarse texture. Too little baking powder makes a cake solid or soggy. Too much sugar likewise spoils a cake, giving it a coarse, soggy texture and a tough, chewy crust. Too little sugar results in a "bready" product.

Measure Accurately.

Standard utensils for measuring should be used. Inexperienced persons are wise to use the utmost care in measuring for the reason that, unconsciously, variations will creep in at best and these are about all that the proportions of the recipe will allow. Sources of errors in measurements are many. Measuring cups often vary in their graduations, especially in the quarters and halves, and spoons differ in size. Another source of variation lies in the materials. For instance, a cup of fine sugar is a different quantity from a cup of coarse and the two cannot be used interchangeably. It is always best to assume that the recipe calls for fine sugar.

Eggs also differ greatly in size. Three large eggs may easily give twice the measure of three small ones. If the recipe does not state the size of eggs, use medium ones.

The very nature of some materials makes their accurate measurements difficult. It is possible with different methods of handling to get varying quantities of the same material into the same measuring cup. Flour is an example of such material. The accepted way of measuring flour is to sift it first, then lift it into the cup with a spoon and finally level it off with a knife. An incorrect method is to plunge the cup into the flour bin, then tap against the table top to be sure that a full cup is measured. This system of measuring may yield twice the amount of flour called for in the recipe.

Ingredients like fat need to be well packed to fill all air spaces. A common way to measure fat is with water. For example, if one third cup of fat is specified, a measuring cup is filled with water to the two thirds graduation level, then the fat is added in bits until the water is forced to the top level of the cup, after which the water is poured off. This is not as accurate a way as once supposed. A test of this method shows that often fat may contain large air bubbles which the water in a cup can not expel. As a result the measure indicated is not actual fat but is fat and air. A better way is to press the fat carefully into a spoon or cup and level off with a spatula.

Combining Ingredients Important.

Combining the ingredients is quite as important as the measuring. It is this factor which determines mostly the texture, size and shape of the baked product. All good cooks agree that this is the most difficult part of baking. Failure to combine materials properly will spoil a product even though it is made from the most select and carefully measured ingredients. In making cake one of the first things is to assemble all ingredients, oil pans and light the oven. The pans should not only be oiled, but the bottoms should be lined with paraffin paper. In this way the cake is sure to come out and the crust will be tender.

The first part of the mixing consists in creaming the fat and sugar so thoroughly that the mass is fluffy and as smooth as velvet. Then the other ingredients should be added in such a way as to develop a perfect emulsion and to retain this emulsion throughout the mixing process.

Mayonnaise is a good example of an emulsion. The fat is so well combined with the egg yolk and liquid that it cannot be detected. It is easy, however, to break or separate an emulsion, as every maker of mayonnaise knows. And what cook has not had the emulsion in her cake batter broken down?

Butter, sugar and egg yolks may be creamed until the mass is as smooth as can be. Then if the milk is put in and stirred a little, the butter will separate from the other ingredients and float to the top. What has happened? The emulsion has broken and all the efforts of creaming are lost. It is impossible to manipulate a cake mixture so that its original state of smoothness is recovered.

Methods of Prevention.

But what can be done to prevent the emulsion from separating in cake batter, some one may ask? Adding a portion of the flour to the creamed mass after the eggs have been added is an important safety measure. Another precaution is to add the rest of the flour sifted with the baking powder and the salt alternately with the milk, being sure to end with flour, then stirring all together thoroughly and quickly.

A little beating is necessary at this point in order that the baking powder may be well blended with the batter, so as to cause a good distribution of even sized gas bubbles and give to the product a fine, velvety texture. Egg whites should be beaten as quickly as possible until they are just stiff enough to hold their shape but no more. Cut and fold them into cake batter gently but quickly. As soon as whites have almost disappeared, stir quite vigorously three or four times.

Just as soon as the batter has received the last few stirs it should go into the pans instantly. If left to stand, the necessary disturbance in transferring to the pans liberates gas from the batter. If an alum baking powder is used, cake will be improved by allowing the batter to stand a while in the pans before being put into the oven, or by beginning the baking process in a cool oven. When cream of tartar or phosphate powder is used the batter may stand in the baking tins for a while before being baked, or it may be put immediately into the oven and yield equally good results.

Baking Procedure.

Baking should be done at a temperature sufficiently high to allow the product to rise to its highest capacity and time should be allowed for it to bake thoroughly. An even, golden color is the most desirable one. Batters with much fat, sugar, and eggs require a lower temperature for baking than when less of these ingredients is used. Our recipes give the temperatures that were found to be the best for baking each product.

When the cake is done it should be removed from the pan and cooled on a wire rack. Just as soon as it is cool it should be iced. The best time to eat cake is when it is fresh. It is then a treat! However, if the family can not consume the cake at one meal, it may be kept fresh in a tightly covered box.

In connection with baking the use of a heat-regulated oven or a portable oven thermometer will solve many baking difficulties. It is the only way to be sure the oven has the desired temperature and that this temperature is maintained throughout the baking period. A portable oven thermometer like those carried in all hardware stores can be used in any stove. It is quite inexpensive and will last a lifetime if given the proper care.

VOICES OF THE KITCHEN.

E. D. W. asks: "In cooking a roast of pork for two should the oven be hot or medium at first? Does the heat remain the same throughout?"

Answer: The oven should be hot. Small roasts as well as large ones need to be seared when cooking begins to hold in their juices. A good temperature is around 550 degrees Fahrenheit. The temperature is reduced after fifteen minutes to 300 degrees [a slow oven]. Why don't you try cooking a small roast on top of the stove in one of the heavy aluminum pans with the heavy tight lids used in waterless cooking? I find these serve unusually well for small roasts.

M. B. asks: "What is meant by the term 'julienne' as it is used in your directions for making some salads?"

Answer: It means to cut food into thin match-like strips.

V. S. B. writes: "May I ask that you help me. We have always been fond of raw fried potatoes and I have tried every way without success to turn them out onto a platter a delicate light brown and without a trace of grease."

Answer: I suspect that to begin with you use too much fat. About three level tablespoons fat is adequate for one quart of sliced raw potatoes. Put potatoes in fat that is medium hot; add salt and put on cover. Cook over medium flame. In about five minutes, lift the cover and if bottom is a delicate brown, turn with a pancake turner. Brown on other side, keeping pan covered.

Sport for the Teens

By Gladys Huntington Bevans

"WHAT makes the baby so cross?" asks his father.

"He's been short of sleep for three nights," you answer. So that night you pop him into bed two whole hours earlier. And the next morning he's his own sunshinny, gurgly little self again.

"Mary's disposition is changing—she's so irritable," says her grandmother. And you have misgivings yourself. And the next night she runs a fever and you find she's been coming down with grippe.

We parents get to be quite skillful, after repeated experiences, in linking up what seem like behavior troubles with the children's physical condition. But often this kind of awareness stops when our children begin their teens. We think of them then as solid, physically, and concern ourselves more with their thoughts and feelings.

Adolescence is much talked about and written about, these days. But it's mostly the emotional side, or the psychology of growing up boys and girls that we hear discussed, and that we think about ourselves.

Fathers and mothers don't know nearly enough about the physical side of adolescence. By that I don't mean just the changes from childhood to manhood or womanhood in the accepted obvious sense, though they are important enough. I mean an understanding of the body in adolescence so we can protect the general health of the growing boy or girl.

Preparedness Means Much.

In sports, particularly, this is necessary. The teens are the great age for sports, but should not be for all sports. Some games go with the endurance of maturity, but are a real physical strain on youth. But there are certain sports just suited to adolescent boys or girls because they make exactly the right demands on their strength and staying power.

This sort of knowledge is one more means of preparedness for the mothers and fathers who in a few short years will find their children tacking a "teen" on the years of their age—or are already doing so.

There's nothing like being in the same boat to make you realize another person's predicament. It is only a busy mother or father who can realize how little time there is for other busy parents, in a life full of children and interests, and business, for the reading of long books. So being in the same boat with you I never suggest that you read at great length on the subject of children—because I know you can't. I'd rather suggest something brief that I have found out for you by doing a lot of sifting and sorting.

A new book which has recently come to me from the publishers contains three chapters which will help you in understanding the physical development that takes place in your boys and girls during adolescence.

This book is called "The Adolescent." It is written by Dr. Schwab and Dr. Veeder [Appleton], and costs $3. It should be available in libraries and if you cannot afford to buy it I suggest that you propose it to your own public library.

The first three chapters of this book are: "Physical Growth and Development," "Puberty and Sex." "School and Play." These three brief chapters cover in an interesting and workmanlike way the physical development and needs of boys and girls during the period known as adolescence. Every father and mother should have at least this much information as a background to the physical care and understanding of their growing boys and girls.

One of the most valuable things the book does is to show how important it is that the right sports should be chosen for boys and girls during these years. Incidentally, this whole book is fine but it may be a little too long or too deeply thoughtful for those who are limited in their reading time. It is only the first three chapters I am specially recommending.

Important Points.

Schools are closed. Vacation with all its strenuous physical exercise is well upon us. Many children are away at camps, away from their mother's and father's eyes. Others are set free in the country. The parks and playgrounds are the sporting fields for city boys and girls. But for all the year round as well as for summer, the knowledge of the cars of adolescent boys and girls contained in these three chapters is recommended to parents.

Here are some important points from the chapter "School and Play," for those who may not be informed. The first is a fine general piece of advice to go on. Read it carefully.

"Not every game is suited to every individual. Games or sports of a type which afford the opportunity for rapid action for short periods of time, combined with frequent intervals of rest, and which at the same time call for the coördinated use of many muscles are by far the best [for the adolescent].

"There is always danger of over fatigue, particularly with boys. The danger of straining the heart by over exercise is actual.

"Baseball is, in many ways, an ideal game for boys. It brings out coordination, individual effort and team play. There is no reason why, in a modified form, it should not be developed into a very desirable and satisfactory form of play for girls from 10 to 14.

"Football is, of course, recommended for boys—if properly played."

Basketball, hockey, and swimming are given as excellent for girls. Dancing [esthetic] and fencing and horseback riding are added. Golf is mentioned for both girls and boys, of course.

Now for the warnings.

Words of Warning.

"Rowing as a sport is one of the undesirable forms of exercise for adolescent boys."

"Competitive track work must be placed in the same category—put entirely too much strain upon the immature heart.

"Boxing and wrestling are other forms of exercise for boys which—must be strictly supervised. . . ."

Tennis—that magnificent game—has its drawbacks for the adolescent. Aren't you surprised? With summer here it is good to know what they are.

"For some reason it is not usually recognized that tennis is often overdone, and overfatigue from tennis is frequently seen.

"Perhaps the reason for this lies in the fact that it is unlimited in the number of sets, and children will keep on playing when they would be finished with some other game with a point or period limitation. Young growing children should be limited to two or three sets."

These three chapters contain some interesting findings on the physical care of boys and girls.

Piping and Scalloped Edges Are the Newer Finish for Modern Lingerie with Its Fitted Lines.

LINGERIE lines of course have been influenced greatly by the new styles in dresses; and the loose stepins can no longer be worn under the fitted princess silhouette. Several new ideas in slips, night dresses and "cami-knickers" as the English call a stepin, are sketched above, and may possibly suggest different ways of trimming your own lingerie.

Piping, for instance, pastel blue on a delicate pink chemise, is newer than lace, and many garments are finished with embroidered scalloped edges.

Crêpe de chine and triple ninon are mostly flesh, salmon or hydrangea pink in color, and are more often plain than patterned. Nile green is often combined with pink for pajamas, night dresses and lingerie in general.

Chiffon slips are correct for evening wear, and lace slips are of course lovely. One shown here has satin hearts set in the fitted bodice, while the skirt flares beautifully.

While pajamas are by no means discarded for sleeping garments, one does see lovely night dresses. These are often smocked, shirred or tucked and tied with ribbon bows at the shoulders. Sometimes a ribbon sash is added. Of course one sees a great many pajamas, and they are of an infinite variety. Made of wash satin, and cut with wide, flaring edges, they are combined with a sleeveless vest having a square or pointed neckline.

Tea gowns have adopted the long trailing lines of the evening gowns, and those made of georgette are often in the princess style with a long train. Appliques of the same material add much to the loveliness of this sort of a gown.

As we all know, to buy any of these lovely things ready made is to spend a lot of money, while if you like to do much of your own sewing, it is possible to buy good materials and make things for a fraction of the cost of the ready made garment.

A Friend in Need

Crippled, Alone and Friendless, This Poor Woman Lives on Ten Cents a Day!

DOWN in Chicago's south side where rich and poor rub elbows lives a woman I am asking you this morning to help. She is crippled, alone, friendless, and haunted with the awful fear that she may soon become a public charge, a thought that preys until it has become an obsession.

During the winter she was able, with a little assistance and the aid of her typewriter, to provide a scanty living for herself by doing some home work. But now even this insufficient source of income has been taken from her and gradually the savings of more prosperous days have dwindled to nothing. Day after day, she sits in her room doing without the food she needs and is ever hopeful that work of some kind which she can do at home will be found.

I shall let you read excerpts from the letter she recently sent me:

". . . . I think I shall be able to find work in the fall, but how am I going to live and pay my rent until then? By living on 10 cents a day, as I have been doing for the last two weeks, I can manage to have my rent for a few days. I admit that my diet is not very strengthening, but as long as I have no work I need not have so much strength either. But if I should again be put out, I would not know what to do, as I cannot even walk as well as I did since I am not eating regularly. . . . Miss Brown, if ever anybody needed a friend, I surely do, and anything you can possibly suggest will be so gratefully received. . . . If you know of some one having some light summer clothes to spare, I could use some dresses and also some hosiery. I wear size 44 dresses and 9 or 9½ hose. A. R."

What a battle to be fighting alone!

Is it a shock to you that such conditions really exist and that there can actually be so much suffering? Think about it for a while and I'm sure you'll want to help this poor, forlorn creature who asks nothing more than a chance to earn the food she eats and pay for the four walls that shelter her.

Want Encyclopedia.

"I am the mother of a boy, 9, and a girl, 6, and am also wage earner and head of the family. The children are vigorous and intelligent and ask many questions which I am either too busy or too uninformed to answer, so that we greatly need an encyclopedia. If any of your readers has one no longer wanted we would be happy to get it. MRS. N. C."

If you invested in this year's edition of an encyclopedia perhaps your old one is taking up space on library shelves which could be better utilized. Here is a place for it which will be greatly appreciated and put to excellent use.

Asks for Bedding.

"My husband is in the hospital and will have to be there for some time. I am out of work and we have two children to care for. I need bedding and clothing for myself, size 38, and I shall be so grateful if you can get them for me. MRS. K. H."

The linens which you are discarding could be mended, I am sure, for this family's use, and perhaps one of you will have clothing for the distracted mother. A long siege of illness and no income are making things very difficult for them.

Husband Is Ill.

"My husband is sick and unable to work. We have three small children badly in need of clothing and shoes. The girls are 6 and 4, and the boy is 2½ years. I wear size 42 in dresses and 5½ in shoes. My husband needs a suit, size 42, also. He has to go to the hospital for treatment several times a week and has nothing decent to wear. We have so many bills to pay and have borrowed money wherever we could to tide us over this dreadful time. MRS. A. P."

In this family the father's illness has reduced them to a state of suffering and privation from which there will be no relief until he is well enough to take up his burden as wage earner again. In the meantime, can you help them with the clothing they need?

Who wants to "do dishes" While Others Play?
Housewives are in need of more leisure in summer just as much as their husbands and children. Why spend three to four hours more than necessary every week in a hot, stuffy kitchen? Why do dishes two or three inconvenient times every day when they need be done only once-a-day, and in the cool of the day, with the CONOVER Electric DISHWASHER

Washes—Rinses—Dries
The CONOVER is especially appreciated in hot weather. The kitchen is hotter in summer, there are more glasses to wash, and less help for housework because everyone but mother thinks summer days are play days. More entertaining is done in summer months; and maids are more difficult to keep in homes without a CONOVER.
At home or at the seashore, the CONOVER Electric Dishwasher can help you to a more enjoyable summer than you have anticipated.
Portable and Sink Models
Both portable and sink model CONOVERS are now being made with rubber coated dishracks, large flexible capacity, self cleansing and many other advanced features. Approved by Good Housekeeping Institute, Delineator Home Institute, Priscilla Proving Plant.

DELILAH'S DAUGHTER (A SAVARAN STORY)

by DOUGLAS NEWTON

Savaran, That Reckless Adventurer, Secluded in Africa's Worst Quarter, Found That Answering the Beautiful American's Cry for Help Started Him on Another Thrilling Episode.

In ninety seconds the snarling street was as peaceful as a tomb and rather like one. Two black figures lay still in the filth, while another crawled away on hands and knees.

THE Gurgur quarter of Mamee Yorga is a home from home for hades. Its pretty name means "filth eater," and African terminology is always apt—only the denizens of the Gurgur do not stop at eating. It is a multi-race slum built on a sand spit where two jungle rivers join, and, being in a Latin colony, it nuzzles in all its vices against a "white town" that looks exactly as soft guitars playing in milk white moonlight sound.

A pretty place Mamee Yorga proper, with its dreamy palms and patios, if morally a cross between a graveyard and a garden of sleep; that is because, as an outpost town, it is right at the bottom of civilization's bag. It is in fact so hopelessly cut off by the lowering African bush that the stern wheel river boats can only bring it news of the outer world every three months. Between boats there is nothing for the government bulamatari to do but eat and sleep, flirt languidly with a colleague's wife, and dream endlessly of the day when he will retire to Europe with a fat pension and fatter pickings.

The pickings are certainly fat, since the only reason for Mamee Yorga's existence is riches. To it by its two great rivers and its five caravan routes comes the vast and easy wealth of the African interior, and quite a lot of that wealth can be made to stick to the fingers of the intelligent. The local official knows this well, so does the African underworld—hence the Gurgur. In the Gurgur foregather that human scum that snatches at easy money either through the medium of thieving fingers, the administration of the dagger, or by encouraging trail weary men to pleasures as expensive as they are vile.

A Haven of Refuge

A place to make hell blush, the Gurgur, at the same time it was a haven of refuge for gentlemen such as Savaran, with prices on their heads. The police of Mamee Yorga could be stern enough, in their own quarter, especially where there was blood money to be gained, but being Latin they were also both indolent and wise. It was better to shut their eyes to the Gurgur than to stir up trouble that might be disastrous to white rule so far from help. Thus official Mamee Yorga ignored the Gurgur, white men were rarely seen in its cramped and smelly streets, and any sort of white woman never. It can thus be understood that even Savaran was startled when a white lady called on him.

Savaran had no liking for the Gurgur, but it was convenient. He could look after himself; he could defy the police; he had money to spend, and it was the one place where he could organize an expedition that should set all Africa ringing with his name again before many months were out . . . Meanwhile he halted at the end of the blind gut in which his house stood and looked with calm eyes at a mob of multi-colored cut throats milling about a victim.

Some one, he saw, was being robbed, probably murdered, but local habits intrigued him so little that he was about to return to Poison Charley's and drink coffee until the fracas was over, when a voice called:

"Savaran! Mr. Savaran! Help!"

The call was English. The voice was a woman's.

It was quite remarkable—and so was Savaran. In ninety seconds the snarling street was as peaceful as a tomb and rather like one. Two black figures lay very still in the filth while another crawled away on hands and knees. The rest had scattered like disturbed flies at the mere knowledge that Zavarani was among them. A slim legged Arab boy leaned against a wall holding back his panting sobs with the haik that half covered his face, and Savaran, slipping his dagger back into its jeweled sheath, twitched the haik aside. Then he laughed his harsh laugh, caught up this boy who was no boy in his long, spider arms, and stalked toward his house. There was the form of another Arab boy lying across the door, but Savaran took it and the door step in his long stride.

"My chouach," cried a voice from his arms. "Is he hurt?"

Savaran put his burden down into the house yard and returned to the still form.

I Came to See You

"Not he," he said with ferocious geniality. "He's got his pay for bringing a sight seeing efferengi into the Gurgur—he's dead."

The Arab boy who was no boy was sitting on the gold and silk divan of Savaran's inner room, trying to tuck her slim, round, very shapely, and very bare legs away from the sardonic glance of Savaran. Savaran had eyes for her face, too. She made a good boy, short featured and gallant looking, her boldness was softened by her undoubted femininity to an alluring charm. She was young and full of fire, and, browned to a glowing berry brown by tropic sun—even her slim calves—she was handsome even as a boy. As herself she would be adorable, his expert eye told him.

"Well, was it worth it?" he asked with his eagle smile; he hadn't a doubt she was a sensation hunting globe trotter.

"I came to see you—Savaran," she said.

"That," he grinned fiercely, "naturally makes all the difference. Yet had you only sent your photograph I should have flown straight to your hotel."

She flushed richly. She really was young and fresh and delicious. Yet she had her strengths; her good, quick, steady glancing eyes told that.

"There are two warrants waiting for you if you step outside the Gurgur," she said quietly.

"What are two among so many?" he laughed. "And for beauty less than yours I have, before now, cut my way through armies."

"Yes," she breathed. "I know of your exploits. That is why I came. I am told you are the finest soldier in Africa; that you spend your life raising armies and fighting tribes."

"And making kings and—queens!" he said with a flash of white teeth. "Even rumor tells the truth at times. And, like Cleopatra, you are drawn——"

"Why," she asked coolly, "do you treat me like a flattery hunting flapper?"

"It is a waste of precious opportunity," he smiled and sat beside her.

And at that she rose quietly, stripped the haik from her slim figure, and, shaking down the white undergarment, modern and skimpy as it was, stood revealed in a nurse's uniform.

Savaran's eyes glinted at the new, the workmanlike creature, and his keen, gipsy head went back in laughter.

"You tricked Savaran," he cried. "I, Savaran, expert in women, thought you only a debutante greedy for thrills. . . . You're the new American nurse at the Magdalena hospital, Ruth Dacre."

"You know me?" she cried, surprised.

The Foro Fangora

"I am Savaran; I always know," he said magnificently. "And even the Gurgur speaks in wonder of the white mem whose hands seem only alive to heal and be kind no matter what color the skin."

"They do suffer so much and so patiently, these Africans," she said softly. "And the hospital is crowded out with them."

"You must be terribly overworked then, now that young Dr. Felton is down with fever," he said, and perhaps there was a touch of irony in his tone, and perhaps she saw that he, being Savaran, knew all there was to know, for she flushed again as girls in love do, even if she said with a brave little lift to her chin:

"He has worn himself out with work, nearly killed himself. . . . One can scarcely do less with such an example."

"And you'll have to go on doing it for months," he said, his eyes gleaming.

"Yes, Dr. Felton will be helpless for months," she admitted, and she looked at him strangely. "Three months at least. And he won't leave Mamee Yorga even if we tried to force him."

Savaran went still. Something in her tone rather than her words made him look at her with a quick, fierce grimness.

"And you want him to leave?" he asked.

"You know he ought to leave," she said, looking at him steadily. "You are Savaran; you know about the Forofangora."

He frowned savagely over harsh eyes; then shrugged in his large way.

"Naturally I know—I am Savaran. But you—how do you know, a greenhorn only just come to Africa? It is but a bush whisper."

"You forget we have men from the bush in our wards," she said. "As I dressed the hurts of one of them he whispered that I must run away from Mamee Yorga because the Forofangora were coming to slay."

"And you believed him?" His eyes were keen.

"I had to believe him; he swore on the stone."

"Did he give details?"

"It is to be in three weeks' time," she said, "when the Gelem caravan comes in. That caravan carries record loads of gold dust and ivory."

"And diamonds from a new field," said Savaran, never able to resist a gesture.

"The Big Vegetable"

"He did not tell me about the diamonds," said Ruth Dacre. "But he is certain that the Forofangora will stop at nothing to take such rich loot; they will sweep Mamee Yorga with death. And it will happen three days after the caravan comes in, two months before the steamer arrives to take the gold and ivory to the coast . . . months before any sort of help can get to us." She looked at him steadily. "You know all this is true?"

"I know," he grunted fiercely. "Mamee Yorga will be a burnt out shambles before a month has gone. The Forofangora have been saving this up for years." He sat back and regarded her with a fierce and mocking smile. "And what does his excellency 'the big vegetable' say to it all?"

'The big vegetable' is a highly disrespectful term for any official big wig in that colony's officialdom. In this case it referred to the important if lethargic adjunct commissaire, who ruled over Mamee Yorga and all these frontier marches.

"You know I've been to him?" she cried.

"I guessed, my dear," he said with a grin of satisfaction at his own shrewdness. "You went straight to his excellency with your terrible news as a good citizen should—and what did he say? But no—Savaran will tell you. . . . The fat little gentleman chucked you under your pretty chin with his fat pink hand, giggled sleepily and said: 'There! There, my pretty flower, do not trouble your small charming head. We know all about these rumors. We have been listening to them since before you were the baby, and they signify—nothing! Nothing at all, little cabbage. . . . And, even, they signify less in the matter of the Forofangora. We know them, those niggers. Twenty-five years ago we whipped them most severely for being naughty, and since then they have been so meek, so meek. Women-men, but most loyal subjects; glad even of our rule; never as much as grudging the collector a centimo of the hut tax. No, no, little one, some bad mens we know of might revolt, but the Forofangora, never! So fear not and do not listen to this silly talk; no harm will come to use.'"

They Will Come

Savaran's voice as he spoke took on the fat, drowsy, fatherly unction of his excellency so marvelously that Ruth Dacre cried:

"You might almost have heard him!"

"O, Savaran knows the soul of that warthog in all its laziness, incompetence, and folly."

"But all of the officials are like him," cried Ruth Dacre. "None of them will listen to me."

"What did you expect," he said scornfully, "when they do not even listen to Savaran?"

"You have warned them!" she gasped.

"Savaran is also a white man," he grinned fiercely. "Yes, I even sent them a messenger. They thought it comic, I hear, or possibly some trick by which Savaran hoped to feather his own nest. . . . And then they all went to sleep again."

"And yet the Forofangora will come," she cried.

"They will come," he said grimly. "Their babies of twenty-five years ago have been reared with but one thought—to take revenge for that defeat of twenty-five years ago. A new race has arisen since that old war, a cunning race that can pretend meekness and prepare vengeance by stealth. There are seventy thousand fighting spears waiting but the word to slay. They will roll over Mamee Yorga and half the colony before any defense can concentrate. Be wise, obey your bushman, my dear—and run for it."

"It's incredible," she gasped, wide-eyed, "that men should lounge indifferent like this on the very lip of a volcano that bubbles up to overwhelm them."

"History, I see, is not your strong point," he said dryly. "You don't recognize it when it repeats itself. Why, your own forefathers petted the Powhatan redskins before they rose and slaughtered them in the James river massacre. The folk of New Hampshire made merry over 'watermelons and flip' even while the Indians were preparing to wipe them out, while the British remained unconcerned with an Indian mutiny brewing at their elbows. Men are like that, my dear."

Another Appointment

"And nothing can be done?"

"You can run," he grinned. "A canoe party down river will keep you ahead of the slaughter. Or better still, I can offer——"

"I mean here," she burst out. "Couldn't Mamee Yorga be defended?"

"With ease," he shrugged. "The old pioneers were real soldiers. They chose an admirable position as you can see, with the broad rivers guarding three sides. Even the old land wall could stop mere spear fighters like the Forofangora if properly defended. And the town could hold out. There is unlimited water, food in plenty, and the local inhabitant is good fighting stuff—I know, I am employing him myself. A good leader could sit safe and tight here for half a year, certainly long enough for help to be rushed up to him."

"And you are the finest fighting leader in Africa," she said quietly.

He threw back his fierce head and laughed.

"Yes. I saw that was why you came," he smiled.

"You alone can save Mamee Yorga," she cried.

"I have," he said with sardonic politeness, "another appointment."

"Another black tribe to be crushed?"

"Not precisely," he answered. "Diamonds to be collected."

"Diamonds—from this neighborhood?" she frowned.

"You forget," he smiled. "A new field has just been found. The Mbamsef in the hills to the northwest made the find. They are a race of dogs that I ought to have punished long ago for a treachery, but they were not worth the effort. But having diamonds—that is a different story."

"You could leave your diamond stealing until after you had saved Mamee Yorga," she said contemptuously.

Come and Join Me

"Few women," he grinned, "understand the finer points of strategy. I, Napoleon and, in fact, all the really great conquerors get our results through swift action. The Forofangora know about these diamonds, too. The mere act of their striking at Mamee Yorga, even if they only besiege it for months, will gain them the support of other tribes, the Sammo and the Laro-Laro, for instance, and they will use some of those tribes to attack the Mbamsef; they will want those diamonds to buy arms. Naturally I must get to the Mbamsef, beat them and turn them into a practical fighting force to meet the Forofangora before they come for those diamonds. I have no time to waste if I am to triumph."

"And you will leave Mamee Yorga at the mercy of these brutes for the sake of a handful of diamonds," she cried scornfully.

"Say two handfuls," he mocked. "It is quite a respectable field. Also, who knows but it will be the beginning of my kingdom! What cannot Savaran do with money and fighting men among those hills? From such a springboard he might easily leap to the stars." His eyes blazed as they always did when he saw the glorious vision of himself as conqueror. He caught her hands. "Come, my pretty, join me. You will be safe then and a throne awaits at the end of your adventure. You have Savaran's spirit, too; you can dare."

She tore her hands away, and not merely anger but fear of his queer, compelling power was in the gesture.

"Can even a throne weigh against the slaughter of hundreds of white men and women, tens of thousands of peaceful natives?" she cried. "I thought Savaran was of finer mettle."

His eyes became hard and dangerous as they did when his vanity was touched.

"He is," he cried fiercely. "Did he not warn that sloth of a commissaire of the danger at the risk of his own liberty and ambition? What more could he do?"

"He can stay and defend Mamee Yorga," she cried passionately. "You are already collecting your forces for the attack on the Mbamsef; you have arms. With these as the backbone of the defense and with your genius you could hold the Forofangora until help came."

"Certainly you have charm," he smiled grimly. "You make your patients whisper too many secrets. And did you tell all this to 'the big vegetable'?"

"Am I a police spy?" she cried fiercely. "I knew what he would do to you if he heard you were here." Suddenly she put both her hands on his shoulders. "Savaran, save Mamee Yorga, as only you can!"

I Won't Desert

That François Villon recklessness that could make him toss a crown over his shoulder for the sake of a woman's smile swung him. His arms went about her. She had won him—had she not stiffened at his touch. He laughed sardonically.

"Save Mamee Yorga, but particularly young Dr. Felton, eh?" he cried. "You are no more disinterested than Savaran. Also it is imposible. You yourself have told why. You dare not tell the authorities I am here; they would clap me in jail, even if I appeared to defend their wretched little town. That is how they regard Savaran."

"No, you could force them to listen," she cried.

"I have not your optimism," he said. "That slug of a commissaire is too rooted in inertia. He does not want to stir, he does not want even to think the Forofangora dangerous. On the other hand he does know that Savaran is worth twenty thousand dollars in government rewards. So I would go to jail; I would be kept rotting in jail until the steamer came, or rather until I died, incapable of resistance, from Forofangora spears. I think my own plans and my diamonds provide a sweeter outlook."

"But, you are Savaran. You could find a way," she pleaded.

"You are very beautiful," he smiled, pinching her cheek. "Almost you make Savaran forget his common sense. But not quite. I know these overfed pigs; they are hopeless. I know also that unless I leave Mamee Yorga before the Forofangora can block the trail I, too, shall be in a plight as hopeless. So then, within three weeks I leave. It is the only thing to do. And you—if you are wise you will come, too. There is only death here for you, but with me there is the love of Savaran and a throne and your name, with his, in history. Yes, you had better come."

"Never," she cried fiercely. "I won't desert."

"Well," he grinned fiercely, "you have three weeks to dwell upon the thought of what death at savage hands will be like, and remember, just one little message to me any time during those weeks and you will be safe."

His Force Ready

She picked up her haik, flung it about her silently, contemptuously. But Savaran only smiled his dark, hard, mocking smile. He knew human nature too well, this strange adventurer. Heroism in the abstract is so easy, but three weeks' reflection on death might beget quite another mood. He saw the beginnings of it, in fact, in the ready, even the clinging willingness with which she accepted his escort through the evil stews of the Gurgur.

He was right. Ruth Dacre fought long against her fear, her courage; in fact, held out until two days before he was to march—but then it broke, and a hospital orderly crept through the streets of the Gurgur to Savaran's house with a note.

He read that note with his harsh, mocking smile. Was he disappointed in her, or was he elated at another triumph over beauty? Hard to say. Savaran in his moods was as baffling as a weathercock in a whirlwind. His arrangements were practically completed. His force of nearly five hundred hand picked askari and carriers was scattered through the Gurgur and the nearby villages ready to concentrate at a single word. He had his rifles, machine guns, and ammunition stored in various godowns under his hands. He had little or nothing to hold him back. He could meet Ruth Dacre, win her with a final persuasion, arrange for extra mules and comforts for her, and then move out at the very hour he had planned.

Her note told him plainly that, womanlike, she needed a final persuasion. She must talk to him again, she said, before he left. She would meet him that night by the tomb of the Lonely Saint in the bare piece of ground between Mamee Yorga and the Gurgur.

Well, it was all very much as he had expected, though he had felt that her gallant little face spoke of sterner stuff. Still she was coming, and Savaran, after giving precise and careful instructions for any eventuality to Abn Zayd, his head man, robed himself in a fine silk tobi and went largely to the meeting.

She was waiting for him in the shadow of the tomb and he went straight to her, caught her, and kissed her. A dashing attack both in war and women was his favorite method.

"No," she cried tremulously, thrusting him off. "We must talk. . . . You are ready to leave, all your forces, everything is ready?"

"You can ride out on a silk saddled mule at any hour you like," he said, smiling down on her fiercely.

"And—and you still think the Forofangora mean to blot out Mamee Yorga?" she panted.

"Are you beginning to doubt that?" he mocked.

Savaran, for My Sake

"No," she said huskily. "Another man has told me it is true. But—but the commissaire laughs at it more than ever. The Forofangora have sent five chieftains' sons to him, begging him to keep them in his palace and train them in European ways. He says the Forofangora would not dare attack when he holds such hostages."

"That is exactly what the Forofangora want him to think," said Savaran grimly. "They are wily people, the Forofangora; they know that some rumors of their intentions must get about, so they send these hostages to lull our fat commissaire's fears. Those young men gave themselves willingly for that purpose. They are ready to die to help their tribe to victory."

"You're sure?"

"Even now the Forofangora are sharpening their spear blades. Even now their best marksmen are practicing with the twelve hundred Belgian rifles that have been smuggled to them. Even now their women are stirring the braves to frenzy with the singing of the war vaunts."

"Then Mamee Yorga is doomed?" she said in a strangled voice.

"Nothing can save it."

"Except—you!" she said fiercely.

"Not even excepting me," he said. "I have made my plans. I march in two days."

"Savaran," she cried hoarsely. "I beseech you. Think of all these innocent people. Find a way to save them."

"It is too late," he said. "I am Savaran. I have made my plans; I do not alter them."

"Savaran—for my sake," she cried.

"That is not a matter for you to worry about, for I am taking you with me," he smiled.

He stepped close and caught her up in his arms. He chuckled as she did not resist. She sighed, relaxed against him, and, as he held her high, her arms went about him holding him tight. It was triumph. He turned to stride back to the Gurgur with his spoils, and as he turned he saw the glint of rifles pointed at his chest, and the moonlight revealed three ragged local policemen—but they kill just as finally as the natty sort. Then a couple of dapper white officers stepped from the shadows and they bristled with firearms, too. One blew a whistle and from almost every point of the compass armed men began closing in. Scores of them. Mamee Yorga knew Savaran and was not taking risks.

The spider-spare adventurer backed a step and tried to drop the girl to get at his pistol. She only clung tighter, holding his arms and crying anxiously:

"Don't fight them, Savaran. They're ready to shoot at any excuse. They mean to take you dead or alive."

Savaran stood stock still and laughed savagely.

"Delilah can boast at least one worthy daughter," he cried.

Taking No Risks

She came to him four days later. Two days after he should have left Mamee Yorga and a day after he could leave it, for already, he knew, the Forofangora were blocking the trails out.

The big Arab jailer would not let her pass through the barred gate into the cell.

"It is not permitted, O lioness," he said gruffly. "See, this is the mighty Zavarani. Give him but a loophole and he vanishes away."

They were taking no risks with Savaran. A double guard of newer, more businesslike askari filled the prison buildings and two armed sentinels stood each side of the door. As she grew accustomed to the gloom she saw the leg and wrist irons that linked up to his steel girdle; saw the strong chain that stretched from that to a staple in the wall. He sat up on his stone bench with a clink of metal as he saw her, throwing his cigaret away.

"Little Delilah comes to gloat over the fallen Samson," he said fiercely. "But one so dainty should not have risked it. The fleas of Mamee Yorga's prisons are the most redoubtable of their breed."

"Savaran—don't," she cried huskily. "You know it was the only way."

"To keep a lover near you?" he mocked.

"To save Mamee Yorga," she faltered.

He deliberately jingled his irons.

"Listen to the armor of the fighting man," he said grimly. "Could any one but a woman have decided that the best way to save a town was by betraying into prison the one man who could do it?"

"I had to keep you back until the Forofangora came," she cried. "There was no other way. Only with you on the spot is there any hope for us."

"Well, I am on the spot," he grinned. "Where is the hope?"

"You are Savaran. You will find a way," she cried desperately.

"Count my guards," he said. "It is because I am Savaran that they mean to give me no chances."

Even as he spoke the big Arab warder touched her arms, for she had stretched them through the gate bars in a gesture of appeal.

It Is Too Horrible

"You must not do that, O lioness," he said sullenly. "This is Zavarani. He is a devil. He can find ways of escaping that no other man can think of. We can take no risks; it will be the garotte for me if he gets free."

"You see," said the spider-lean man with fierce geniality, "they mean business."

She drew back shuddering; she cried frantically:

"But—tomorrow the caravan will be in, and three days after the slaughter starts."

"My latest information is that they have postponed it until the fourth," he said ferociously affable. "After all, they have plenty of time."

She caught the bars of the door as though it were him she wanted to clutch and shake.

"You can't convince me," she cried with a sob in her voice, "that you, Savaran, will allow yourself to be wiped out by these brutes without striking a blow."

"How can mere man fight fate, the folly of commissaires, and the wiles of women?" he shrugged.

"You saw his excellency," she cried catching at that.

"An interesting interview," he jeered. "He was practically awake, calculation of his share of the reward for my capture had given him a sleepless day."

"Don't joke," she wailed. "It is too horrible. . . . You told him of this peril?"

"I did, with full facts and details. That made him double my guard and ordered this girdle and chain. He thought it just some trick of mine for engineering an escape and robbing him of his hard earned blood money."

The Arab jailer touched her arms

Theater Party Next on Sally's Good Time List

By Sally Joy Brown

Aren't we having the best time this summer, boys and girls, with one good party after another! There was White City, a thrilling moving picture, a major league baseball game, and now—well, this is news which IS news—an R-K-O Palace theater party! The management of the house and your humble hostess got together and decided that if there is one grand place to be on a hot July afternoon with 100 boys and girls, it's the R-K-O ice cooled Palace theater, where there's such a variety of good entertainment you're bound to have a marvelous time.

This party, which is really several all rolled into one, will be on Thursday, July 24, and there's to be a program which sounds to me like a gold mine of fun. Let me tell you something about it. The feature picture will be "Dangerous Nan McGrew," starring Helen Kane, the original boop-boop-a-doop girl, and you know what a comedian she is. She sings, dances, acts, and clowns in her own inimitable way, and she is supported by an able cast.

In addition to the picture there will be five acts of "big time" vaudeville, with some of the best known stars in the country. Topping the bill is Louise Groody, famous for her work in the stage production of "No, No, Nanette." You'll love her.

Another headliner is Georgie Price, the juvenile star, who sings, dances, does imitations of well known performers, and contributes some excellent comedy. He is a protégé of Gus Edwards, the man who has given so many prominent and successful actors and actresses their start. The rest of the bill is equally interesting and includes a popular Broadway star in a diverting musical revue, a novelty dancing act, and more comedy.

As usual, I shall take 100 of you to the party and I shall select as my guests those who write the best letters. The customary rules prevail and it's very important to follow them:

Each child must write his or her own letter. Do not ask for an invitation for your brother, or sister, or the friend you'd like to have accompany you. Tell me your name, address, and age, and have your letter reach me no later than Thursday morning. The names of the winners will appear in next Sunday's TRIBUNE. If you were invited to one of the earlier parties it does not mean that you will not be invited again—you may write letters for as many parties as you like.

Here's the list of names all the young baseball fans have been waiting for—the winners who will see the White Sox-Athletics game at Comiskey park next Thursday. If you are included in this lucky group of boys and girls you will receive an invitation with the details some time before the date of the party.

In the Feminine Realm

An additional 50 or 100 policewomen are to be added to the metropolitan police force in London, England, in the near future. At present there are 50 women police in the great city.

Young women who intend to go to New York to live on their own resources are advised to stay away from the city unless they are assured of an income of at least $25 a week.

DUEL.

I lift my eyes and list at length
The items of your armored strength.

You tower upward. One steel hand
Could strike and smash me down in sand. . . .

You finger sword and club and gun;
Of weapons I have only one.

'Gainst your unwary heart I press
My ruthless two-edged helplessness.

HARLEY AND JOAN

by ROLAND PERTWEE

The Story in Resume:

Harley Trevelyan, spending the last night of his leave from the front in London, has an engagement to dine with Paula Drayton, whose younger brother, through Trevelyan's influence, has been assigned to his own battery. Paula grows emotional just before they go into dinner and leaves after telling him that she loves him. Harley is walking the streets when the Zeppelins raid London and being use to gun fire, does not run for cover as every one else does. A young woman, in a window, sends her brother to bring him into the house, and he discovers that the boy is Freddie Miller an old schoolmate and the girl is Joan. With Joan he goes up on the roof to watch the air raid and they see an airplane shoot down one of the Zeps. Following the air raid Harley, Joan, and Freddie have a bite in the kitchen and Harley realizes that he is in love with this girl he has known only a few moments. He is leaving for the front in the morning and she promises to be at the train.

INSTALLMENT III.

Back to the Front.

AT seven o'clock in the morning Harley was conveyed to Victoria station in an electric brougham which was plying for hire in Curzon street. The owner of the brougham, a statesman of repute, was unaware of the patriotic and profitable services rendered by his chauffeur in those void of taxi days.

Save for an hour of fitful sleep that barely released his consciousness from his sublime altitude, Harley had not rested. What was left of the night he spent in writing and tearing up letters and poems and declarations of an ardent and emotional kind. Also he drank pints of cold water to quench the fires that consumed him. Yet even so his throat as the brougham drew him silently toward the end of his leave was dry as pumice. His eyes, too, were dry and prickly and winced at the sun which, yellow as an apricot, rolled out of the opal mists hanging over Westminster.

By a common impulse traffic and pedestrians alike seemed to be converging upon Victoria station.

London was giving up its sons to the butcher. What a nation of cattle they had become. Compelled by some force hidden behind the trees that masked Whitehall, they moved toward the slaughter house with blind and passionless lack of rebellion. Here and there groups of returning soldiers, the fumes of overnight drink still upon them, lifted their voices croakingly to a fragment of song. Others walked in silence with loneliness for company—and doubts to make them grave—and memories of swift and bitter partings to torment their souls. The war had run too long a course for its devotees to take up their burden with the quick step spirit of 1914. A "Birds of Prey" march—something almost pathetically remote from glory it had become.

The brougham entered the station yard and, gripping his kit, Harley jumped out. He gave ten shillings to the chauffeur and, doding the myrmidons of the R. T. O. who might detail him for duty on the train, mixed in the crowds that gathered before the gates to the platforms.

Paula at Train

Despite the ever increasing numbers, all was very quiet. A hush, the logical outcome of emotions that foreshadow parting, a failure, common to all, to find those last sublime words that shall comfort and ease and reassure, was its genesis. Assemble together all sorts and conditions of men and women, minding and feeling and fearing and caring beyond reach of words, and you shall find an expression of silence not readily to be forgotten or defined.

As Harley pushed through the crowds to the gates of the platform a woman in black, with a sable round her throat, moved forward to meet him.

"Paula," he said, "this is—splendid of you."

It was the barest hesitation, but too obvious to escape notice.

Her face lit up by generous impulse and affection, chilled and darkened.

"You'd rather I hadn't come," he said. "I understand that."

"No," he began.

"We haven't so long to be together," she said. "Don't let's shirk the truth."

He found it hard to look at her and fumbled with a buckle of his Sam Brown belt. She went on.

"I wouldn't have come, Harley, but last night when I reached home there was a telegram from David. He was just sailing from Southampton."

"I'll look after him."

"I know you will," she said, and gave a sudden laugh.

"Why?" he asked.

"Because I know you, Harley, and I know, because of last night, you'll do ever so much more for David than you would have done—before."

He shook his head. It gave him a chance to look about for Joan.

"I don't admit that."

"But you will," she said. "I'm sure you will. You'll feel that you must make it up to me somehow."

He felt the blood running to his cheeks. She was right, too. A conscious determination to make it up to her that way had been in his mind when a window in Berkeley square was thrown open and he had entered into paradise and forgetfulness. Into what base metal a man's best resolves can be transformed by a woman's intuition.

Paula was saying.

"So you see it was all for the best. Out of my utter shamelessness I forged a shield for David."

"I wish," he began——

"That I wouldn't think below the surface. I know you do, but I'm made that way, Harley, and can't help it."

He shook his head.

"Not that, but I wish you'd spare me once in a while from feeling a cad. Last night late—I passed your house. There was a light in the window."

It Wasn't Intentional

She nodded slowly—expectantly.

"And yet you passed my house—passed it?"

"Not at once," he said. "I stood some time wondering—and wanting so much to say—something—I don't know what—but afraid to."

She colored, bit her lip, and rapped her shoe.

"Why do you tell me this. It would have been kinder not to tell."

"I'm sorry, Paula."

"You came there on purpose—and went away?"

"Not quite. I found myself there—after the raid, it was."

"You found yourself—it wasn't intentional?"

Every word with her led to disaster.

"No, it wasn't intentional."

"But finding yourself there you wanted to be kind, eh? And you funked it. Yet I'd have been satisfied with very little kindness—a homeopathic dose would have done. Why did you want to be kind?"

She was dragging the truth from him.

"Because I was happy, I suppose."

"Happy—happy? A few hours before you'd given no signs of happiness. Why should you be happy then? Where had you found this"—her eyes were boring into his—"this——" She checked herself and a hand flew up to her mouth, pressing the blood back from his lips. "Harley, Harley—you're in love?"

"Yes," he nodded.

She shut her eyes, swayed a little, but waved away the support he offered. Once again she laughed.

"That will give David a guardian worth having."

"Paula."

"O, good-by," she said, thrust him aside and ran.

The platform gates opened and Harley was borne in on the crest of a muddy colored wave of humanity.

He had no trouble in finding a seat for himself, but holding one for Freddie Miller was not so easy. Freddie, gambler to the backbone, took a gambler's chance in catching trains.

A bare minute before it was due to depart he appeared, dragged along the platform by the crook of a stick held by Joan.

Freddie Arrives

Joan's cheeks were pink as a sunset. She wore a rose in her belt and another over her right ear.

Seeing Harley, Freddie launched a dismal howl.

"I'm trying to desert, but Joan won't let me."

Harley cast forth an R. A. F. officer who was zooming down into the vacant seat and hauled Freddie into the carriage.

"O Lord," he gasped, "they've shanghaied me, and now I shall be killed."

An elderly major who was sniveling behind a copy of the Times dried his tears and laughed.

A porter, or some creature destitute of decent feelings, slammed the door and cried, "Stand away there."

Freddie Miller was up in an instant, his kit and his flippancy vanishing in all directions.

"Joan, darling angel," he said.

She had mounted the running board. One leg was raised and the foot at the end of it was pressed firmly and discouragingly into the pit of the porter's stomach who would fain have prevented her.

Her face seen in the open window frame against the murk and steam of the grimy station was like a near to vision of whatever angel has been given the royal box corner of the celestial beauty chorus.

Then the back of Freddie's ugly head eclipsed it.

"Angel, angel," he said, kissed her, and dropped back in his seat with a hand over his eyes.

Only an instant was left. The ties wrangled and tightened. The engine chugged impressively. Joan was looking at Harley now with eyes like stars behind a brush of rain. All the laughter of her lips was dead and laid to rest.

"My buttonhole, Harley," she whispered. "It was"—then up went her voice. The porter had seized her round the waist. "Let go, you fool; he wants one, too."

"Let go," Harley yelled.

Her face came up to meet his. Their mouths hovered toward each other, brushed, and were rent apart by authority in corduroys.

Roses—and Seasickness

Like a hideous nightmare of confiscation in which all that is best in a man's life is snatched away and cast into a bottomless sea, the small glowing face, an instant ago so near to Harley's diminished to a tiny pink speck upon the platform.

He did not wave farewells. His valedictory gesture was two fists brandished through the open window.

Then Freddie said: "There's not another like her in the world."

"O, shut up," Harley answered.

Under the aegis of two sea scarred torpedo boats the cross-channel transport was bullied out of Folkestone harbor into a half gale of wind.

Her lower decks were packed like the dancing floor of a popular night club. There was not space enough for a man to drop his kit and sit upon it. Where he arrived he stayed, a miserable plaything of the elements and his own internal economy or extravagance.

Few features of the war present a less inspiring picture than a crowded transport in a capricious sea. The wretched company was soused with spray, whipped by the lash of a salt wind, and rolled to weather and to lee. Scarcely one man in a dozen would not gladly have taken his misery to the bottom of the sea. They were tormented with sickness and yet unable to reach the ship's rails, or to practice even the most primitive avoidances.

Leaning over the rail of the upper deck, Harley surveyed the sufferers below and reflected that less than a dozen hours before he had been decorating the front of Joan's house with roses. A pretty thing in contrasts.

He turned away with a gesture of pity and disgust to find Freddie Miller at his elbow.

"Feeling bad, old son?"

Harley shook his head.

"No. The sea doesn't take me that way. Leave has made me soft—made me notice and mind things. I must give myself a kick in the pants."

"Yours is a minding stock though, ain't it?"

Harley shrugged his shoulders.

"Imagination hasn't bothered me up to yet, and I don't intend to cultivate it now. It's no sort of asset in my job."

Freddie nodded and rummaged in the pockets of his British Warm for a pipe and matches.

From his elbow came a deep rumble of protest.

"It would be prejudicial to good order and military discipline to light that pipe."

The speaker was a Fusilier colonel, who sat upon a bulkhead hugging his belly. His face was as green as the tabs of an intelligence staff officer.

"Contrary to orders, sir?" Freddie asked.

"Contrary to humanity," was the reply. "If you lit it I should see that you followed my breakfast into the channel."

Freddie laughed and pocketed the offending pipe.

"Ever do any writing nowadays?" he asked, turning to Harley again. "I used to like the stuff you turned out when we were at the varsity together. Had a kick in it."

Harley shook his head.

"War's too much of an all time job, but it's queer you should have asked because, until now, I haven't felt I wanted to write anything."

"Until now?"

"P'r'aps something quite different," said Freddie.

Generous to a Fault

Harley frowned and shut down. He might be prepared to share the outskirts of his thought with a friend, but no more than that.

Freddie Miller was not sensitive enough to be aware of such subtle restraints. He was one for crashing things out, not stifling them. A typical user-up of cash, opportunity, and confidence was Freddie Miller. His belief in the future was never so strong that he economized or saved any of the present to set aside for the morrow. "Why not now?" was the slogan of his bright young life. It had served him well enough. There had been a crash or two, but they were insignificant; they didn't count. He had cut his knees, but never broken a leg. Like Charley's aunt, he was still running a happy, carefree, blindfold race through life.

"Thank God," he had boasted, "I've learned nothing from experience."

What few skeletons there were in his cupboard had had the uncommon decency never to rattle their bones within hearing. Women forgave him anything and everything, and could not complain that he denied them opportunity. When they cried he remembered only their kisses, and they were grateful. He paid his debts like a gentleman, which implies a certain proportion of delay and legal pressure. Never a soul but was not glad to know him and felt the better for knowing him. A great hearted, romping ass of a fellow, generous to a fault, and with as much wisdom in his head as might be found in a handful of feathers scattered on the wind.

Harley had once said:

"When Freddie Miller comes into a room I always feel the lights have gone up."

And Freddie, overhearing, had replied:

"Put it down on a telegraph form and I'll send it to my stone mason straight away."

To avoid intimate inquiries Harley had turned his attention toward the sufferers on the deck below, whence arose a hideous diapason of stomachic protest and revulsion.

"I say," said Freddie, "you went off bang with young Joan. Every shot a bull's eye."

"Don't be an ass," said Harley, but there was no discord in his voice. Rather it was musical—an invitation to the waltz.

"It was that roof episode, in my opinion. Y'see, every one else has done their damnedest to keep her off the tiles. Whereas you shot her through the star trap and followed yourself, like a pantomime fairy and the demon king. I tell you that raised your stock six points."

A Grand War

"Rot," said Harley, and wondered if there was any possible chance of getting off a marconigram to Rogers to take out those screws.

"And don't run away with the idea she's an easy girl to pass, because she isn't," Freddie went on. "The kind of bird she generally uncages would pass for a vulture in any aviary."

In spite of the starch and dignity which unacknowledged love imposes on a man, Harley found himself beginning to laugh.

"Very few fellars get much more out of Joan than, 'How's your father?' or 'Good-by-eee'."

Hearing these magical words Harley could not understand why every one aboard looked so cold and miserable. For his own part he could not remember a more delightful crossing. The leaping waves that slapped and sprayed against the vessel's side were the final expression of gayety and good spirits. The boat itself was rocking with laughter like a school boy at a pantomime. And what a good chap Freddie was—one in a thousand, a capital fellow. It warmed one's heart to be with him. That old Fusilier colonel, too, was obviously first class. Heart of gold. Queer how one went through life overlooking the splendid qualities of folks with whom one came into contact. The war had done a heap of good that way. Opened up one's mind to the truth about people. It had its disadvantages, one supposed, but they were of no real consequence. A grand war. But for its manifold influences and unrestraints numberless experiences would never have been so much as guessed at. Decorating a house in Berkeley square at three Ac-Emma. Standing on a roof with one's arm 'round a girl one had only known five minutes while the heavens above rained bombs and fire and revelation. What was it Freddie was saying? Pity to miss it. So seldom one met a man with such interesting things to say.

"Yes, I had quite a job to prevent her chasing you up Lansdowne passage."

"What's that?"

"Had some idea you might want to know she liked you."

Might want to know—might want to know!

Harley swiveled round, his eyes sparkling dangerously.

"And you prevented that?"

Amazing that such men as Miller were allowed to live.

"Old friend," he answered, "did I do wrong? I had a hunch you knew it already."

The sparks fizzled out, fused into a light of the purest friendship. Not such a bad fellow, Freddie Miller, after all. Life would seem very empty when they parted at Boulogne.

Queer Kind of Courage

By one of those queer accidents of chance they were not destined to part at Boulogne. Freddie Miller's original posting to a divisional ammunition column had been canceled. Instructions awaited him to report for duty to G. Corps Siege Park H. Q.'s in the village of Pas en Artois.

"My lot," said Harley when the news was conveyed to him. "What luck! I know the O. C. well. An Irishman with a chest like the front door of a castle and a laugh that blows out the canvas sides of an Armstrong hut. Fawlk, our O. C. at the battery, hates him from the socks up and the dislike is reciprocated. Whenever there's a lull in the fighting they keep themselves busy slinging stinks about each other into heavy artillery headquarters."

"Rather a nasty mess your old man, ain't he?"

"He's a bit of tomcat," Harley allowed. "Spits, scratches, and arches his back. Suffers badly from the disease of breaking N. C. O.'s. Makes a hobby of it. I've liked men better."

"Windy?" That question was inevitable.

"No. Has a queer kind of courage of his own. Keen on highbrow literature and modern painting. You know, Nevinson and the French extremists. When we're getting plastered he never leaves off talking about 'em. Always stresses one word more than another in a sentence. 'Cezanne is a very great man—a very great man'—like that."

"Sounds a dream to me," said Freddie.

"I get on well enough with him because I've looked at pictures a bit and read more than the average. He does not like me, but I'm useful. I act as a sort of go between. The other officers and the men boil up inside every time he gives an order, but somehow I manage to keep the peace and make 'em happy. One's so much on top of one another in a battery, and once hatred and resentment start taking root you're in a bad way. Wonder which column you're joining?"

They had reached the station and mingled with a crowd gathered round one of the platform barriers. An R. T. O. was issuing orders through a megaphone in a voice that suggested strong disapproval of everybody except himself.

"St. Pol and Arras train leaving from number two. Officers in front. Men at the back. Will you be silent there? Sergeant, take that man's particulars. Some of you men have had too much leave, that's the trouble."

"There's a damn silly observation," said Freddie. "Wouldn't care to try the human touch on that bird."

A Cushionless Train

Not without a struggle they secured a couple of seats in the remnant of a first class carriage. The cushions had long since vanished, leaving nothing to sit upon but a criss-cross of sagged webbing that afforded free access to the chilly blasts that penetrated the illfitting doors. Save in a single instance every pane of window glass was broken. As they drew out of the station a sleety drizzle drifted in on their faces and knees.

"One thing about this kind of accommodation," said the irrepressible Freddie, "is that one gets it coming and going. One's treated alike at both ends."

As he spoke the webbing sundered and his hinterlands made swift and unforgettable contact with the floor. Inspired by the example of their fellows the rest of the webbing acted similarly and six officers of his majesty's expeditionary force, to the immense delight of their vis-à-vis, went tail first through the drop.

Divorced from any kind of comfort or convenience, the train pursued its slothful course through a countryside from which every element of beauty had been obliterated by recurrent harvests of horse lines, hutments, latrines, ammunition, and R. E. dumps, lorry parks, and intensive training areas. The whole landscape of that greater front behind the front was pimpled by a gray rash of war material, rendered the more unlovely by a quality of tidiness and order contrary to every law of nature in the wild.

Freddie, who always had a pack of cards somewhere about him, tried to liven up the journey with a game of bridge, but conceiving, no doubt, that it was prejudicial to the best interests of the services that officers should gamble away their pay, a capricious wind took the first trick and blew it out of the window. Further attempts to promote entertainment were abandoned. A desultory conversation and exchange of anecdotes died still born, and huddled in their British Warms they entered into a silence that carried them into the night.

An eternity seemed to pass before the train clanked into the unlighted station of St. Pol and came jarringly to rest.

"All out. All out."

Cold, stiff, and miserable, they were glad enough to obey the order.

Unspecified Comforts

Harley was told there would be no service to Arras that night, but a train left for Doullens about 3 a. m. He looked at his watch. It was barely 9 o'clock.

A staff major bound for Avesnes Le Comte, who had shared their journey from Boulogne, suggested something to eat at Ecu de France.

"Do us good to rinse out our guts with a quart of champagne," said he.

Freddie thought the idea very sound, but Harley shook his head. Something was pricking him to get back to work. He had never been able to capture the casual attitude towards the war exhibited by so many of its votaries. Once in France a continual spur was in his flanks to get on with it and get it done. He could forgive a man being afraid, but lassitude he never forgave.

"Let's roll round to the ammunition siding," he suggested. "Might get a lorry hop if we're lucky."

They were lucky. A divisional ammunition column was leaving for Arras.

There were always a few odd blankets to be found inside a D. A. C. lorry. Also other comforts not strictly specified in the G. 1098 of that unit. A Primus stove, a tin of cocoa and milk, and a spot of rum.

A very snug little kitchen was made between the eighteen pounder ammunition boxes and they got things nicely heated up before getting under way. Even an A. S. C. officer, who of all branches of the service has the greatest contempt for high explosives, discourages a naked light in a moving lorry. Naturally he uses his own discretion in regard to regulations, but every now and then some of them appear reasonable. Of course, a cigaret or a pipe is quite a different matter.

Their host was a cherubic second lieutenant of cheerful disposition. As to which, why not, having regard to his fortunate situation. He was young and he sang, and he was confessedly and genuinely sorry for the P. B. I.

"What I say is that we ought to have a go at things in rotation," said he. "I'm trying now to get a shift into Tanks, but I'm afraid they love me too well."

Speaking of love inspired him to confide to Freddie that he had become a victim of that gentle emotion.

"She's in a show in town and, though I say it, has a real artistic temperament."

"Good egg," said Freddie.

"Yes and no," the youthful Romeo replied, "for the trouble is I haven't. She expects me to write her wonderful letters and that's where I fall down. I was trying just before you two fellows showed up, but the result was horrid. That's the worst of a commercial training. Stifles the artistic temperament."

"You should get Trevelyan here to give you a hand. He's a writer by trade when gunning allows," said Freddie.

To Another Woman

"I say, that'ud be marvelous, though," said the boy, unconscious of anything ridiculous in the suggestion. "If you would, sir."

Harley stifled an inclination to laugh.

"But I don't know the girl," he protested.

"That don't matter. What she craves for is real feeling. Now, look here," and he fished a field service pocketbook from his trench coat, "any idiot would realize that the kind of stuff I've written would put a girl clean off. Wait till I get a torch."

By the light of an electric torch Harley found himself reading the boy's composition. There was something almost fragrant in its naivette. One sentence referred to her "esteemed embraces."

"I'd send it—it's you," said Harley.

The boy shook his head.

"Not it. I know her. Be a sport, sir; write me something that'll make her sit up. I'll tote along in one of the other lorries and give you a chance."

Thrusting the book and the torch into Harley's hands, he dropped over the tailboard and vanished into the night. Freddie, with that suddenness that distinguished all his actions, had gone peacefully to sleep. One could not laugh at a joke like that alone—besides the boy had been sincere. Like a million others on the threshold of emotion he had found himself paralyzed into silence.

Harley tucked the clip of the torch into the buttonhole of his lapel and began to write.

"I'm sitting on an ammunition box in a lorry jogging down a long, straight road from somewhere to the war.

"Through the canvas cover across the night I can see the yellow lights of other lorries—that look like a string of little suns vanishing into the distance. But I begin to believe that there is no distance——"

"O, rot," said Harley, ripped out the sheet of squared paper, and started afresh.

"I love you. Does it matter? I love you—let it matter. I love you—in charity make it matter. I love you—love you—love you."

He did not notice a figure scrambling over the tailboard, until a voice eagerly inquired:

"How are you getting on?"

"I'm not."

The book and the light were snatched away.

"I say, that's just what I've been trying to say," crowed the boy exultantly.

And so it befell that Harley's first love letter to Joan was delivered into the hands of another woman.

The Week End Guest

—By Helen Bartlett—

By Observing Simple Rules of Etiquette, the Summer Visitor Will Delight the Hearts of His Host and Hostess.

THE qualifications of the perfect week-end guest—the answer to hostess' prayers—are numerous, but hard to define. He must be entirely self-sufficient; but he must also have the grace to join into the spirit of things other people want to do. He must be on the spot when he's wanted, but he mustn't be under his host's feet. He must be, above all, keenly appreciative of the fact that hospitality is the greatest kind of compliment.

When he receives a note of invitation to a week-end party he should acknowledge it at once, and, if he accepts, with specific information about the time he will arrive.

His invitation should have told him something of what he may expect during the party, whether he'll golf, or swim, or fish or be socially gay, or perhaps enjoy a taste of each. At any rate, he should bring the proper clothes, as near as he can gauge. The borrowing guest is a menace. If there is to be golf, he should bring his own clubs. He brings his own bathing suit if he plans to do any swimming and he carefully folds his dinner clothes into his bag if the people he is visiting are the kind who dress for dinner, or if there is to be a special party. If he's just going to loaf he brings loafing togs.

A Touch of Thoughtfulness.

His duty to his hostess begins with acceptance of the invitation. He usually makes a Friday call at a florist's or a book seller's or a confectioners and sends her something—some small thing representative of his pleasure at being asked and his desire to contribute something to the party.

If he is being met he is scrupulously careful of catching the right train and, once arrived, his first concern is to speak to his host and hostess if they haven't met him at the train. Once in their household he must adopt their manner of doing things. Being agreeable can be his motto. If his hosts are the nice kind who let a guest do pretty much what he wants, or else provide things for him to do that will really entertain him, his way is easy. But if they've definite ideas of the sort of party they want, he must fall in with them.

Even though he loathes bridge he is bound to play if his hostess appears to want him to; if the host is a fishing fan and the guest detests the sport he's obliged to hide his distaste and fish as he's expected to. All through the week-end he must play the part expected of him. Some skilled and admirable hosts expect nothing more than that their guests be genial; others simply insist that activity and exercise are synonymous with country life and in either case the guest must be agreeable about everything. He should be attentive enough to his hostess; conceal even the slightest annoyance at any one in the household and try to make his presence in the house compatible with its management. He should find out definitely what time he is expected to appear for Sunday morning breakfast. Some households begin the day early, others have an elastic schedule.

Be Considerate.

Upon the guests depends almost entirely the success of the week-end party. If each does his share it's bound to be the sort of time we all think longingly of. The qualifications are simple: Be on time for meals; if you have to share a bathroom, take your baths at hours convenient to the others; never criticize any of your hosts' friends; be enthusiastic about the entertainment provided; don't be insistent about the things you want to do; retire to silence during family discussions; if there is no servant or only one and you are causing extra labor, try to help by keeping your room in order. Never leave your personal belongings, such as handkerchiefs, bags, etc., around the house. NEVER talk too much.

A guest should not accept invitations that do not include his hosts. He should allow the family a little privacy and should get some for himself by occasional well timed retirement. And he should never stay a day longer than the time for which he was invited, even after the most convincing urging.

Tipping in Order.

At large establishments it is customary to tip the servants. Women tip maid servants and men the men servants. The personal maid would, at the end of a few days' visit, be given a couple of dollars; the chauffeur who drives the guest to and from the station would be given a dollar or thereabouts. If one plays golf one is expected to tip one's own caddy.

When the guest leaves he writes immediately to his hostess, telling her what a gr-r-and time he had; in it he mentions his host, too. This must absolutely be done within a week. And, after returning home, it is customary to send the hostess some small thing, say a book or handkerchiefs, or colorful fireside matches, or something of the sort.

If friends of the hostess have entertained, the guest should write to them, too. But, above all, he should let his host and hostess feel that he thinks their hospitality a genuine delight.

Answers to Etiquette Questions.

"When the host carves and serves what is the order of serving?"—J. L.

In most households the hostess is served first; the guest of honor may be served next, and then serving follows the most balanced and convenient order.

Delilah's Daughter

A Savaran Story

By Douglas Newton

"And—we can do nothing!" she wailed.

"We can pray that our deaths will be—quick," he said grimly. "Also, you can send me some real American cigarets if you, or Dr. Felton, have any; this Kafir tobacco is ruining my palate."

A Pocket Revolver

She sent him cigarets; she sent him good foods and wines. She even made the mistake of sending him a file in a long loaf; she did not realize what it meant to capture Savaran. The big Arab jailer, pawing through cigarets and food under the eyes of a white officer, broke the loaf and tossed the file free with a sneering snarl, while the officer laughed contempt in Savaran's face and patted the jailer's broad back. And she heard of that, too, and read in it the fate of Mamee Yorga. Savaran would never be freed; the town was doomed. When she went to him again she was a desperate and contrite woman.

The big, scowling jailer stood at her elbow more watchfully than ever; she turned on him fiercely.

"Stand back," she cried. "I am going away. I shall never see him again. I must speak with him alone."

The man shrank back before the fire in her tone, but he hesitated and with a splendid gesture she threw wide her arms.

"Could I carry any tools to help him?" she cried angrily. She wore a sleeveless and, to the big Arab, a shameless pocket handkerchief of a frock. It was difficult to see how she could have concealed even a penknife about her. As the man hung sheepishly, Savaran snapped at him:

"Do as you are told, black dog. It is not good for your ears to hear the farewells of white lords."

The whiplash in the lean adventurer's tone completed the jailer's discomfiture. He turned and shuffled off, and as he went Ruth Dacre leant against the wall framing herself with her sun hat, overcome by the heat of the place as much as the strain. It was only as the big jailer turned at the door of the prison to watch her that she nerved herself to go to the bars of the cell door.

"Savaran," she said horsely, "kiss my hand in farewell. It holds a pocket revolver. I brought it in my hat. Not much, but I could not bear to think of you going out without striking a fighting blow."

He bent over that fine, strong, sweet hand with the grace of kings.

"Ruth," he said softly, "you are one of the world's great hearts. I am your worshiper."

"Don't," she choked, "I have been a fool, Savaran. But I meant only to be wise. I did it for Mamee Yorga, for all these men and women and children, all my helpless hospital cases——"

I Believe in You

"And young Dr. Felton?" he smiled.

"Yes," she said simply, "I love him, Savaran. And I love him too for the great work he is doing. I wanted to save him to do greater. It was a mean trick I played on you, but I did not know—I hadn't your wisdom. I felt that if I kept you here, even against your will, you would find a way to fight and beat the Forofangora for the very preservation of your genius."

"That, my dear, is the greatest tribute my genius has had," he said quietly.

"I always did believe in you," she said wearily, "but I did not know what these officials were. And now it is all over. The Forofangora strike the day after tomorrow and we all die. There is little doubt about it, even the commissaire begins to suspect it."

"And what does that mountain of sleep do?" asked Savaran.

"He can't quite admit it yet . . . the Forofangora are such loyal and meek people, he bleats, but he has given out that he will hang all those hostages in a row if the Forofangora do anything to annoy him."

"And then he fell asleep again," Savaran laughed grimly. "And the rest of the government crew?"

"One or two are overhauling the armory stores and crying in despair over them," she told him. "And some took canoes last night and slipped down river."

"Their throats are cut by now," he said cheerily. "But I'm glad you came today, Ruth; even I begin to find this prison and its fleas irksome."

"But, what do you mean?" she cried. "Have you found a way?"

"I am Savaran, which, of course, is saying yes," he said. He turned to his scowling jailer, rapped: "Is all ready, Abn Zayd?"

The sullen Arab was no longer sullen. He sprang to attention; he was grinning all over his face.

"All is ready," he beamed. "We wait but the word of the Lord Zavarani."

"Pass the word to the guard to muster at once," rapped the lean adventurer. "Send runners to the Gurgur to bid my men parade before government house—in fighting order and now."

He Is Zavarani

The big jailer ran from the place shouting. The sentries at the door became alive and vanished from view. There came the bustle of men gathering outside, the clang of rifle butts on sun baked earth. The big jailer came running back. As he put his key into the lock of the cell door he cried happily:

"Does the lord who laughs at lions need his slave's help?"

"Just a match," Savaran grinned, for he could not resist the dramatic. His hands had gone down to his chains. He shook them a little and then tossed the formidable collection aside like discarded undergarments; no man, it was to be seen, was needed to release Savaran. He strolled out of his cell, cigaret in hand, at the precise moment that Abn Zayd held up the match.

Ruth Dacre leant against a wall gasping.

"You have released yourself. Could have at any time?" she cried bewildered. "But this man, your jailer——"

"Allow me to introduce Abn Zayd," grinned Savaran, "my headman in many expeditions."

"And—and you got him in here as your own jailer!" she gasped. "How—how?"

"He is Zavarani," beamed the big man. "Wonders are natural to him."

"Less than a wonder here," said Savaran largely, for he was enjoying this. "The officials are so sleepy that when the real jailer went down with fever and recommended his cousin Abn Zayd they did not push their inquiries very deep. But let us go out and review my army."

Next Sunday

Defective vision kept Jimmy out of the army flying school at Kelly Field, but his capable hands, swinging a sponge, led him to a thrilling experience. . . . A short story by Austin Parker.

The Sponge Route

"Even the soldiers are yours?" she laughed hysterically.

"I had five hundred men on my pay roll," he grinned. "It was a pity to let them waste their time in idleness, especially as the government forces were eager for recruits owing to slackness in enlistments. Quite a number joined up and spread the news of Savaran through the ranks of the all too ready regulars, for an army will always back a real leader to a man."

Even a Band

They went out and five grinning ranks of hard bitten askari came to the salute like veterans at the barked command of Abn Zayd. The two officers of the guard were sitting blinking at rifle muzzles in the little mess room of the prison barracks.

Savaran stalked like an out-size Napoleon along the ranks. Spoke a handful of harsh words in Yorgi which sent two hundred well oiled rifles tossing in the air as the men cheered, and called for horses. Two horses. Ruth Dacre rode with him as he marched in triumph through the sleek and sleepy streets of Mamee Yorga to government house. But there was no sleep in Mamee Yorga once Savaran had passed. Savaran left no details unthought of. He had even provided a band.

So behind the blood quickening scream of native instruments they swung into huge parade ground facing the official palace. It was already full of black fighting men. Regulars of the colonial force marshaled in companies with new machine guns ominously trained on the commissaire's dwelling, and masses of Savaran's even more formidable irregulars drawn up behind. A huddle of white officers stood about the palace steps uneasily fingering their pistols as Savaran strode largely up to them.

"Gentlemen," he said grimly, "draw your weapons and it is a massacre. On the other hand, wait patiently a little while and I will find you plenty of use for them."

He walked straight through that little crowd, though every man of it was ready to cut him down, lacking only the nerve.

His excellency the commissaire was as yet only half awake to what had happened. He heaved his gross body from his chair and, blinking across his great desk, mumbled:

"What is this? Most irregular—a prisoner without an armed guard. Most improper——"

"Fat one," said Savaran with ferocious geniality, "go back to your dozing. You are temporarily deposed. Since you can neither govern nor protect Mamee Yorga, an expert has been called in." He turned to two frightened secretaries. "Take away this—bundle," he said. "Savaran needs his chair of state."

The Path of Nails

The Forofangora attacked to time table. They came out of the jungle mists into the red sun of dawn, their great head plumes making a sea of dancing lights, their rhino shields drumming thunder as their spear hafts beat out their war challenge. They moved in an exultant swarm, tight packed because, thanks to the two great rivers, only one side of the town could be approached. But that did not bother them. They were contemptuous of Mamee Yorga. They knew that the watch was half asleep, the defenses nil.

It seemed they were right. Dawn sun showed them a broken old wall behind which drowsed a sleep sodden town. No man stirred in it; there was a curious silence even under the drumming of spears. Even when their chiefs leaped forward and loosed their bull roars of slaughter there was no movement, no sound, and the whole host gathered tighter and hurled forward with shouts of blood upon its lips.

No movement, no sound at all from Mamee Yorga until the mass of naked braves were no more than forty feet from the wall, and even then no sound from the wall—only a new sound from the Forofangora warriors. A strange sound, a shrill outcry, a screaming. The foremost ranks were suddenly yelling, and leaping, and trying to twist back in a panic of pain. They hurled themselves back into the mob that hurled itself forward with a force that piled up the whole mass in a wild maggot squirm of tangled confusion. And they screamed that the ground beneath their feet was aswarm with devils.

This was not quite correct. Savaran had merely ordered that through every door and every flat plank in Mamee Yorga there should be driven eight inch nails sharpened to needle point. Those doors and planks had been buried in the sandy soil outside the wall so that they formed a broad band, thirty feet deep, right across the front of the wall. The Forofangora were now stepping with bare feet on those needle points set as close as cornstalks, and the effect was distressing. And as they shrieked and milled and formed themselves into a matted mob Savaran, smiling fiercely, leant outward from Mamee Yorga's wall and shot Fodi Kabba, king of the Forofangora, and three of his chiefs as fast as his remarkable pistol could spit bullets. And even before his third shot rang out the front of Mamee Yorga was a blaze of flame. Machine guns and rifles pumped in a continuous blaze into the brown of that milling, tight packed, helpless mob. It was point blank killing at nonstop rates. The pelt of shots blew great holes in the writhing mass, and pressure from behind filled up those holes ready for more killing. In time it was impossible to say how many died, so dense was the swath of dead and living. The shambles that the Forofangora had planned for Mamee Yorga had come to meet them. In twenty minutes there was no more war.

Making Excuses

There was a lame, feeble sort of siege for a week or two until word that flotillas were being rushed up river finished even that. It was always half-hearted, never dangerous. The Forofangora ran from Mamee Yorga beaten.

"Those first twenty minutes finished them," Savaran explained to Ruth Dacre. "They taught them that a master was in command, and that there was no hope for them."

Savaran told her this as they stood on the banks of the river by the canoe that was to take him across the Abn Zayd and his expedition waiting on the further bank.

Savaran looked into eyes that told him how personal that triumph might be, and he turned quickly to nod at the two stern-wheelers that were disembarking white regiments and artillery on to Mamee Yorga's quay.

"It is wiser for Savaran to go before the official mind remembers there is a reward for his capture."

"They won't do it," she cried. "Why, all Mamee Yorga is petitioning to have you made commissaire."

"Horrible," he grinned. "Imagine Savaran developing an his excellency paunch!"

"That's not Savaran's way," she said, searching his eagle face with overbright eyes. "You are making excuses."

"Possibly," he grinned. "You see, I still think I can get those diamonds."

"Diamonds!" she cried scornfully. "Diamonds—Savaran, I am more than diamonds. I—I want you."

"So does young Dr. Felton," said Savaran grimly. "And I've taken a liking to him. And you're a lovely thing, Ruth, and Savaran is an Ismael—only fit for diamonds."

He bent and kissed her and sprang into his canoe. And half way across the stream his fierce grin broke out.

"I wonder," he asked himself, "which of us had made the luckier escape?"

Bachelor Seeks Real Girl

By Doris Blake

And He Wants Her Accomplishments to Lie Outside the Smoking, Drinking, Necking and Alimony Grabbing Lines

In case young women have an idea that it is they who are doing all the serious thinking about marriage and what one gets out of it these days, they may be interested to learn that postponement of the marriage event is not entirely a matter of female decision. Young men, it would seem, are quite as loath to take on the responsibility unless they, too, see fair promise of something decidedly worth while to give up their freedom for.

While girls size up a possible "prospective" with such queries as "Is he going to make good?" "Is he a man of character, health, brains?" the boys likewise are not blinded by a flashy manner, an intoxicating wit, nor a flair for a good time. Queries are flashing with equal rapidity through their minds. And, like the girls, it is the old fashioned brands of stability, fineness, irreproachableness of character that serve as a standard in summing up the desirability of a mate.

Instead of dodging marriage, the young man's problem is dodging girls who do not rate high as marriage material, if you will believe a bachelor correspondent, H. W. M. He says:

Not Averse to Marriage.

"Girls might disabuse their minds of the idea that we men are averse to marriage. We are not. We are not dodging marriage as much as we are dodging the girls of today. We are not afraid of the responsibilities of the double life, but we ARE afraid of the present day girls. Facts about them are facts, brought to our attention in a thousand ways. To enumerate some of them, let me ask your present day girl some of the questions that come to the mind of any man serious about marriage and what it means to him.

"First, let me comment that to us men marriage of the moment is an institution for women. It means more to a woman than it does to a man, due to the natural purpose of matrimony. The institution has been kicked over by women. Since women themselves have turned against it, why should men continue to insist on it? If women had not turned against marriage there would not be the startling divorce record on exhibition right now.

"But, for the questions: What has marriage to offer a man? Does the girl of today offer him a home?

"Does she offer him babies? If she does, can she assure him they will be healthy? Can she assure him she is fit to be a mother and a home maker? Can he be sure that his son will respect his mother?

Kisses and Tobacco——

"Isn't it true that everywhere you turn you see women smoking away at cigarets and guzzling liquor? Do you think men enjoy kissing a girl whose breath reeks with tobacco smoke?

"Do women of today have self-respect? If so, why do they sit around in public places and conveyances dressed deliberately to rouse instincts in men that are anything but a tribute to so-called fine womanhood?

"What man wants the mother of his children to have been necked by every male that invited her out for an evening?

"Do women want babies? Don't they prefer to spend the money babies would cost on their own backs? Isn't it too much of a task to raise a family?

"Do women marry to stay married, or isn't it true a large number marry with one eye to the divorce court and alimony? And take advantage of the first quarrel to gain freedom and an alimony allowance? Aren't women failures as wives and mothers? If not, why have they deserted the home and job?"

"Aren't women as polygamous as men at heart? Else why all this freedom we see and hear about, with women as central figures? Haven't women let themselves slip to the level of men? Why did they not retain their own high standard and continue to lead men to it with the single code the ultimate?

"Understand, I appreciate fully that there are women who are everything fine and good and clean—women who are making a great success of their own lives, their husbands', their families'. But there are not enough of these to go around.

Fed Up on Jazz Minded Females.

"We men are fed up on the gin guzzlers, smokers, vulgar and jazz minded females. We want women who make motherhood and wifehood something to stir our imagination. We want women who have the courage and convictions of good training and good thoughts, and who cannot be influenced into detrimental habits by current example. We want women who are too busy doing things and being themselves to prate about such illusions as FREEDOM, for there is no such thing. No one is free; we were all put here for a purpose.

"We want a modern woman who will be a companion that draws out our deepest respect and one who will by her worthiness make better men of us. We have them, too, but the real girls are few and hard to find, in spite of the optimists. It is because of this and not because of any distaste for marriage nor fear of its responsibilities that the bachelor numbers are increasing. We want a fair run for our money, that's all."

BEAUTY QUERY ANSWERS

B. R. L.: THE FOLLOWING LOtion may be used on hands that perspire: Boric acid, 2 drams; borax, 3 drams; salicylic acid, 3 drams; glycerin, 3 ounces; bay rum, 3 ounces. Apply three times a day. My booklet on the care of the hands may be had for a stamped addressed envelope.

P. L.: YOU SHOULD VISIT YOUR dentist for a thorough cleaning of the teeth at least twice a year. No matter how conscientious you are in the daily care of your mouth and teeth, they need this precautionary measure. Lime water is an excellent preventive of decay.

Y. S.: YOU MAY REDUCE THE bust by exercise, but you must do the exercises faithfully and strenuously, otherwise they are ineffective. Exercises may be had for a stamped addressed envelope.

N. R.: FULLER'S EARTH MAY be purchased at a drug store. Mix it to a paste with witch hazel and a few drops of benzoin. It makes an effective mud pack.

FRANCIS K.: THERE IS A LEGITimate covering of down on the lips which should not be removed. However, if this downy covering develops into a hairy groweh, the hair should be bleached with peroxide, which keeps the hair light and at the same time dry.

A. B. E.: I CAN GIVE YOU AN excellent dandruff cure, but it isn't in liquid form. Sixty grains of sulphur mixed with one ounce of vaseline. Apply every other night to the scalp and massage. My booklet on the hair may be had for a stamped addressed envelope.

R. L.: BRUSHING THE HAIR for five or ten minutes a day will give it the lustre you want. It is a much better way to acquire it than through the use of liquid preparations. Brushing stimulates the roots thoroughly and is cleansing.

BEE F.: BRUSH YOUR EYEbrows with an eyebrow brush morning and night. It promotes their gloss and trains them into shape. If they need to be darkened use an eyebrow pencil.

C. L.: A SIMPLE WASH FOR A shiny red nose is boric acid, one dram; distilled water, four ounces. Daub on the face several times a day with absorbent cotton and allow it to dry on the skin.

TINA H.: YOUR SKIN IS TOO dry. That is why it is so tender and sensitive. Work cold cream into the face at night, allowing as much as possible to remain on. Use a cleansing cream for cleansing purposes for a while.

MIRIAM S.: THE HAIR SHOULD be shampooed just as soon as it is dirty. Every ten days or two weeks is a fair estimate. It should never be allowed to remain unwashed for over three weeks. Shampooing instructions may be had for a stamped addressed envelope.

MISS G.: PROTECT YOUR SKIN as much as possible from the sun. It is easier to prevent freckles than it is to get rid of them. Before going out rub a good cold cream into your skin and dust with powder. For the light summer variety of freckles try equal parts of glycerin and lemon juice.

Ravinia Operas for Week to Be Most Attractive

Several New Pieces on Program.

By Edward Moore.

RAVINIA is not turning out new performances as rapidly this week as has been the case earlier in the season. There are some, however, and in addition some of the repetitions will have important changes in cast. So there will be no excuse for staying away merely because there is not a new opera every evening.

Incidentally, a note which, though anonymous, had a suggestion in it was delivered at this desk the other day. It was to the effect that an occasional matinée performance of opera be given at Ravinia for the benefit of those whose health will not permit them to attend in the evenings.

It would be a pleasant idea, but without consulting Mr. Eckstein or his associates two reasons for the extreme difficulty of the measure seem apparent. One is that the theater is busy mornings and afternoons on rehearsals for an extremely concentrated season. The other is that since the pavilion is open on all sides, a number of problems on lighting and cognate matters would have to be met. But, at the same time, it is all up to Mr. Eckstein.

French Music Today.

Today is the day before the French national holiday, Bastille day, and in consequence French music will be heard in both the afternoon and evening sessions. "An Afternoon of French Music and French Composers" is the title of the concert. Eric DeLamarter and the Chicago Symphony orchestra will play Massenet's "Phedre" overture and two movements from Milhaud's symphony called "Le Printemps." John Weicher, violin soloist, will play works by Debussy, Chabrier, and Saint-Saëns. Léon Rothier, French bass, will sing "La Marseillaise." After the intermission La Chorale Française and Charles Lagourgue, its conductor, will take the stage and sing four groups of songs, three in French, the final one in English.

For the evening the delectable "Marouf" will be the attraction, and Mario Chamlee, Yvonne Gall, and the rest of the first class cast will again disport themselves through as agreeable a comedy as there is in all operatic music. In fact, the French idea will last over tomorrow night, with "Romeo and Juliet" on the bulletin and Lucrezia Bori and Edward Johnson as the two great lovers.

Children Have Day.

First time this season, "Lucia di Lammermoor" is up for Tuesday. Florence Macbeth, expert coloratura soprano, will deal with its decorative trills and roulades, and Giovanni Martinelli, in a part far removed from his customary heroic roles, will be the Edgardo.

Another new piece is on for Wednesday. They have taken out "The Tales of Hoffman," dusted it off, and are presenting it for the talents and voices of Mme. Gall, Miss Macbeth, Mr. Chamlee, Giuseppe Danise, and a long list of others.

Thursday is the time for the children's afternoon concert, so Mr. DeLamarter and the orchestra will present a program to be followed by Ruth Page, Blake Scott, and the ballet in a series of divertissements. The evening bill is "Faust," with changes in the two leading rôles. Elisabeth Rethberg will appear as Marguerite and Edward Johnson as Faust. Friday brings another repetition, "La Boheme," but this time Mme. Bori will be the Mimi.

On Saturday night "Carmen" will be sung for the first time this season. Ina Bourskaya will be in the name part, Queena Mario will appear as Micaela, Mr. Martinelli will sing Don Jose and Mario Basiola Escamillo. And looking over the edge of the week, the Sunday following will be German day, with a German program and a speech by the German consul in the afternoon and "Lohengrin" in the evening.

"Anima Allegra" and "The Bartered Bride" are now in rehearsal, with the apparent likelihood of "Anima Allegra" being produced first. The piece, with music by Franco Vittadini, is little known hereabouts. It was done at the Metropolitan a few years ago, followed by a performance or two in San Francisco, but apparently nowhere else. From what can be discovered of the piece, it is full of gayety and humor, with music something in the character, though not duplicating the melodies, of "La Rondine." Its translated title, "Joyous Soul," would seem to fit it.

The Ravinia management has favored this department with a brief account of the plot.

Spain Is Locale.

Spain is its locale and when the first act begins we find ourselves in an old Spanish house, the ancestral home of the Marchioness Sacramento, who, as she has grown older, has forgotten the joys of life. There are no young people in the house, for the marchioness' son, Pedro, has fled its gloom to seek distraction with his companions at Granada, leaving his mother and her pompous major-domo to reign alone in somber quiet.

But this condition is not to last, for Consuelo, niece of the marchioness, unexpectedly arrives for a visit, bringing with her her coquettish maid. Consuelo is full of life and the joy of living, and no sooner has she arrived than things begin to change, for Consuelo introduces a new and lively atmosphere. Then Pedro comes home and the love plot begins to develop. Consuelo visits a neighboring gypsy camp where she becomes one of the principal contributors to the mirth of a wedding feast and there Pedro, sent by the marchioness, finds her. He is delighted and soon becomes a partaker of that joy which Consuelo scatters

New "Vanities" Gain Ultimate in Stage Nudity

Earl Carroll's Production Is Naked, Unashamed.

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK. — [Special Correspondence.] — Earl Carroll is the most adventurous of the Broadway playboys. A lad of one virtue and a thousand faults, it may be, but still one who is able always to top one adventure with another and whose lust for excitement keeps him continuously in the public's consciousness.

Carroll's latest contribution is a new "Vanities." And his latest achievement is to have this new "Vanities" produced in the New Amsterdam theater, of which his long-time chief rival, Florenz Ziegfeld, is one of the lessees.

His new "Vanities" is, as they usually are, naked and unashamed. There is nothing new in nudity these days. It is no longer a question of the ultimate in feminine revealment. The question nowadays is not how naked is one but how naked are many.

Mr. Carroll's taste in these matters is undisputed. He goes in freely for the tall and slender types. One of his chief backgrounds in the new show is a "March of Time," employed to display the beauties of the mysterious stars, each lovelier than the other and more glittering.

Thus does Venus outshine Mars, Mercury outshine Venus and Neptune throw Mercury temporarily into the discard, which is that portion of the stage where no spotlight penetrates.

Clad in a Lavaliere.

In the end, after six of these gorgeous creatures have paraded into the light, each fully revealed, fully conscious of her revealment and proud, Saturn floats gorgeously into view with no more than a lavaliere protecting her from the jealous rays of the lamp, then is the stage a sight to behold and to fascinate.

As I say, there is nothing new in nudity. If it isn't the stars in the skies that the ladies graciously agree to suggest, it is the moving adornments of a huge velvet curtain, each beauty half concealed and perhaps a bit more than half revealed by the curtain's folds and the lanterns.

Once, in an undersea ballet, a tank filled with gleaming flesh offers a swimmer's ballet with the performers apparently diving and twisting in shimmering green water, wearing no more than their birthday garb. Not an offensive spectacle, nor coarsely physical. Rather an effective picture in fact, and less startling than many of those in which concealment is only partly accomplished.

These new undersea effects are produced by an arrangement of mirrors. revolving mirrors, I assume, in which a perfectly normal adagio dance becomes a succession of slow-movement poses under water. You will recall that in an adagio dance the lady partner is persistently casting herself into the arms of the strong youth who is her mate. Once there, it is the youth's job either to spin her about his neck or his waist, to hold her gracefully poised upon his shoulder, or threaten to cast her away from him into the orchestra pit.

Revolving Mirrors Are Used.

In the water ballet these poses are translated into the natural movements of the swimmer. The lady darts, seal-like, toward her mate, and he meeting her in mid-tank, playfully spins her about in the deep water. What actually happens backstage, probably, is that they are doing the same sort of dance they formerly did on the stage, but the revolving mirrors, set at special angles, reveal them to the audience as a pair of playful porpoises.

By way of decoration six or eight other girls, like so many impish college seniors, come upon a pool in the

Talkie Houses Complain of Bad Business

By Tom Pettey.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW YORK. — [Special.] — There has been a lot of wailing in the neighborhood talkie houses recently about bad business. The wail eventually spread to Broadway, where the night clubs joined in the chorus, and finally a search was started for the lost customers. Most of them were found in reconverted playhouses or out on vacant lots dubbing around miniature golf courses.

This sun baked town has swapped its headache for a putter and is putting down golf balls instead of highballs. The night blooming coin scatterers who used to take in a talkie or play and then dash madly to the nearest night club or speakeasy are gulping down early dinners and dashing out to the nearest backyard golf course. There is a string of them from the East river to Long Beach and they are scattered throughout Manhattan. Madison Square Garden catches a part of the midtown crowd and some of the dark theaters are hastily being turned into indoor golf pastures.

The play continues into early hours and even in the suburbs couples can be found batting the colored balls about long after 3 a. m. There is a lot of betting being done, for skill does not always win on the miniature courses.

The movie and night club men sigh when these tiny golf courses are mentioned, for it costs only about $1,500 to start one. Some of them pay for themselves in a couple of weeks. It is a great racket, but like everything else in New York, it is being overdone. The fifty cents a game tax is coming down every day and soon folks in this town will be playing for a quarter a round on almost all the courses. The picture houses frankly admit that their attendance has been falling off ever since the craze for golf began.

Rivals of the Night Clubs

The night club business here was on the rocks to begin with. So far as the playboy joints are concerned, it has been a dismal summer. It is only in Greenwich Village and up in Harlem, New York City's black belt, that the night clubs are thriving. In the Times square section the hideaway dining place, the no cover charge dancing clubs and the speakeasies are getting the cash.

The Nut club and Club Barney in the village are getting the summer night crowds. Up in Harlem the Cotton club has become almost a "municipal institution," for that is where the visiting firemen always may be found. Connie's inn, Small's Paradise, the Drool inn and Tillie's Still are "hot" spots.

The road houses are catching small beach bound crowds, with Paul Whiteman at Hollywood Gardens doing the biggest business. Tex Guinan down on the Merrick road on the way to Long Beach has a good show, but is not getting much of a dinner crowd. Vincent Lopez at Pelham Heath has been alternating between the roadhouse and the St. Regis hotel.

Over on the upper east side the folks are going in for yoedeling and German beer gardens. There are enough "brauhäuser" to satisfy any one. Ten places have open doors on 86th street alone.

Coming back to the movie fare, Lon Chaney in the "Unholy Three" strikes this reporter as the most interesting bit of entertainment on Broadway. He is talking on the screen in three different character rôles at the Capital and secretly hav-

GOOD morning!

The trick to this one is—FIND a blushing bride! Just TRY and find one blushing bride for yourselves in the entire production!

As in "Our Dancing Daughters," Joan Crawford, Anita Page, and Dorothy Sebastian have the feminine leads. This time Miss Crawford draws—and merits—the sugariest of these rôles. She is charming. She is clever. She is sincere. She is very, very likeable. One imagines that "in real life," as we say, she is "regular"—the sort who could be trusted with a secret and would be generous to another woman.

This cinema deals in the destinies of three girls who live together in a small and not too cheerful apartment and work in a department store. All are pretty much fed up on the humdrum life they lead, but Jerry (Joan) is the only hardheaded philosopher of the lot. Jerry wants to be rescued all right—but she knows men, and no soft speaker who doesn't offer a wedding ring as life preserver is going to save her from the existence of a poor working girl. Full well wots she that while

The primrose path is full of thorns.

Little blonde Connie, who clerks in the perfumes, isn't so wise nor so particular. She permits young David Jardine, who, with his brother, Tony, manages the store which is the property of the Jardine family, to Furnish for her a cosy flat

In which, ere long, he leaves her—flat.

Franky (Dorothy Sebastian), gay and headstrong and wanting and taking advice from nobody, goes out one night with a perfect stranger (far from perfect, as you will discover) who has that day ordered some $500 worth of blankets from her—she clerks in the blanket department—paying cash for same from a roll that seems to miss the $500 not at all. She and her escort return early in the morning ——

Laughing, silly, and very tight
But married — as they prove, all right.

You should see how that wedding turns out. Terrible, girls, terrible!

Jerry models lingerie — and for a long time Tony, brother of David, has had an eye on her. Which fact she knows, being a modern maiden. Which is really a silly thing to say, for don't tell me our grandmothers and our great, greats weren't hep to fires burning around them. Anyhow, Jerry KNOWS what is going on in Tony's mind and he hasn't a surprise to offer when he proceeds to catch up with her and behave just as experience has taught her that all men do.

Does she put him in his place? Well — here's where the picture must take up the narrative. I will hint, how-

Taking Modernity Veneer Rapidly.

This the second of a series of articles on Spain by Jay Allen of The Tribune's foreign staff. In the series he will tell of the political and economical problems now confronting this ancient and romantic country, including the movement, which he terms "really formidable," against the king. The next will appear in an early issue.

By Jay Allen.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID.—[Special Correspondence.]—From the train, twenty minutes out, Madrid looks just like another, but larger and whiter village, baked on a long flat hilltop.

It looks compact, huddled, and inconsequential in the vast sweep of the savage Castilian steppe as you come down on it from the slopes of the Sierra de Guadarrama. Its highest "skyscrapers" are only irregularities in the huddle and do not impose themselves on this unfriendly landscape.

Brown and harsh the Castilian plain usually is, tempered by fire and ice, lacerated in winter by sharp winds from the Guadarramas, in summer seared, suffocated under a blazing sun.

Just now it wears an ephemeral gloss of green, the touch of the late, short-lived, and tremulous Castilian spring. Rocky slopes, soon to be brown save for the dusty green of olives, are but tinted by it. The green deepens in the rare valleys and here and there as at Aranjuez, odorous now with strawberries, is held prisoner through the scorching summer in dark alleys of elms, cypress, and plane trees.

Not so in Madrid, naked on her hilltop.

As Casanova Saw It.

From the north where the train comes in from Irun, she shows up new, white, and raw. From the south by the Toledo gate, she is brown, mellow, and her profile of low domes and squat spires of church and convent dominated by the delicate cream mass of the Palace of the Bourbons is just about as Casanova and Goya and the hardy George Borrow spreading the Bible in Spain, saw it over a hundred years ago. Madrid has two sides to her face as to her character.

There are no suburbs to pass through, no miles of factories and dreary commonplaces such as dim the approaches of most modern cities. One moment the train is in open rolling country and the next under the shed of the Norte station, which, like most things in Madrid, is being rebuilt on a grand scale overhead.

On a luminous spring morning Madrid seems to palpitate in all her half-modern, half-ancient and wholly artificial being. The streets have been hosed. Water drips from the trees and sunlight runs wild. It flashes on windshields, blazes on the helmets of police and soldiery, and is unkind to faces you see diving into subways or onto little yellow trams that stand in patient files when they are not burning up the tracks.

A cab driver, who must have seen a rodeo somewhere, rushes you up the long cobbled slope leading into town. He honks furiously, apparently just to keep up the spirits of his ancient yellow Citroen, as none of the soldiers, the donkey drivers, or plain citizenry in the middle of the street seem to hear him at all.

Past the royal palace, a gleaming quarter mile of Corinthian elegance lying suavely along the crest of the hill. Its principal facade stares vacant eyed across the wooded Caso del Campo, where the king hunts, while its rear hulks into the very town. Hussars in red and blue and gold sit immobile on slender Arabian mounts, too pretty and too diminutive to be real. There is a quick vision of halberdiers in a courtyard and the lively strains of the royal march. They are changing the guard.

Turning your back on the royal palace you strike directly into a Madrid that is going modern at a noisy pace. They are slapping on the veneer of modernity everywhere. Scaffolding masks the royal opera. They are transforming it. It cost 40,000,000 pesetas ($5,000,000). The air is full of plaster dust. New streets are being cut through, ruthlessly.

New Movies Being Built.

The Gran Via is the proudest of these. It keeps getting longer, eating through whole blocks of old Madrid. Along it as it uncoils itself rise the new "skyscrapers." There are four new movies on one unfinished square. A fifth is going up down the street. American films.

Really modest in size by American standards, the "skyscrapers" of Madrid are the highest in Europe. They are terrific in intent and architectural exuberance. No nonsense of shady boulevards in modern Madrid. They flank a treeless canyon that holds a furnace heat long after sundown in summer and in winter funnels glacial winds. The tallest, twenty stories, is the telephone company's chaste tower that rises simply for a ways but suddenly goes very baroque.

This is modernity, Madrilenos will tell you, not all proudly. North American modernity and proof positive that Spain has gone twentieth century. It looks more like Buenos Aires or Munich than New York or Chicago. These buildings are florid, heavy. They flower into grotesque towers and domes, impure bulbous domes, fretted with gold and topped off with winged goddesses, Roman chariots with prancing horses, and a number of strange birds and beasts of uncertain pedigree, maybe allegorical.

It is very amusing and the total effect in the morning glitter or against

Decorative Traffic Cops.

The café terraces are already beginning to fill and the noise is on in earnest. Through these modern arteries, the Calle de Alcalá, de San Jerónimo and the Gran Via move viscuous streams of traffic generating sounds like nothing on earth. Madrid is the noisiest city in the world.

Her noise is one of her "sights," so to speak. Of course if you like your traffic constructive and Nordic with a sullen roar you could do better in Chicago's loop. Here it has a savage yelping quality. It has the beauty of things that don't need to be. Noise for noise's sake.

Cutouts are kept open. Backfiring is epidemic. American cars that are quiet enough at home break through unimagined inhibitions in this climate. The shattering American klaxon develops new stridencies under the touch of these Spanish virtuosi. French horns carry the melody. All this whether there is a jam or not. There is a continual performance but the grand crescendo effects are pulled off thrice daily, between twelve and two, six and nine, and again after the theater.

Decorative traffic cops in smart blue uniforms faced with purple, white helmets, white Sam Brown belts and white gloves wield the baton and flash traffic lights. On Sundays they wear helmets with gold spikes—a reincarnation of the old pickelhaube far from Prussia. The rules are intricate, almost Prussian, and make the problem more intricate. But the men behind the steering wheels in this town, one hand on horn or klaxon even in empty streets, are Castilians. They do not register with facility. Let the white helmet so much as turn in their direction and there is a burst of snarling protest.

No serious person ever disputes Madrid's supremacy in this field. There was once an American consule here was once an American consul here then holding out for Damascus because of the camels. For every camel in Damascus there are two burros in Madrid, confirmed vocalists too. From underneath the ground even, through white tile caverns, comes a rumbling—the subway.

Into the Paseo del Prado at the Plaza de Cibeles, between the grim bank of Spain and the ministry of war set back in a garden, flow united the two riotous streams of modernity, the Alcalá and the Gran Via and farther down the Calle de San Jerónimo. The Prado is a wide river of green shade. But the aggresive modernity of Madrid has crossed it and reared an outpost in soaring yellow sandstone that looks like a cathedral and turns out to be the postoffice. The Palace of Communications. "Our Lady of the Communications" say the flippant. The largest in Europe.

Along the Prado are the leading hotels. One is also the biggest in Europe according to ads splashed from Cork to Stamboul. Your broncobusting chauffeur pulls up in triumph to one of them, grinds his brakes, races his engine and backfires to let the folks inside know about it.

They are pretty grand, the big hotels of Madrid. Alone of all the great caravan series of the continent they boast a predominantly national tone. The wealth and swank of Madrid seek them out. To eat, to dance, to tea. The foreigners and the tourists, so used to being gods, are submerged.

The Grandees of Spain.

Tall gentlemen with full beards, close-cropped and parted in front, and ecru linen spats are grandees of Spain —sometimes. Flocks of little pages in white duck and brass buttons—botones they are called—continually shriek for the duque of this and the conde of that. You'd think the management had framed it if now and then people who look convincing didn't actually rise to these summons.

There are many officers in uniform. Most in khaki. Aviators in dark green with trench caps. Two young fellows in the grey and red of the Royal Military academy at Saragossa brighten up a corner.

There is an impression of vigor, grace and beauty.

"Ola!" says a Spaniard when he spies a friend and rushes over to clasp him in both arms affectionately but without the kiss like the French. And Castilian has strong resonances, more than French and Italian. No foppishness in Madrid, none of the previousness that marks other European capitals. People point their fingers if they spot it.

With the thermometer at ninety-five and Madrid twelve hours from the sea you get the finest oysters, lobsters, shrimps and fish like salmon and tuna in months when the rest of the inland world has forsworn them.

The Spanish eat a vast amount of meat. Eggs, fish and meat is the formula for every meal except breakfast. They get the best in Europe when they can pay for it, lamb chops as small as a quarter, suckling pigs no bigger than a rabbit, and incredible steaks.

An American girl pushes back a filet four inches thick and oozing a rosey dew. "I'm sorry," she says, "I never saw anything that looked quite so luscious but I can't help thinking of the bullfight yesterday. You don't suppose . . . ?"

A horrible thought for anybody who dotes on Spanish steaks. Quick inquiries bring the assurance that the meat of bulls which have undergone the nervous strain of a bad afternoon in the ring is tough and sold to a poorer trade.

Money Spent Lavishly.

Money is spent lavishly in Madrid. Four years of neutrality during the war started a stream of prosperity unknown since the golden stream from the Americans was cut off. Subsequent adventurers have not deflated the bigger purses much.

Caviar is consumed in these hotels with gusto at a dollar the spoonful. It is brought from Paris by the conductor of the luxe train especially packed in ice. Florida grapefruit and pears sell at a dollar each. Women wear Paris clothes. Filmy trailing things now with little capes tied like scarves and big floppy straw hats. To the grace of Paris fashions Spanish women add opulence without being fat.

Outside are parked a higher percentage of luxury cars than anywhere in Europe. Footmen sit stiffly by chauffeurs. Cars made in Detroit bear the crests of an ancient aristocracy, worlds, centuries apart. Footmen in gold buttons and stiff white shirts and ties stand at the doors of the palaces that line the Prado out where it becomes the Recoletas and then the Castellana.

There is another side to the picture. Down the slope from Royal palace by the Segovia gate, for instance, there is raw misery. In the country not far from Madrid people live in holes in the ground. Women work in the fields from sun up to sun down for a peseta and a half [18 cents] a day. Clerks in banks with salaries of fifty dollars a month do not eat caviar.

You sense many things in Madrid but first of all that Spain has authentic royalty, a twenty-four carat nobility and that caste and wealth, very often synonymous, are still inviolate and preen themselves.

To leave a carefully shuttered room on a hot afternoon takes courage. Under the still burgeoning foliage of chestnuts, locusts, and plane trees in the Prado the shade is deceptive, green heat instead of yellow. But there are blue tile kiosks where you can buy a cold beer—and Spanish beer is great—or an ice.

There are even chairs to sit in. In them of later afternoons and evenings Madrid sits and watches fashion and wealth, misery and rags.

Seated though it is hard to fight off the dealers. Very enterprising, these dealers. Here is a lank and gamey Gypsy with four faded carnations and a baby smothered in rags. It is not too obvious which she is selling. And the frowzy ladies with lottery tickets, sorry creatures to make any one believe that fortune can be wooed. Bootblacks who could put a shine in your socks and often do, surge out of the ground from under your chair. A rotund hag in black walks with a girl who seems very young for all her curves and black fringe of spitcurls above a grotesquely painted visage. Duenna and charge? Perhaps? The cricketman is the most insistent.

In this country where merchandising is divided down to a very fine point he is about the last word. He carries a pole hung with little wooden cages about four inches square. In each, seated pertly on a lettuce leaf is a cricket with a yellow collar, "bedroom canary," the Spanish say. For twenty-five centimos you can acquire a very superior animal, it seems. But in his sales talk the trainer was not very specific about what practical use even a superior cricket could be put to.

Over there on the steps of the red brick and granite museum, tourists run the gauntlet of sun. Except for this Prado gallery and the royal collection of armor and weapons tourists don't care much for Madrid. Fresh from the grandeurs of the south or of Toledo they find her fare pretty thin. She has no "color," that indefinable commodity that people search for in Europe.

And they hear that she has gone modern and so it would seem. They would like though to lay eyes on the king and when they do they feel better about the skyscrapers and the flocks of American cars.

"We come too late," they moan. It is true that in Madrid the "color" is not brought out on floats as in Seville during Easter week. No one has written a Carmen about Madrid. She has no Alhambra brooding for its dead life on the heights above her. Nor is she a white arm stretching into the sea like Cadiz where the legend persists that sinewy women dance in sailor dives, unadorned as in the days of Concha Perez. She has neither the ripeness nor the faint odor of decay of the Mediterranean ports like Valencia, Malaga, and Cartagena. Nor the curving Moorish streets of Cordova, where an oriental intensity of life lingers.

The sun is cruel in her new streets in summer. So is the wind cruel in winter.

The famed Puerta del Sol, center of her life for three hundred years, is treeless. People muck about in a pool of heat, dodging nervous little yellow street cars. They hang around the torrid subway entrance as around the village pump. In the new quarters the glare is unbearable, and the dust eddies about. Porters sit in doorways, nostalgic for the old narrow streets. In these alone is there shade. There are geraniums and potted roses in balconies. On such a street where the grass grows between the cobbles is Cervantes buried. People dig gratefully into the cool gloom of these old streets, the delicate little veins off the livid arteries of modern Madrid. They arrange their itineraries by the shade. Storekeepers on the sunny side of unshaded streets look disconsolately at empty sidewalks from behind heavy curtains.

Madrid is awakening from her siesta and into this mold of light and shade begins to pour her rich vitality. Even in her silences she gives forth emanations of latent animal energy. The woman standing in the window of a third floor apartment with her hair down and a gaudy wrapper around her stretches luxuriously. There is the faint perturbation of a guitar in a back room. The dark gypsy youngster who sleeps in the dust and sunlight does not seem quite inert. Sunburned workmen in blue blouses brave the sun and walk with the springiness of people used to walking on ground, not pavement.

Not until the afternoon is almost over does Madrid really come to. The traffic begins to yelp again. The street to fill. At dusk every one goes down into the street, as they do before lunch and to a lesser degree after dinner.

After the sunlight has given way to a violet dusk, which sparkles if the day has been hot, Madrileños still walk as if picking shade. Now they pick not shade but the warmth of the crowd. Certain stretches of pavement like the Alcala on the south side between the Calle de Sevilla and the Plaza de Cibeles are packed and others empty.

The Spaniard, individualist, incapable of collective organization, loves to move in crowds, to jostle and be jostled. He is gregarious like the Arabs and as intensely self-centered. Mentally aloof physically, emotionally he likes to rub elbows. Life seems good when he can tread the slow current of a throng, add his voice to the clamor of a café or to the roar of the bull ring.

Thirty per cent of this crowd that moves joyously sensing life looks like any European crowd except for a carefree quality. The rest . . .

Men and women more often hatless than not. Hair and eyebrows freshly done. Most of the girls have long bobs that curl around olive faces. You discover that the stiff black stetson and the short gray bolero for men have gone out and are only worn by stockmen in from the country and rabid gentry from Seville.

Spanish Shawls.

You discover, too, that the Spanish "type" is anything from the red haired, blue eyed Aragonese to the dark Andalusian through the lean faced Basque, the wiry Castilian and so on. And that there are Andalusian beauties, highly considered, who, although brunette in complexion, eyebrows and disposition, have blonde hair—without benefit of chemicals. And that some Spanish women still wear Spanish shawls when it is too warm for a coat. They call them mantones de Manila and prefer them in solid colors, black, red or yellow with a short fringe. And that nice girls don't go out alone or with boy friends unless accompanied by a duenna, the carabina. And that the Spanish army has much variety in uniform, red caps, green caps, blue jackets with gold braid, red jackets with khaki pants.

The crowd eddies around the terraces of cafes and of clubs.

"In America time is money, we hear," says a paper today, "but thank God we have our cafe!" This over a picture of what you can't go half a block in Madrid without seeing in real life, a crowded terrace.

Ninety-five per cent men now on the terrace of the Negresco on the Alcalá. The women, except a few obvious types, stay home or take the air with three or four others and the duenna if they are young and unmarried.

Here and in the innumerable bars the Madrileño seems to be joyfully in the clutches of the great drink evil. But no drunkenness. Two or three drinks of anis or sherry, beer, whisky now and then, and that's all. Maybe only coffee or orangeade or that sweetish preparation of crushed orgeat known as horchata. Everybody eats shrimps and crawfish, dissecting them expertly.

Women, Politics, Bulls.

The word, not drink, is the stimulant most in use. There are torrents, cascades, waterfalls of talk. Muscular male Castilian talk. Not lilting babble of the French or Italian cafe.

What about? The same old things, women, politics, bulls.

There are many artists and intellectuals, too. The ytalk of the fine new things to be, the republic and all that. The soldiers are doing a lot of talking, too, and cast suspicious looks at the intellectuals.

The smells are racy—anis, shrimps, tobacco, sausages, of which twenty-one varieties hang in the window.

The uproar is terrific. It leaves you deaf to the traffic grinding by in the street three yards away. In the winter when everything is closed, it is unbearable. I have seen Anglo-Saxon women get up and leave cafes in a state of near hysteria induced merely by the noise.

They hiss for the waiter. A continual sibilance as of escaping steam. Or they clap their hands or yell. People mill about from table to table.

"Ola!" Hands are raised and greetings are fired at thirty yards.

"We suffer from incontinence of the word," says a Spanish writer shouting in my ear to make himself heard. "But it's rather splendid, don't you think?" He makes a gesture around the hundreds of tables where the shuttles and looms of conversation are working furiously.

"If only this energy could be harnessed," says an American from a bank. "Notice their moods, how a man will explode out of a black silence. They pep themselves up with conversation." He believes, too, that Madrileños seem to have more deep lying energy than anybody in Europe, but that in office hours it is apt to be so latent as not to be noticeable at all.

Fresh waves of humanity come up the Alcalá from the Plaza de Cibeles. The corrida is over. Six bulls have poured their blood into the sand of the arena.

The toros, it seems, were valoroso. But Marques was awful. The police had to protect him from the crowd. They might even have cut off his pigtail. Marques should retire . . . there are no good bull fighters any more . . . yes, Villalta is a good bull fighter and Marcial Lalanda . . . no, there are none . . . futbol is the only thing . . . futbol is stupid and besides it is brutal. . . .

A door swings open on the brightly lighted Alcalá and you feel a puff of cold air, incense laden. You look and see the peeling grey façade of the Church of las Calatravas. Inside in the shadows women in black, dozens of them, kneel. You can sense in the obscurity rather than see the terrible realism of the tortured Body writhing on the cross. The satin and tinsel clad saints gleam in their chapels. The voice of a black cowled prelate booms from the loft chair, preaching the things they have preached for centuries half across the face of the world. But you hear the words "in this time of trial."

The movies are letting out. Two a day with the smart performance in the afternoon. Greta Garbo in "Temptation," "The Wolf of Wall Street." Flickerings from Hollywood cast new patterns on the soul of Spain. Do they? This is disputed by many.

Night Clubs Tragic.

The crowd dwindles. People go to eat, to that mysterious, inviolate retreat, the Spanish home, where the wife rules and, by the way, is left most of the time.

The magic evaporates with the evening haze and Madrid becomes harsh again. The evenings in this capital are the saddest in Europe, and the longest. People are still in the streets at four in the morning. You feel the deep lying energy of the Spaniard somehow baffled. He sits glum in theaters which are rarely good, and never cracks a smile.

The night clubs, on the well known Paris pattern, are tragic. Men don't take their wives. There are ten men to one woman. And what women! Spanish "hostesses," they would get a large kick out of this word, are grimfaced—like the men whom they seem loath to approach lest they get kicked. Little page boys do these errands, trembling. Now and then a bored Spanish male rises and consents to stride through a brutal tango or a schottische with a stalwart partner well in hand. Champagne would help but at ten dollars a bottle. Anglo-Saxons, the only ones in evening dress, look puzzled. Romantic Spain, they ask themselves.

The Alcalá is brilliant. The short Calle de Peligros that shuttles between it and the Gran Via is not. Why it is called the Street of Perils no one remembers. But more grimfaced ladies walk there, the night patrol. Blobs of rouge and mascara do not evoke the goddess in faces that are broad and run to jaw. Gold teeth flash in the night. There is a tendency to massiveness and blondeness, the latter at all costs. All the dolls are blonde in Spain. Men who walk in this street pull their capes over their noses or hurry through. Serenos, those strange people with pikes and lanterns and a leather vest full of keys, who let you into your house at night, are about.

Modernity has withered even La Magdalena, once a grimy and wonderful joint where Andalusians did the cuadro flamenco, a stamping, singing, clapping dance, and the washroom was on the stage. It has been slicked up into a cabaret.

A planturous matron, monumental and muscle bound, moves heavily through one of those Spanish dances that are supposed to represent a bull fight. The crowd paid no attention. Another, dark and not long to be slender, starts a wild gypsy step but thinks better of it, and, throwing off her spangled skirt does, of all things, a Charleston. The Charleston is still in a prolonged death rattle in Europe. The gloom deepens.

In a night club where they have a barber shop the customers drift out one by one and get shaved as a diversion, and have their shoes shined, already to go to work in the morning.

In narrow streets there is laughter from behind shutters and now and then the rattle of castanets are the blare of a phonograph.

The night sky over Castile is immense.

Munich Begins Preparation for August Festival

Performances to Attract World Music Lovers.

THIS interesting letter is written by Herbert M. Johnson, manager of the Chicago Civic Opera company, from Munich:

Opera performances in Munich this week seem to be only incidental to the preparation for the annual festival season which opens in August. The opera house is humming with activity, all of it pointed to the performances planned for visiting music lovers to open the new season, and in another week the opera will be closed to the public in order that these preparations may be carried on without interruption.

Munich sets great store on its annual festival season, and well it may, for the performances attract music lovers from all parts of the world. The season is in competition in a measure with the Salzsburg festival, crowning glory of Austria's musical and dramatic activities.

Our trip from Berlin to Munich by automobile carried us through two of Germany's most important music centers—Dresden and Bayreuth. In Dresden we had the satisfaction of hearing Maria Rajdl for the first time in opera in a performance of Strauss' "Intermezzo." I do not care for the opera. It is filled with dialogue which would be entirely lost on the American public. The plot is localized and dated to such an extent that an intimate knowledge of personages in the present day music world on central Europe is essential to full appreciation of the story. But it gave Mme. Rajdl a fine opportunity to dominate the stage throughout the performance, and she made the best of her opportunity. Indeed, to put it mildly, she was the "whole show." Her voice is of even texture, well placed and well produced. She gives evidence of being a thorough musician, and to these talents she adds a personality and a stage presence that is captivating. The freshness and brightness of the voice matches this personality. It reminded me at times of the voice of Fritzi Scheff in its prime. I believe the Chicago public will like her.

Establish Tradition.

We also heard a performance of "La Forza del Destino" in Dresden, which was quite good. It departed widely from the Italian tradition, and would hardly have satisfied any one familiar with the Italian method of staging and singing this Verdi work. But for this opera, as for several other show pieces of the Italian repertoire, the Germans have established a tradition of their own, and seem to derive immense satisfaction from it.

"La Forza del Destino" shares with "Aida" the place of honor in the Verdian repertoire throughout Germany.

We stopped in Bayreuth for a day only, and there found the preparation for the festival in full swing. The Kipnises have taken a villa there for the duration of the festival, in which Mr. Kipnis has important assignments in the basso division. From Bayreuth he will go to Munich for a few performances and then to Switzerland for a holiday. He returns to Berlin in September for thirteen performances before sailing for the United States in mid-October.

Paris was so delighted with the work of Leider, Rethberg, Lehmann, Kappel, Olszewska, Strack, Melchior, Schorr, and Kipnis this spring, that plans are being completed for an extended season of German opera next spring, to follow immediately after the season at Covent Garden. The German company from London will be taken to Paris intact, and there present an extended series of German works, which doubtless will include the "Ring," "Meistersinger," one or two of the Strauss works, and others. Antwerp and Brussels also are contemplating German seasons, to be staged in April of next year, immediately after Easter and just preceding the Covent Garden season. Our leading German artists will be kept busy throughout the spring and summer.

Offerings Excellent.

It is quite possible that we may in the future look back upon 1930 and 1931 as a period of renaissance in opera in Europe. The great companies which have been struggling since the war to regain their old standards of performance seem to have practically accomplished this stupendous task. Not in years have I heard such generally excellent performances abroad. Of course, one must take into consideration the fact that this is festival season, when the leading artists of the Chicago Civic and Metropolitan companies are available for appearances outside of America. But on the whole excellent progress has been made.

Our mail bag brings us word of some excellent performances at Covent Garden, notably those featuring Giorgio Polacco, Rosa Ponselle, Edith Mason, Benjamino Gigli and Giovanni Inghilleri. There has been the usual complaint regarding the choice of repertoire, but the popular demand seems to have been satisfied, judging from the reports of the attendance.

From Milan, which we will visit next week, comes a note of more than common interest. It tells of the selection of a committee to choose Toscanini's successor at La Scala. The members are Resphigi, Del Campo, De Sabata, Guarnieri, and Siegfried Wagner.

Chicago Civic Lauded.

From Basle we learn that a brief festival season was highly successful. Our old friend Baklanoff appeared in leading baritone rôles. Other artists were unknown to American music lovers.

The selection of Lotte Lehmann for the Chicago Civic has brought a lot of complimentary publicity to the Chicago company here, where Miss Lehmann is well known.

A note from Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hackett, Roberto Moranzoni, and Chase Baromeo tells of happy holiday times in northern Italy. This quartet from our civic opera family joined forces in Viareggio, from which, they said, they were regarding the rest of the world with a serene eye and envying no one. The early summer has been delightful there. Mr. Baromeo is to sail July 3 for New York, whence he goes at once to his summer home in the French river district of Canada.

NEWCOMER.

MARIA RAJDL.

She has been engaged by the Civic Opera company for the coming season, having already been announced to sing the part of Eva in "Die Meistersinger," which will be a new addition to the company's repertoire. She comes here from the opera company of Dresden, Germany, where she enjoys a high repute both as soprano singer and operatic personality.

Who Says Tide Will Wait for No Man? Look

LISBON.—(AP)—Two Portuguese inventors claim they have discovered means to harness ocean and river currents for direct production of electric power.

They assert the discoveries will revolutionize lighting and traction methods and do away with coal and oil fuels in seaside districts.

Joaquim Goncalves Felipe, of the town of Soure, is credited with the paternity of one of the new machines. He has built an hydraulic turbine which he says can be installed on a river bank, thus doing away with construction of dams, or it can be anchored at sea.

Only small modifications are needed, Felipe says, to adapt the invention to harnessing air currents. Then, he says, a motor placed on the roof of a house would generate sufficient electricity to light and heat the building and drive the motors of domestic appliances.

Another inventor, Manuel Costa Vega, of Lisbon, has asked the admiralty for permission to install fifty turbines along the right bank of the Tagus from Poco de Bispo to Cruz Quebrada. He guarantees to supply light and power to all the factories in the district at 50 per cent of the current rates for electricity.

The girl's mother died shortly after the death of the father. She regarded the mummy's hand as a curse on the family and it was at her suggestion that it was thrown into the pond.

Mr. Talkie Sick, Producers Find, Box Offices Hit

Fans Apparently Fed Up on Lame Offerings.

By Rosalind Shaffer.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.]—It is now more than two years since "The Jazz Singer" stepped into the fast widening breach in Hollywood's financial dykes and saved the day.

Two years have seen the talkies take a hold on the imagination and pocketbooks of the theater goer. Novelty of sound in pictures has saved the day for an industry that was alarmed at the sight of empty theaters, that had tried retrenching by cutting all employés ten per cent in salary, and was in a very panicky state indeed.

Joseph Schenck, prominent movie baron, head of United Artists, had admonished other producers that the movies would have to furnish better entertainment or they were lost. The encroachments of the radio were serious, according to Schenck, and something had to be done.

What was done is typical of Hollywood. . . . Instead of reorganization and adoption of more intelligent methods in the industry, the novelty of sound was thrown as a sop to the public.

So far it has worked. But the news now is that it has ceased to work. The industry is now in practically the same situation as it was before sound saved the day.

Film salesmen all over the country are bombarding the studios for "specials." Program pictures cannot be sold to exhibitors. People are fed up on lame products offered with a sugar coating of sound. Big theaters are beginning to worry about the features that they must have to keep their audiences coming back.

Not long ago Warner Brothers' Hollywood theater was in the situation of wondering what to do to meet a need for better pictures. This theater met its problem by giving second runs of past talkie hits.

Sid Grauman, manager of the Hollywood Chinese theater, faced a problem also. "Hell's Angels" had mediocre luck with Saturday midnight shows. Sid induced William S. Hart to make a Saturday midnight personal appearance and the theater had bigger business than ever before. Which proved to Sid that Hart, who never made a poor picture in his life, still is the public's idol, while those who make the current mediocre films feel the heavy hand of public indifference.

In an effort to restore waning interest the big local show houses have restored the stage prologue, with its lavish acts and pretty dancing girls, discarded two years ago.

Al Jolson, who went to New York to confer with Joe Schenck, president of United Artists, conferred to such good purpose that Jolson is now going to Europe with Schenck and Al will co-feature with Lili Damita in making "Sons of Guns" into a German language picture. Returning from Germany, Jolson will do the English version later. Whether Damita will return to Hollywood for the English version of the story is to be decided by developments in Europe.

The sound situation is being bolstered slightly by the novelties of grandeur film and by technicolor, but these are proving insufficient to keep the admissions jangling into the box office. It is like offering a peanut to an elephant and expecting him to eat hearty.

Meanwhile Mrs. Jolson (Ruby Keeler) is in Hollywood. Ruby was supposed to play opposite Chester Morris in a fine rôle in "The Bat Whispers," but she changed her mind, it is said, after Jolson talked to her in this wise:

"Why, honey, I don't think you will like being in that picture. You know it is full of trap doors and terrible screams and clutching hands and narrow escapes, and I am afraid it would make you awfully nervous, baby." Ruby decided she would protect her nerves.

Mary Miles Minter is back in Hollywood after losing forty pounds in her months at the diet and metabolism sanitarium operated by Drs. Nuzum and Sansome at Santa Barbara. So svelte and youthful does she look and so devoted to her talking and dancing lessons here that two studios have made Mary film offers and she says she is going to accept one of them and return to the camera.

A Communication.

The following communication, received from the secretary of the Society of American Musicians, is self-explanatory. Edoardo Sacerdote is president of the organization, Harold B. Maryott the vice president, Edwin J. Gemmer the secretary-treasurer, the board of directors bears the names of Mary Peck Thomson, Marx E. Oberndorfer, Rudolph Reuter, Dudley Buck, and Fran Van Dusen, and Marx E. Oberndorfer is director of contests.

The well known and active organization of Chicago known as the Society of American Musicians has prospered under the able guidance of several past presidents and their efficient boards of directors. The standards for admittance are high, but the membership has grown to about two hundred, with eighteen new members admitted this last season, and contains the most prominent names of musicians in the city of Chicago.

The aims of the society are manifold. Among them are: to achieve in every possible way the greater recognition of music as an educational factor, stressing music credits in all schools; the greater popularizing of music study in the home; coöperation with music houses in bringing this about through advertising and through contest for instrument prizes; the arranging of contests for public appearances, etc. There has been particularly happy coöperation by Dr. Frederick Stock and the Chicago Symphony orchestra, and a number of splendid young artists have been chosen to appear as soloists.

For the next season there also has been secured the coöperation of Bertha Ott, noted impresario, who will sponsor two recitals to be given for artist students of members of the society. Competitions for instruments and voice will be held in January, and the recitals will take place on Sunday afternoons in February and March.

An important change in the rulings for admission to these contests has been made, so that now students of teachers who are members of the society need not have studied with their teachers in the immediate preceding season as well, but are required to have studied for thirty-five weeks in any preceding season as far back as 1926-'27. This, it is expected, will attract artist students who may have appeared in public in the meantime. Various other regulations must be complied with, as set forth in the pamphlet sent to all members, regarding the contests.

The society has also been called upon to arrange for the contest sponsored by the Chicago Civic Opera association for a term of European study. The Cable Piano company has made use of the experience and facilities of the society in annually presenting to talented pianists the award of a high grade grand piano.

An Article on the Dance.

One confesses ignorance unwillingly, but up to a few days ago this department was completely unaware of the quarterly magazine called Hound and Horn. Further acquaintance with it would seem to be desirable, for the first article is an informative and interesting essay not upon field sports or country homes, as the title might imply, but upon dancing.

Lincoln Kirstein tells of the Diaghilev period, and he knows the dance both as a matter of entrechats and rondes de jambes and as an art. Such complete understanding is not common among those who write about the subject. The course of the Russian ballet is traced through Fokine, who, the author says, freed it from the chains of a sterile academism; Nijinsky, who gave it the language of an intellectual complexity, and Massine, who inherited the traditions of both.

Due credit is given Isadora Duncan for suggesting the revolt to Fokine, though he disapproved of her indifference to technique, and there is a vivid picture of Diaghilev himself, both as artist and person, who collected painters, composers, and dancers under his banner and wove them into that marvelous company that visited Chicago some years ago. "Diaghilev was a synthesizer, a catalyst, who could image in three dimensions the perfect combination of the right dances, for the right music, in the right decor, and by right we must read inevitable."

There would seem to be a real idea in this remark about barefoot dancing: "In walking and running, for example, the feet and hands are blunt ends, to arrest the flow of lines; by a stylized lengthening of them as in ballet, the eye carries the linear transition easily."

Later in the magazine is another article on music. Theodore Chanler discusses certain compositions of Gabriel Faure, a composer whom he regards as woefully slighted in the light of his deserts.

Music Notes.

The Welsh Imperial singers, a male vocal ensemble directed by R. Festyn Davies, have finished a two years' tour of Canada and are spending the summer in Chicago, preparatory to commitments in this country which are expected to last for the next five years. In Canada and England, from critics and professional musicians, they would seem to have reaped a harvest of approving adjectives that would be envied by any artist or any organization. An early autumn concert in Chicago is now in the process of organization.

Herbert Miller, well known Chicago baritone, will give a song recital at Bush conservatory next Friday evening.

Of music far away, one hears of a series of summer concerts by the Philadelphia orchestra in Fairmount park of that city. Leopold Stokowski, the orchestra's regular conductor, started the concerts last week. Others to appear in the course of the season, which will close Aug. 31, will be Albert Coates, Alexander Smallens, Ernest Knoch, and Willem van Hoogstraten.

Turning to another direction of the compass, light but unusual opera is being given at Banff in the Canadian Rockies. One hears of such titles as "The Plumber's Opera," "Tom Tug, the Jolly Waterman," "Maureen," "The Beggar's Opera," "Trial by Jury," "The Ayreshire Ploughman," and several others, all due for performance some time this summer.

Ernest Hutcheson, pianist and pedagogue, has returned from a trip to Berlin and is spending the summer at Chautauqua, N. Y., where he will play eighteen recitals and conduct a class of students in his spare time.

Two ensemble recitals are scheduled to take place at the Cinema Art theater this week. Edward Collins and Moissaye Boguslawski will give a two piano recital on Tuesday afternoon, playing works by Mozart, Sinding, Louis Victor Saar, and Saint-Saëns. On Thursday afternoon Michel Wilkomirski, violinist, and Andre Skalski, pianist, will play sonatas by Bach, Beethoven, and Brahms. Both events are announced to begin at 5 o'clock.

STRAIGHT out of the Arabian nights through the interpreting medium of charming French music, Mr. Chamlee is here represented as Marouf, the cobbler of Cairo, in Henri Rabaud's opera of the same name. It is gay, light hearted and unserious, and in it Mr. Chamlee does some superb singing and highly amusing comic acting. Presented by a cast of the highest order, it is a wonderfully fine example of comic opera of the best type. It will be heard at Ravinia tonight.

THE ARMCHAIR PLAYGOER

By Fanny Butcher.

AT RAVINIA.

ARMCHAIR PLAYGOERS can spend every evening vicariously with the opera this week, if they care to. Tonight there is "Marouf" which is the amusing tale out of the Arabian Nights usually labeled "The Cobbler of Cairo." You will find it in either the Lane or the Burton translations.

EMIL LUDWIG.

Tomorrow night "Romeo and Juliet" will be sung — one of the few Shakespearean plays which have been made into operas.

On Tuesday evening there will be given that tragic tale of "The Bride of Lammermoor," one of Sir Walter Scott's historical romances in the Waverley series. The plot was suggested by an actual incident in the family history of the earls of Stair. A daughter, when she was forced to give up the man she loved, went mad. The novel was published in 1819. Twenty-six years later Donizetti made it into an opera and it is conceded to be the best of all of his sixty-six opera scores.

"The Tales of Hoffman," which is being sung on Wednesday evening, was taken by the librettist, Jules Barbier, from three stories in a collection called "Weird Tales," written by Ernst Theodor Hoffman. M. Barbier and the composer, Offenbach, were unusually candid in acknowledgment to the author when they called the opera "The Tales of Hoffman." There was a good translation of the tales made and published in the United States in 1923.

On Thursday evening will be given the greatest epic drama of the German language made into an opera by one of the greatest of the French composers. "Faust" may be read in any number of editions, one of the most accessible the Everyman edition. It may lead you into reading about its author, and for that purpose Emil Ludwig's recently published "Goethe" is a good biography done from the modern point of view. It is, incidentally, Mr. Ludwig's best biography. He approached his subject with much more real personal interest than he has had for many of his other heroes.

"La Boheme," which is being sung on Friday night, was made from the famous Murger stories, "Scenes de la Vie de Boheme," which are classics of French literature. Henri Murger was writing about a life which he knew well when he wrote of "Bohemian Life" in Paris. Nothing else he ever wrote compared in its popular appeal to those touching stories. "Bohemian Life" can be read in many editions of the classics.

On Saturday evening "Carmen" will remind armchair playgoers of a novel which was written by Prosper Merimee and published in 1847. Because "Carmen" is the favorite opera of at least half of every opera audience, because it is one of the most thrilling of all operas, and one the tired business man can find as exciting as the earnest yearner, Prosper Merimee is best known to this generation as the author of the novel from which the opera was made. But in his own all of his critics placed "Colomba," a tale of the Corsican vendettas, above "Carmen," although "Carmen" was easily ranked second in a long list of excellent writings.

Merimee is considered the greatest stylist of the nineteenth century. He had a political career which would have put him into the encyclopedias even if he had never written a line. He was a senator, and an intimate of Napoleon III., of whom he always spoke in his letters as "the master of the house."

Merimee was an intimate friend of Mme. de Montijo, the mother of the Empress Eugenie. "Carmen" is said to have been written after Merimee's reading of George Borrow's Spanish gypsy books. And that is another lane worth the turning into. "Lavengro," "The Romany Rye," "The Bible in Spain"—they are a complete delight!

German Poor Try to Sell Children for Movie Roles

BERLIN.—(AP)—Tales of Chinese fathers and mothers selling their offspring in order to buy a few morsels of food for themselves were conjured up by recent reports in the provincial papers of poor people offering to sell their children.

These reports were at first skeptically received. But the Society for the Protection of Children Against Abuse came out with the startling statement that within a year numerous children had been offered for sale to the society at prices usually ranging between $750 and $1,000.

The officers of the society investigating this strange condition in twentieth century Germany, where family ties are supposed to be closer knit than in most countries, found that the cue was a rumor that a film company wanted pretty, gifted children at from 3,000 to 4,000 marks each.

The society had the greatest difficulty in convincing these speculators in childhood that traffic in human beings was strictly prohibited in Germany and that no film company in the country would pay more than a very nominal salary for the work of the most exceptional child—and that only to parents who retained possession of the young screen star.

7 Cities Will Show Dramatic League Plays

Negotiations Now On with Several More.

SEVEN cities, with Pittsburgh on the east and Kansas City on the west, will, in the new season, carry a subscription to six plays produced by or for the Dramatic league of Chicago. Chicago itself is, of course, one of the seven. The four others are Cleveland, Cincinnati, Detroit, and St. Louis. Negotiations are on with the Civic and Commerce association of Minneapolis for a like subscription season of six weeks there; and if the negotiations result in that body's putting itself behind the Dramatic league project, St. Paul also will be included in what in other days would have been called a circuit. A special theater-going committee of the St. Paul Association of Commerce has signified its attention of serving as a committee for the Dramatic league of Chicago in case the league and Minneapolis reach an agreement. However, because of the distance by rail to either of the twin cities, neither will be included in the subscription season unless both cities participate.

Then, by affiliation, Philadelphia and Boston may be included in this mid-July summing up of the Dramatic league's outlook for the season of 1930-'31, inasmuch as each city has its professional players, carrying a subscription season of six weeks along the lines of the league in Chicago. The new season will be Boston's first; but the Philadelphia venture took life last November, shortly after the Dramatic league started Chicago operations in the Princess theater. Both Washington and Baltimore have manifested an interest in the plan, but neither city has as yet organized its playgoers. Should they do so in time to permit of proper arrangements in the production and booking departments, and should Minneapolis and St. Paul enroll, there would be thirteen cities actively functioning along the lines laid down early in June of 1929 at the first meeting of the founders of the Dramatic league of Chicago.

The basis on which the Dramatic league was founded was the idea of providing a Chicago audience for those numerous plays regarded as "too fine" for the uncertainties and rigors of travel, and also to give to Chicago a fair share of good plays before the same should be shown in New York. A reasonable estimate based on the seasons of 1925-'26, 1926-'27, 1927-'28, and 1928-'29 seemed to show that of every five plays held to be successful in New York only two eventually were shown in Chicago. The count did not include plays with stars or plays that, because of some special feature, were uncommonly successful there; and, of course, it did not include plays with music. The explanation of the producers of the successful plays not brought hither was to the effect that, having made a nice profit on the investment in New York, they did not care to risk that profit in the uncertainties and costs of travel to the interior.

Not to go back too far, there was last season's "The Criminal Code," a real success in New York, and, until the production of "The Green Pastures," regarded as certain to win the Pulitzer prize of 1930. It ran six months in New York, when, at the end of the run, it found Philadelphia indifferent, the play, in the lingo of show business, "folded." William Harris Jr., the producer, was eager to send it to Chicago, the former home of the author, Martin Flavin; but he, too, explained that he did not care to risk the costs of the cities between. A suggestion that the Dramatic league take over "The Criminal Code" for at least four weeks was made too late, for the league's season was in its final fortnight and the task of reassembling the subscribers for an extension was too great to undertake within the limited time.

Another case was Philip Barry's "Holiday," which Arthur Hopkins retired after a Philadelphia venture following the successful New York run. [That comedy has since been shown in Chicago in the Goodman theater.]

The Dramatic league within its first season made four productions—"Thunder in the Air," "The Infinite Shoeblack," "The Matriarch," and "Death Takes a Holiday"—and it arranged with William A. Brady to take over for Chicago "The First Mrs. Fraser," with Grace George as the star. "Dear Old England" belonged to the Dramatic league and the Professional Players by adoption. That "Death Takes a Holiday" was produced by the Dramatic league but not shown in its Chicago theater has been explained as due to the unwillingness of the league's management to include it in a brief season with "Thunder in the Air." Both plays had themes touched with the supernatural.

The Dramatic league of Chicago has, since the close of its first season in mid-March, been active in the examination of plays for 1930-'31. It has in its control at the present time twenty-seven works that have not yet been acted in this country. Besides producing the plays required for Chicago and Philadelphia, it will manage the tours of Miss George in "The First Mrs. Fraser," Philip Merivale in "Death Takes a Holiday," and Frank Morgan in "Topaze." The total number of new plays to be staged by [or* for] the Dramatic league and the Professional Players will be determined by the inclusion or exclusion of Minneapolis and St. Paul in the west, and Baltimore and Washington in the east. And in Chicago and other cities where the Dramatic league is active it will take care of the local engagements of the revival of "Lysistrata," now so successful in New York.

WARSAW. — (AP) — The National Opera in Warsaw has closed after a discouraging season, with small chance of reopening in the fall. The steadily growing deficit caused the government to withdraw its contribution, leaving the city unable to shoulder the burden alone.

COINCIDENCES

Coincidences in geography, time, and persons are ever fruitful of stories and recollections. Whom from the home town did you meet in a far corner of the earth? Who of the same name looks just like you? Who called you up just as you were about to make the call? The Tribune wants to hear of these experiences at $1 per. Address Coincidences, Sunday Tribune.

Just Picture This.

A few days before Easter I received a telephone call from a woman. She kept me guessing before she finally told me who she was. It was an old friend I had neither seen or heard from in five years and wondered many times what had happened to her. After a lot of talking I asked her who told her my married name and she told me that after a shopping trip she stopped to look in a photographer's window. There she saw my wedding picture. She went in and asked for my name and address. The photographer gave her the name, and the telephone directory did the rest.

A Friend Indeed.

While driving through the Cumberland mountains we lost our way and, although not having passed any humans for miles, we finally spied a man walking along in the same direction we were going. We drove until we were within hailing distance and yelled, "Say, young fellow, is this the way to Wheeling?" He turned and answered, "I don't know the way to Wheeling, but I know you, Henry." He was a friend whom we hadn't seen for years. Funny place to meet a friend, what?

A Lucky Wave.

Recently wanting to get a permanent wave, I chose the nearest hairdressing shop in my neighborhood, and called up for an appointment. You can imagine how surprised I was on arriving there to find that the owner was an old girl chum of mine. We had quite a happy reunion.

It's Small World.

Three years ago my husband and I went east for a visit, returning via Boston. We had been on the train but a short time when we started for the dining car and had to pass through another coach to reach it. In this coach we found, as fellow travelers, a young lady and her mother, residents of a resort town in northern Wisconsin where we had spent many vacations, sometimes a whole summer. They also had been visiting in the east and were on their way home. Needless to say, it was a pleasant surprise all around.

On arriving in Chicago we immediately went to the railroad ticket office to procure our transportation for the remainder of the trip, when whom should we meet there but another friend who owned a summer home in this same town, and who had just purchased tickets for his entire family for the same train we expected to leave on.

Parade of Models.

As in most pictures of the kind, plenty of the feminine form divine is displayed. Alluring models parade for customers in the Jardine store, and a fashion show is given at the Jardine country estate that calls for beauteous figures and costumes and plenty of slow movement to jazz music.

After this exhibition is over Tony Jardine shows pretty Jerry over the old plantation and—but there I go getting gabby again!

There's considerable action in this one—not neglecting to mention a suicide—and the acting is all up to par. The principals are popular young people who know their stuff and the supporting cast features such sparkling experts as Albert Conti and Hedda Hopper.

"Our Blushing Brides" is attractively staged, costumed, and photographed. It has been well directed by Harry Beaumont, who megaphoned for our "Dancing Daughters." It is entertaining summer fare which, in dashing fashion, points out to the poor working girl (if you CAN point in dashing fashion) that, in general, they are "better far as they are" than stewing about men and marriage. You get the idea that there's not much good in the male of the species and that such as there is must be drawn forth by a long and wearisome process, results of which may be worth the trouble—but are they?

Bits aBOUTem.

PETE IS DEAD, and "Our Gang" are weeping. Pete, you know, was the old dog with the black ring around one eye who has worked with the kids for years. It is thought that he was poisoned.

Dull Days Hit N. Y. Theaters; Notes of Stage

First Nighters Must Wait Until Aug. 5.

NEW YORK, July 12.—[Special.]—These are, of course, dull days in the Broadway theater world and in accordance with the seasonal custom affairs in what is still blithely referred to as the "legitimate" will reach their low point during the next few weeks. Not only is there no premiere scheduled for the ensuing six days but there is nothing booked with any degree of definiteness for the remainder of the month. It is just possible that a vague pair called "Then She Woke Up" and "Velvet Skin" may attempt to disturb the July calm, but from present indications first nighters will have little or nothing to worry about until Tuesday, Aug. 5. At that time Mr. Belasco is scheduled to open his season—and presumably every one else's—with a play called "Dancing Partner," now hard in rehearsal over in 44th street.

Further proof that the doldrums are here is to be found in the number of continuing shows. There are just 11 of them, a mere handful for the New York theater, and the smallest number in the last several years. This time last summer there were, if you want to know, 20; the mid-July before that 23, and the mid-July of 1927, 29. By this ratio of decrease next July should find only nine or less. One pessimist whose business it is to follow such matters closely made a bet as long ago as March that the number of shows running on the 15th of this month would be 15 or less. It looked as if he had won.

Madge Kennedy is shortly to make a return to farce—remember "Twin Beds" and "Fair and Warmer"?—on behalf of the English play called "Almost a Honeymoon," which the busy Shuberts have imported, tariff or no tariff, for Broadway. The play is now in rehearsal under the direction of Stanley Logan, and is booked to begin a tryout engagement at Long Beach on July 25. In Miss Kennedy's supporting cast will be found Eric Blore, Terence Neill, Reginald Carrington and John Brewer. She is appearing by arrangement with Charles L. Wagner, to whom she is under contract.

Thomas Mitchell left the cast of "The Last Mile" after last night's performance, a departure which called forth no fanfare of trumpets on the part of the publicity department. Mr. Mitchell played the role of "Killer" Mears for five weeks, succeeding Spencer Tracy when Lawrence Leslie, who was supposed to take over the part, became ill. He will be succeeded by the understudy, Allen Jenkins.

Although Chester Erskin has acquired Kenyon Nicholson's dramatization of "Stepdaughters of War," an English novel, it will probably not come forth as the initial production for the house of Frohman. That, it is now reported, will be "Florodora," a play by Jack Kirkland, who may be identified, even in these columns, as the husband of Nancy Carroll.

Acting in "The Ninth Guest," the Owen Davis play which will be put in rehearsal this week, will be Alan Dinehart, Berton Churchill, Thais Lawton, Robert Visian and Edward Stanley. Mr. Churchill, in particular, has been absent some time from local stages, on which he used to be a familiar figure.

Those local worshipers at the shrines of Chekhov and the drama who missed Jed Harris' presentation of "Uncle Vanya," Miss Gish, and all, may still have an opportunity to see that play in mid-September before it begins a tour. At least Mr. Harris has notions of bringing it back for a two weeks' engagement, provided that a suitable theater can be found.

Dave Chasen, who was prominent among Joe Cook's associate funny men in "Rain or Shine," will again be with him in the show whose book Donald Ogden Stewart is now preparing for production by those somewhat different partners, Morris Green, Lew Gensler, and the Erlanger office.

Those who remember, with some degree of pleasure, the musical shows written several seasons ago by Harlan Thompson, librettist, and Harry Archer, composer—they were "Little Jessie James," "My Girl," and "Merry, Merry," to tell all—may be interested to know that another song and dance piece by these authors is in progress of construction. It is called "High Hat," and Mr. Thompson is in town, en route from Europe to Hollywood, to put the finishing touches on the lyrics. Lew Cantor will probably produce the show.

Gilbert Miller will be returning to these shores about Sept. 1 to begin his fall season with one of three plays on his schedule—Pagnol's "Marius," Bourdet's "The Weaker Sex" or Molnar's "One, Two, Three." Before the fall is too far advanced he also expects to stand sponsor for the New York engagement of Max Pallenberg and Fritzi Massar, who are very much somebodies of the contemporary German stage. At present no definite dates for their season here have been arranged.

"Berkeley Square" will go a-touring in the fall with Leslie Howard probably continuing to head the cast, while Miss Cornell will carry the Frohman-Miller banner up and down the countryside with "Dishonored Lady." The Cornell conveyance will be the first to take to the road, opening in San Francisco on Aug. 18 and proceeding thereafter to Los Angeles. With the exception of Fortunio Bonanova, the cast on tour will be about the same as it was here. . . . Speaking of Mr. Howard, he was in town for a day last week en route from Hollywood to England, on a holiday.

George Jessel, who became a producer, too, last season, is interested in a play by James Ashmore Creelman announced by Mr. Dillingham and at least one other management as "The Jazz King." It will be rewritten when, and if, Mr. Jessel brings it to the stage. Mr. Jessel, who is acting these days in vaudeville and talking shorts, is also working with Irving Cæsar on an adaptation of "Die Wunderbar," in which he will probably appear next season. It all seems to keep him busy.

"Princess Charming," Mr. Donahue's version of the musical show done three years ago in London, will, as might be expected, since the producers are to be Connolly and Swanstrom, come to the Imperial theater. The present date is late September. . . . Something from the German, about which little seems to be known at the moment, is scheduled to relight the long darkened Bayes theater in August. . . . John D. Williams is expected to return in a week or so from southern California, where he has been conferring, as it is called, with Maude Adams and John Cotton about the piece in which Miss Adams proposes to make that return to the stage next autumn.

In case you are wondering about it, the Theater assembly, which operated the Princess and one or two other houses last season, expects to be back in the producing ranks in the fall. It is at present holding forth at Cape May, N. J. . . . It will, as announced during the week, be Claiborne Foster who will have a leading rôle—if not the leading rôle—among the 22 women who will constitute the cast of "Beautiful Evening." Rehearsals will begin on Aug. 11 under the direction of Winifred Lenihan. So far there has been no mention of lady stage hands for the production, which otherwise will be an all-feminine undertaking.

A budget of London news brings, among other things, the tidings that the Paul Robeson "Othello" closed over there a week ago last night, after a run of only seven weeks. The undertaking must therefore be set down as something less than a success. . . . Last Monday at the Lyric theater, Hammersmith, there was a revival of "The Importance of Being Earnest" in a production that was announced as aiming "at the outward aspect of indoor and outdoor society life in the '90s." In the cast were Mabel Terry-Lewis, Jean Cadell, and John Gielgud, the last named a young actor whom they regard as pretty promising over there.

Just to make it something of a Wilde season, London has also seen recently a production of "Lady Windermere's Fan."

At Henley, where he was coaching the Kingston crew, the London papers recently interviewed R. C. Sherriff. To summarize their findings, Mr. Sherriff said that he had received an offer to go to Hollywood and the talking pictures, but had not yet made up his mind, that he still had in prospect a play about an antractic expedition, and might finish it this summer, and that he was thankful to the English critics for the way in which they had received "Badger's Green." That play, he added, was not a doctored version of an old script, although its central idea was derived from one of Mr. Sherriff's former works, and was written with a definite objective—as a reaction from the war environment of "Journey's End."

The next edition of "The Cape Cod Follies" is, after all, to follow its predecessor and come to Broadway. It will begin a two week's engagement at Dennis, Cape Cod, on Aug. 25, and proceed here by way of Boston and Providence, which will probably make the time of its arrival about Oct. 1.

Philadelphia, through its "Play of the Week" company, last week saw a piece by the Tom Powers who acted so long in "Strange Interlude" and was this season King Magnus in "The Apple Cart" and John Rhead in "Milestones." Mr. Powers was on hand to give his handiwork the benison of his performance and the whole undertaking was reported in this fashion by the reviewer of the Philadelphia Inquirer:

"This play carries one back to the happy, homely hokum of a bygone day. At first blush it is reminiscent of 'Lightning,' particularly in its central figure. It is one of those comfortable combinations of innocent fun and random picking of heart strings which, if not overdone, makes satisfying entertainment for the 80 per cent.

"The author has followed a peculiar bent in developing his story. At the end of the first act, when he has practically disclosed the identity of the man of mystery, one wonders how he will manage with the second. But he works out a very entertaining interlude, although again at the finish there is the impression of anti-climax. Mr. Power's effort might be described as a dissertation on manners, because its main object is to put a bunch of social climbers in their place."

PRETTY PROFILE

ing his throat treated by a New York specialist only a few blocks way. Nobody knew Chaney in person was in town until his visit to the doctor leaked out. He is said to have refused to make a personal appearance. Anyhow, it is Chaney's first audible film and he apparently has as many different voices as he has faces.

There is another unusual picture at the Cameo that you should see when it comes to your town, if it has not already been there. It is "Lost Gods," a picture story of the Franco-American archeological expedition to the Lybian cities at the edge of the Sahara desert. If you like exploration you will find it swell entertainment. A 3,000 year old city—Carthage—is dug up right before one's eyes. There are beautiful mosaics, age old urns and countless relics of an ancient civilization shown in the picture.

Along the Film Rialto

"Inside the Lines," featuring Betty Compson, is playing at the Globe. It is just another war story. Clara Bow has had fair success here with her "Love Among the Millionaires" at the Paramount, and Victor Laglen in "On the Level" is playing at Roxy's. There are a lot of other pictures up and down Broadway, including Richard Barthelmess in "The Dawn Patrol," but this recorder has not had time to get around to see them.

Mixing with east coast movie folks one hears the following newsbits:

That Marion Davies went away to Europe in a huff because of the way her latest, "The Floradora Girl," was received. We liked it. That Charlie Chaplin is going to grow a beard and come to New York hidden behind it for the premiere of his picture, "City Lights." Then he will go to London and renew some old friendships. Nobody knows when "City Lights" will be completed.

Ginger Rogers, Paramount's girl actor, has called off her trip to Hollywood. She will stay right here and play the lead in "Manhattan Mary" when Ed Wynn and his company start working at the Long Island studio.

Motion pictures of both the silent and sound variety will be included in the curriculum of New York university, next session. The course in which they are to be used is called "manufacturing industries."

Fox Films has shipped its latest find to Hollywood. He is Michael Bartlett, a New England youth, who has sung in grand opera in Rome, Milan, and Turin during 1929. The plan to remake "The Sheik," with John Boles playing the part immortalized by the late Rudolph Valentino, appears to have been given up. Producers have an idea, probably correct, that "The Sheik" wouldn't go so good as a talkie. The lines are a bit old fashioned.

New "Vanities" Gain Ultimate in Stage Nudity

deep woods, throw aside their jewels, dash in au naturel and lazily float about, forming a twisting and turning frame of flesh for the diving dancers.

The most elaborate of the finales is one protesting against that particular encroachment on our liberties which has resulted in the closing of a thousand old fashioned saloons and the creation of three thousand hideaways in all the wetter cities.

Herein there are "Drummers of Discontent" and "Voices of the People," all in red, white and blue, protesting, in the name of the Declaration of Indence, the Gettysburg speech, the boys who were "over there" and the present congress against the substitution of prohibition for temperance.

We are a childish people when it comes to revues and burlesques. We take them for their glitter and their flesh and are content. There is little wit, no artfully barbed satire, nothing much that is creatively beautiful in these entertainments. But they are big, bold and showy and the larger public loves them.

Mr. Carroll's principals include Jimmy Savo, Herb Williams and Jack Benny as the comedians, and Patsy Kelly as the most outstanding of the actresses. There are any number of beauties and they are handsomely dressed, when they are dressed at all. Not as handsomely dressed as a Ziegfeld and an Urban would dress them. But no other producers of our time ever quite achieve what those two achieve in decoration, no matter how much money they spend.

Sketches Are Suggestive.

The sketches are mostly pretty rough. Concerned more with either disappointed or triumphant brides and grooms than with the usual husband, wife and active lover. There is no need of issuing warnings about the coarseness of modern burlesquers. No one can be excused for attending them unwittingly these days. Warnings have been too many and too freely stated.

It was a great night for Earl Carroll when the "Vanities" opened. A great day next day when he read the reviews. He must have done a bit of speculating, I think, if he looked out the windows of the new Amsterdam theater offices at the Republic theater across the way.

It was in the Republic theater, the season of 1920-'21, that Carroll put his last thousand dollars into the production of a comedy by George Barr McCutcheon called "Daddy Dumplins," with Maclyn Arbuckle as a star. It was in Arbuckle's dressing room that Carroll met a Texas friend of Arbuckle's named Edrington. And it was Edrington who, after he had heard the story of Carroll's last thousand dollars, and how, because he did not own the theater, he and Arbuckle and "Daddy Dumplins" were all about to be turned out, it was Edrington who then and there agreed to build a theater for Earl Carroll and let him run it the way he wanted to.

It sounded at the time like one of those fancy promises that rich men make and never keep. But Mr. Edrington happens to be another kind of rich man. Not only did he build Carroll a theater, but that very theater, ten years later, is today being torn down to make room for a bigger and better Carroll theater that will be ready for the season of 1931-'32. It will cost $4,000,000 and seat upwards of 3,000 people, and Mr. Edrington is building it, he says, so Earl can do his big musical shows and sell them for $3 a seat.

Why Carroll Went to Jail.

It is a strange friendship, this Carroll-Edrington, and a spectacular bond. It was because he wanted to give his old friend a great big birthday party, something in the way of a party that he would never forget, that Earl thought of the now notorious wine bath with a chorus lady in it.

It was because he lied about the bath, thumbing his foolish nose at the United States courts, that Carroll spent a year in Atlanta. That in itself would have been a crushing experience for most playboys. But not for this one. Back to Broadway he came when it was over, a little subdued, but none the less eager. And each year since he has added pep and boldness to his programs.

Now, with his own show paying royalties and rentals to his erstwhile chief rival, he goes into daily huddles with the architects and dreams, probably, of greater triumphs to come. An amazing playboy, Earl Carroll, strengthened by a placid nonresistance and a complete lack of moral restrictions that make him an alluring study.

And now, as the announcers say, your correspondent is signing off. As you read this he will be skimming, if skimming is the word, over the bounding deep headed for a theater tour of Europe. When next you hear from him, which I trust will be soon, it will be from some point that lies between here and there. Until then, again as the cheery radio man has it, "Gude Niaut!"

Social Notables Find Deep Sea Fishing Alluring

MONTAUK, L. I., July 12.—[Special.]—This resort, the furthest into the Atlantic, has been the mecca of social notables who desire deep sea fishing as well as ocean swimming. William Ziegler Jr. was among the notables who departed in search of the famous swordfish. Many yachts have been visiting here, including De Witt Paige's Waemere, A. H. Black's Shoal Glider, and W. R. Laidlaw's Caroline.

Several dances have been given at the Montauk Island club. Guests here included Miss Marion Dodge of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Gillandeau, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Dyer, and Mr. and Mrs. John B. Coles Tappan.

Voice of the Movie Fan

Praise in Poetry.

Dear Mae Tinée: I write to say your colyum is a gem. There is a shine in every line. I like it—every em.

From cheery start, "Good morning" part, down to "See you tomorrow," it radiates and scintillates with interest sans sorrow; for the time we use it to peruse, for such time is well spent. That you can write to our delight is very evident.

But all the while we like your style. The thing we like the best is that we know that every show you praise will stand the test. Your stars, you see, infallibly, tell us what films to view. Three stars or four—a treat's in store, but less is most too few.

Four stars or three just mean to me [unless it's operetta, which you adore than I far more] a film that I had betta' not skip nor miss. Except for this, and times when, to be sure, bright Richard Dix appears in pix, or else pert Colleen Moore, and you don't rate the picture great [I like it just the same]. I go to view the films that you tell us may claim some fame.

How nice 'twould be if only we had such a trusty guide in other spheres as it appears we have in filmland wide. The time we'd save as boredom's slave in reading books and papers—in viewing plays! In various ways we work or cut our capers!

It is too much to think of such a state for mortal clay, but we write so that you may know we like you, Mae Tinée. SON SHINE.

Editor's note: Ah, brave am I to print this poem—it rivals mine in beauty! To fire me and to hire you, sir, the boss might think his duty. But, gratitude doth o'erwhelm me! Your kindness makes me joyful. So, of your poetry, the world, bedad, shall have an "oyful."

Producer's Note.

Dear Miss Tinée: One writer in your column expressed a preference for the light and "sunny" sort of story for the talking cinema. The dramatist Strindberg once said in the preface to one of his plays, "Some people have accused my tragedy of being too sad, as though one desired a merry tragedy. People call authoritatively for the joy of life, and the theatrical managers call for farces, as though the joy of life consisted in being foolish, and in describing people who each and every one are suffering from St. Vitus' dance or idiocy. I find the joy of life in the powerful, terrible struggle of life; and the capability of experiencing something, of learning something, is a pleasure to me."

Good plays usually prove fine talking cinemas. May I suggest the following plays for consideration by the producers?

"The Road to Rome," with Ruth Chatterton.

"The Infinite Shoeblack," with Barbara Stanwyck.

"The First Mrs. Fraser," with Claudette Colbert.

"The Command to Love," with Greta Garbo.

Ibsen's "Hedda Gabler," with Greta Garbo.

Shaw's "Caesar and Cleopatra," with Evelyn Brent.

Galsworthy's "Justice," with John Barrymore.

Shakespeare's "Othello," with Walter Huston.

Molière's "The Imaginary Invalid," with Richard Barthelmess.

Believe me to be a constant reader of your reviews and an admirer of your unerring judgment.

Respectfully yours,
WILLIAM LUDTKE.

Editor's note: Thanks for your thoughtful and interesting letter.

Idea for Dressler-Moran Film.

Dear Miss Tinée: I've got a whopper of an idea for a new Dressler-Moran comedy. Why not put the funny adventures of Moon Mullins on the screen and let Polly play the part of Emmie and Marie take the part of Mamie?

To make it more interesting they could reunite Raymond Hatton and Wallace Beery, casting them in the parts of Moon Mullins and Uncle Willie; Mr. Beery, of course, taking the part of Willie.

The little roughneck who plays Mickey McGuire in the McGuire comedies would be excellent as Moon's brother, Kayo.

I've talked this over with a number of my friends and each thought it worth writing to you about.

What do you think of the idea?

E. S.

Editor's note: It might be quite funny.

Observations.

Miss Tinée: Quite irrespective of the recent airing of the violent argumentation pro and con Greta Garbo there has been, and still is, evident a good deal of confusion in your mind as concerns this actress. A few observations may be pertinent.

The public no longer is, if ever it was, much interested in dramatic portrayal of life. The discrepancies are too manifest. Moreover, the public is no longer moved by stage propagated ideals. These have always broken down, or worn themselves out. What remains? Entertainment and personality. The mere accomplished actor, though he excites pleasure, evokes no deep response. He is sham. Personality, on the other hand, is an entity which exerts its force in proportion to relational qualities in others. Or to put it thus, personality is a strong, definite expression of latest psychological attitudes. Hence those who possess, more or less, any or all of the attributes of that like but culminated and distinctive development understand it, and respond to it; while those of dissimilar conceptual rudiments perceive a force but are necessarily unable to comprehend—and therefore hate it.

With, of course, conditions reversible and in a measure interactive, these principles hold, though in effect tempered or aggravated by a receptive capacity and incapacity for insight and detachment. And it is in this latter connection that the functions of the critic are involved if purposed to have value for extensive application.

This brief comment should not be construed as being derogatory to your work, Miss Tinée. Quite the contrary. Your criticisms are wholesome and, in the presence of difficulties, no doubt, usually conscientious. L.

Cuts Stocking Bill.

Children of the runabout age make a sad strain on the clothing budget by falling and tearing great jagged holes in the knees of their stockings. A neat mend is difficult to make. Throughout the winter I save all these mutilated stockings and in the spring I cut off the good three inches of the top, with its finished edge. Then I cut the hose again just below the knee, cutting away entirely the jagged hole. On the sewing machine I sew the good top and the lower good half together on the right side, stretching the material a bit to prevent the threads breaking later when the child pulls on the new "sock."

By turning down the top over a pair of garters to form a cuff, a pair of good looking socks is the result and the child never looks like Raggedy Ann. W. S.

MIDSUMMER finds society women participating in or being spectators at various sports events of interest. Mrs. Frederick Spencer, Miss Anne Schuttler, and Mrs. John Wentworth have attended the races at Arlington Park several times since the opening; Mrs. John G. Curtis won a recent tennis tournament at the Lawsonia Country club at Green Lake, Wis.; Miss Francise Clow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Clow Jr., attended a horseshow not so long ago; and Miss Jeanette Peterkin is spending most of the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Peterkin, at Lake Geneva.

Annual Colony at Lake Geneva Known for Its Hospitality

By Nancy R—.

YOU'LL have to look a long time before you'll find a more sociable and delightful little summer colony than that which settles down annually at Lake Geneva at the beginning of the warm season, hangs out its hospitable latchstring, and starts the important business of enjoying the all too short time between June and October. And even if you do set out on such a search, we're afraid you'll be disappointed, for the popular expression holds true—there ain't no such animal.

The Hubbard Carpenters, the Kellogg Fairbanks, the Henry P. Ishams, the William Pelouzes and Henry Porter are only a few of the genial hosts who add so much to the simple gayety of nations in that part of the world. Life there is leisurely and cheerful, an out-of-door existence with golf, tennis, swimming and sailing the order of the day—and by far the greatest of these is sailing.

It was Mrs. Hubbard Carpenter's parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. George Sturges, who gave the first real impetus to yachting at Lake Geneva. Half a century ago they purchased the Arrow, and installed it there, the first steam yacht, if I'm not mistaken, to grace the waters of that lovely little Wisconsin lake. For many seasons they dispensed hospitality aboard their boat, both to their own contemporaries and to their children's friends, and the memories of those pleasant early days are many and cherished.

Focal Point for Festivities.

Tradition carries on, and the Lake Geneva Yacht club, organized in 1874, reorganized in 1891 and incorporated three years later, is still the focal point of summer festivities. Henry Porter is the commodore, Ernst C. Schmidt the vice commodore and Ralph Isham, rear commodore, with Albert F. Madlener serving as secretary and treasurer. Bruce E. Adams is fleet captain and Leonard Ellwood the junior fleet captain. Marquette Healy, E. P. Ellwood, Addin P. Kaye and Dr. Otto L. Schmidt are the trustees, and the 1930 regatta committee is made up of Ernst Schmidt, Fred G. Wacker, Winfield Craven, Ralph Isham and Walter Colman.

Saturdays, Sundays and Wednesdays are the great racing days at Geneva, with three classes of boats in the sailing fleet, and there's much friendly rivalry between the various skippers as to who has the fastest ship.

The Fred G. Wackers have leased their Lake Geneva cottage this summer, but they motor over every week-end from Lake Forest to take part in the Saturday competitions. Their "Rumpus" has a fine record, for it carried off the Commodore cup, the Shadow Hill trophy, the Fourth of July cup and the Second Season prize in 1929, and has already started rolling up points for this season's trophy. Commodore Porter's Viking III. ran away with the honors this year in the Fourth of July race, to add to its list of triumphs, which include the historic Sheridan prize for 1929, as well as the Chalmers, the Harry N. Gifford and Frank G. Mayer trophies and the Season Championship prize. Jimmy Rawleigh's "Whoopee" is a strong contender, as is Mr. Gifford's "Little Smoke."

I've wondered for several years why our Chicago fashionables don't do more with yachting right here at home and am delighted to learn that this year the sport is taking on a new lease of life. Has it been that good old Lake Michigan is too close at hand to be tempting? Do we need perspective to appreciate our blessings? Does the grass in our neighbor's yard always look a little greener than our own, the waters of his lake a little bluer? Or are there more practical reasons?

Here we are, situated along the edge of a great and beautiful body of water, with the longest lake front of any city in the world and the finest natural advantages. And yet out of our millions of citizens only 1,200 are members of the Chicago Yacht club, while Detroit, less than 500 miles away, has two booming organizations of the kind, boasting 3,000 members. There's certainly a discrepancy in proportions somewhere along the line.

Be that as it may, and in spite of the fact that out of our yacht club's 1,200 members only a small number are active and an even smaller percentage own boats, there's much excitement over the start of the Mackinac race on Saturday of this week. Since May the boats in the two divisions [racing and cruising] have been out every week-end tuning up for the Mackinac event which for nearly thirty years has been the high spot in Chicago's yachting activities.

The real "salts" of the community will have it that the heyday of sailing in this part of the world was from 1904 to 1914, and many tales are told of the glories of the boats of that period —of William Hale Thompson's Valmar; of Dr. W. L. Baum's Amorita; of the Alice, owned by the late Ogden McClurg; of George Atkins' Nomad, and of the Hawthorne, skippered by the late George O. Clinch. But these same skeptical salts are pricking up their nautical ears at the revival of interest in sailing in Chicago—their pleased expressions are barometers of the situation.

Perhaps the general excitement along the Atlantic seaboard is responsible for our renewed enthusiasm. Marine temperatures from Maine to New York have been running especially high this year, ever since the four fine new defenders of the America's cup race made their debut. The quartet includes Harold Vanderbilt's Enterprise; Whirlwind, the Thorne-Hammond boat; Weetamoe, the Nicols Morgan boat, and Yankee for the Boston syndicate headed by John S. Lawrence.

Trials have been made throughout the summer both in Long Island sound and above, the four new boats being tested against that famous pacemaker, Gerrard Lambert's Vanitie, winner of the Lipton trophy in the last race, and still, according to the initiate, the fastest of them all. Visitors along the east coast are taken to the trials as one of the best entertainments of the season. The Guinivere, the Corsair, the Aloha, and other large yachts that cruise up and down the eastern waters make a point of being on hand for the tests. There's no more popular sport in that up and coming section of the country.

Just at the moment there's considerable agitation here in Chicago over the building of a new harbor at the foot of Chestnut street. The federal government has made it a "harbor of refuge," and this season three of our finest yachts have temporary moorings in the calm stretches of water between the ramp and the breakwater—the Margo, owned by Burt A. Massee; Eugene McDonald's

New York Slumbers On as Newport Gains Social Life

By Nancy Randolph.

NEW YORK, July 12.—[Special.]—The social scene moved this week to Newport, where the graceful contenders for the honor of defending the America's cup spread their white wings to catch the Atlantic winds off Point Judith.

New York itself remains merely a port of call; many notable people arriving from abroad are making casual appearances about town before popping off to Newport, Southampton or points farther north. The few roof gardens are open; almost all the theaters are tightly closed—there are indeed a bare dozen plays on Broadway at present, which is a new low record —and things will continue moribund until September.

The incoming celebrities, however, offer a lot of interest and every now and then, from the confines of the harbor and other institutions come tidings of new debutantes and men about town who will be heard of in 1945 or 50.

Princess Arrives

Arriving on the Olympic this week was that matron with the frightfully high-sounding title, Mme. La Princesse Aymon de Faucigny Lucinge, who makes her annual pilgrimage from Paris to the White mountains, where in the fashionable Bretton woods colony she is very much the social leader.

However, Mme. La Princesse is not an imported dictatress. She was born, the daughter of a simple storekeeper in Massachusetts, plain Carolyn Foster, and it was her vast good looks that attracted the attention of the late Joseph Stickney, who owned huge coal mines, much railway stock and tracts of land in the state of New Hampshire.

It was love at first sight, and the marriage of the millionaire and the village maiden was a cause celebre for many a long day. New York, always skeptical of outsiders—particularly feminine ones—awaited the arrival of the Stickneys and observed their arrival and subsequent occupancy of a Fifth avenue home with wide eyes.

Society Bows

Mrs. Stickney, however, was much more clever than the average woman who marries into New York society. Rather than make efforts to meet the members of the first circles she quietly and with much good taste went about her own affairs, giving little parties of such excellence that their renown soon penetrated the most exclusive corners and the result was that New York society soon adopted her as one of their own. A triumph, incidentally, much more rare than one might imagine.

With the passing of Mr. Stickney, the one time Carolyn Foster found herself a young, beautiful and immensely wealthy widow. Hearts were flung at her feet accompanied by undying vows and long pedigrees, but Mrs. Stickney had other ideas. She packed her belongings, embarked for London and found the British capital awaiting her with open arms.

It was here that she met the elderly Prince Aymon de Faucigny Lucinge, a great-grandson of Charles X. of France, and subsequently became his princess. Paris welcomed the new princess, but unfortunately the war began and the prince, despite his years, insisted upon serving his country and succumbed before Verdun.

Like many another American woman who has married into the European nobility, the princess is an expatriate for the greater part of each year. Only during the short summer months' holiday does Princess de Faucigny Lucinge return to her native country. The rest of the time she resides in Paris, a noted member of the Franco-American colony there.

Milburns to Scotland

It would appear that Devereux Milburn is not to get into the polo practice this summer. For quite a time there was much talk that the greatest of the American players—at least, the most famous—would get into harness again and show the world his amazing riding and mallet work once more. However, Dev and Mrs. Milburn left on the Olympic this week together with Mrs. Milburn's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Steele, to spend the summer abroad.

Until this week the Milburns were at Sunridge hall, Westbury, L. I., none too far from the polo fields, but until September Dev will be at Yester house, Guilford, East Lothian, Scotland. The middle of September will see them back, for even if he no long-

Mispah, and William A. Hofnauer's Doris. In fair weather it's an ideal spot, but a good stiff blow makes it almost impossible to get to and from the boats, and a number of Chicago skippers are bending their energies towards making it a permanent haven. One of them told me the other day that he wasn't sure whether it would take an act of congress or an act of God to put it over, but he was sure something would be done about it in the near future.

Palmer Mansion as Guest House.

There's been so much conjecture about what Vincent Bendix was going to do with his latest acquisition in houses, the Potter Palmer mansion on Lake Shore drive, that we're delighted to be able to tell you his decision this morning. He's planning to turn it into a guest house, to be offered to distinguished visitors here in Chicago, and to be used for their entertainment. With the approach of the 1933 fair this seems especially appropriate, for the same house was the center of social activity during the World's Fair in 1893, and it looks as if the traditions of the '90s would be maintained.

When Mr. Bendix purchased the property he bought it in its entirety, and because he wasn't sure just what he would do with it he moved many of the furnishings to his South Bend residence. Now we learn he's bringing back the pick of the lot to Chicago and is adding numerous beautiful and valuable pieces that he's assembled from various corners of the world. His million dollar collection of paintings and fine old tapestries will be hung in the famous old art gallery, to be viewed and enjoyed by all those who partake of his hospitality.

Mr. and Mrs. Bendix have taken a charming Spanish cottage at Lawsonia for the summer, and there's an amusing little story going the rounds concerning the furnishing of their warm weather abode. Mrs. Bendix took on the job, and made up her mind to get everything she could in the immediate neighborhood, comfortable and inexpensive things, that would make a simple, cheery effect. When the head of the household went up to view the results of her efforts he was as pleased as punch over the whole thing. He says that when he discovered he was the owner of bedspreads at five-ninety-five the pair, a seventy-nine cent end table, and a one hundred and ninety-five dollar dining room set he really knew the meaning of the phrase "pride of possession."

The four musicians invited up for the week-end of the Fourth to visit the Bendixes proved to be a great asset to the holiday festivities at Lawsonia. Their hosts took them from one door to another, serenading the various householders, and at their approach the about to be fêted hosts hastily telephoned all available friends to "hurry over and we'll have a dance."

Out Lake Forest way there's no more colorful or delightful spot of a fair Sunday morning than the Winter club pool. The Winter club was organized primarily for the youngsters of the community, that they might learn all about the various branches of athletics under the supervision of trained instructors. Swimming is the favorite sport at this time of year, and on Sunday morning every one gathers at the pool—the children to exhibit their prowess and the elders to see how closely their agile offspring resemble the fish of the sea.

Among the aquatic enthusiasts are Beth, John, and Bobby Coleman, Lester and Stanton Armour, Bobby Isham, Freddie and Charlie Wacker, Grace Shumway, Dickie Stevenson, Kingman Douglas Jr., George Burrows, Teddy Washburne, Nancy and Bunny Cushing, Shirley, Don, and Sandy Strotz, Kent Chandler Jr., Leslie and Harry Wheeler, Johnny and Dougal Lee, David Peck Jr., Anne and Frank Ambler, Betty Lord, Nancy Jane and Mary Evans, Carol and Joan Harrison, Tesa Hamill, Mardo and Brace Pattou, and Sam Rinaker Jr.

Fort Sheridan Horse Show

All is in readiness for the fifth annual Fort Sheridan horse show to be held at the military post on Friday and Saturday. With more than 230 entries to perform, this year's show promises to be Fort Sheridan's greatest, and this large number of entries has made it necessary to prepare both the east and west rings for the showing.

There will be a total of thirty-five classes, including, in addition to the military and children's classes, nine hunters, five jumpers, seven saddle, and three polo classes. Of these perhaps the feature class will be the 1930 grand hunter championship of the north shore horse show circuit, open to all the blue ribbon winners at the 1930 shows of the South Shore Country club, Lake Forest, Wheaton, Oconomowoc, Milwaukee, and Fort Sheridan.

One of the outstanding attractions of the show will be the last western appearance of the army Olympic horse show team before it departs for its eastern station. The team composed of Maj. H. D. Chamberlain and Lieuts. Gordon Rogers and Earl Thompson, with their string of a dozen nationally known horses, will give riding and jumping exhibitions each day.

Under the direction of Gen. Casper H. Conrad Jr., president of the Fort Sheridan Horse Show association, three essentially military features have been prepared to lend martial color to the occasion. The afternoon's activities each day will be initiated promptly at 1 o'clock by the escort of the National and Horse Show association colors to a position alongside the box of Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commanding officer, the Sixth corps area. This escort will consist of eight mounted trumpeters and two color guards, and will parade the arena before presenting the colors.

The two other military features will be a "monkey drill" exhibition by troop A, 14th cavalry, and a parade by the students of the reserve officers training corps now encamped at Fort Sheridan.

Prominent among the exhibitors are Messrs. Laurance H. Armour, Charles F. Glore, Ralph J. Hines, Martin J. Insull, John T. Pirie, Vaughn Spalding Jr., Misses Jane Darling, Gwendolyn Bowen, Bettie Poor, Mrs. A. C. Thompson, and many others.

Judges and Directors

The judges of the show will be Col. Ben Lear Jr., and Lieut. F. L. Hamilton, for hunters and jumpers; Lieut. Col. I. S. Martin for military classes; Wallace Palmer, Detroit, for saddle classes; Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, Lake Forest, and Maj. C. C. Smith for polo classes.

The directors of the Fort Sheridan Horse association include Brig. Gen. C. H. Conrad Jr., president; Capt. Charles S. Rodwell, 14th cavalry, executive; Capt. Charles W. Fake, 14th cavalry, secretary; Lieut. John F. Connell, F. D., treasurer, and Cols. C. D. Herron, 3d field artillery, and W. H. Tefft, M. C., and Maj. Sumner Waite, 2d infantry, members.

The local committee includes Capt. W. H. Hazelrigg, 2d infantry, program and advertising; Capt. Wade C. Gatchell, 14th cavalry, ring; Capt. James S. Rodwell, 14th cavalry, tickets; Maj. Sumner Waite, 2d infantry, entertainment and decorations; Col. William H. Tefft, M. C., prizes and trophies; Capt. Frank B. Steinkolk, V. C., stabling, and Capt. Charles W. Fake, prize list and entries.

*THE marriage of Miss Aileen Lavin, daughter of Mrs. Edward T. Lavin, to Lawrence O'Connell, son of Mr. and Mrs. John O'Connell of 1508 Pratt Boulevard, took place on June 28 at St. Ignatius church. The ceremony was followed by a breakfast and reception for relatives and a few friends at the Sovereign hotel. # Slants on Goodman Situation

Public, As Shown in 144 Letters to Art Editor, Wants Old Regime Back Again

By Eleanor Jewett.

"PORTRAIT OF SUSAN SPENCER," by Pauline Palmer, the most recent child portrait to come from Mrs. Palmer's fertile brush. Pauline Palmer is one of the best-known of Chicago painters and her work is followed with interest by a great number of art enthusiasts. She is equally at home in painting landscape, still life and portraits. Age means little to her.

Some of her most successful work is found in the likenesses of children and other of it in her painting of mature men and women. Mrs. Palmer is spending the summer in Provincetown, where she has an attractive studio-house with a front gate smothered in roses.

THE discussion which has arisen out of the general overthrow of the Goodman position, that of a trial stage for the artistic in dramatics, has cleared the air for a number of other protests which have been slumbering in our subconsciousness. Obviously it is much easier to let sleeping dogs lie, to live along with the easy going motto "Live and let live," to hibernate in times of stress and close our ears to all portents of trouble. It is easier, but is it better?

One hundred and forty-five letters have come to me relevant to the Goodman question. One of these upheld the change; one hundred and forty-four want the old régime back in power. Exactly what weight will public opinion carry in the controversy? Exactly how much weight do the press and the public exert in the solution of problems brought into being by a bureaucratic organization? It is impossible to deny that the Art institute, whatever it was in its earlier days, has become a bureaucracy. All of its power is in the hands of a few men. The trustees are businessmen, rich men, men who can do and have done a great deal for the institute. They have the power to compel whatever course of action they wish to be enforced. They could, if they wanted, guarantee the Goodman against a deficit by each contributing $1,000 a year.

The contribution could be an annual factor in the success of the theater. Think of our grand opera and the money that was put back of it! Think of its annual deficit and the way it was met! Consider the Ravinia opera. Every summer it plays to a deficit. Does that stop the artistic enterprise of the man who believes in it? Does he convert it into a cabaret to overcome the deficit? Neither he nor the guarantors of the winter opera take any such step or even hint it. Patiently, year by year they are building up an instructed public which will carry on, in time.

Similarly, the Goodman was building up an instructed public. Another ten years would have seen a financially safe theater—a remarkable innovation in "little theaters." There was never yet one of them but played in the red.

A Five Year Experiment.

The trustees and controlling powers of the Art institute had not faith enough. They wanted efficiency and mechanical rectitude. They want immediate returns on a five year experiment. The Goodman can no more be built in a day than could Rome. Artistic successes are not achieved in a hurry. Even under Mr. Osborn there is no reason to think the Goodman will meet its bills next spring. Surely what money was lost in the Goodman was not lavished upon the gallant band of players. As Mr. Caldwell told us last Sunday the most those actors received was $60 a week and that only this last year. No one could call that an excessive salary.

Again, to throw a little light on the way in which the authorities look upon the theater, Mr. Kelley, head of the art school and assistant director of the Art institute, said to me some such thing as this in the conference held in June between Mr. Harshe, Mr. Logan, himself and me: "Acting is rather an idling profession. It attracts all kinds. There are bad spots in every company—soft spots that should be weeded out." The inference was that this violent upheaval which has occurred was a weeding process, as well. Out of respect to Mr. Logan I said nothing, but I should like to know who were the soft spots, the rotten places, in the apple of the Goodman repertory company.

That company, even the least important members of it, worked harder than the average business employé and worked longer hours. I do not believe there was a trifler in the group; certainly not an idler. It was a consistent and enthusiastic brotherhood banded for the greatest service to an ideal. How many clerks, cashiers, typists and even executives could you find who would practice their trade all day and work at it again with greater vim and finish at night? Over and over, the company put in fourteen hour days, with no overtime. It is incredible that any blame of any sort should fall on them.

Business Men and Drama.

A great many of those who have written me feel that business men are not good judges of drama. A great many feel that reading plays is outside of Mr. Harshe's province. A great many feel that something more is needed than efficiency and a bank balance. There is also a feeling that Yale college is being favored too much. Of this I know nothing; I simply quote the objection I have found in many letters. One correspondent writes that the woman who has been in charge of the greenroom, the costume room, has been ejected after fourteen years of faithful service.

On the other hand, to be fair, the trustees and the officers of the Art institute are honorable in their intentions. They do not mean to lower the standard raised by Mr. Stevenr. They have no desire to degrade the Goodman. The sting that hurts is that all power is vested in them. The public must accept what they provide. This does not seem fair nor pleasant. Why should we be spoonfed when we have teeth to chew?

If the Art institute is a municipal unit and the public as life members or as annual members are part of it, why should not they have some voice in the management? Why should not a representative from the various classes of membership sit with the trustees and officials, casting votes in the name of the public? Or would such a representative be cowed in the presence of the money the trustees represent? Would the public, in his person, accept as they accept now without representation?

There was a great deal of public disapproval aroused last February by the hanging of certain pictures in the Chicago Artists' show in certain places. There was a great deal of public disapproval voiced last fall in the makeup of the American show. There is always some disapproval of the prize awards in the various exhibitions. Obviously, everybody cannot be pleased all the time. However, a consistent stream of protest must have some basis. When members protest, when the public protests, in time something happens. TRIBUNE protest secured ventilation in the east wing galleries, so now summer is as little feared as winter in those rooms which before the installation of the new air system were as enervating on a July day as a Turkish bath.

The All-States Arts association is sponsoring an exhibition of water colors by Carol W. Broemel of Cleveland, in the Florentine room of the Congress hotel. The exhibit will continue to Sept. 1.

The summer session at the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts is under way. Two different daily painting classes are being conducted. One is taught by Frederic Grant; the other by Rudolph Weisenborn. Carey Orr, TRIBUNE cartoonist, is instructing in the cartoon classes and so, too, are Vaughn Shoemaker of the News, and Nick Nichols of the Associated Editors.

The Art institute letter of recent date gives the interesting information that advanced students of interior decoration in the Industrial Art school of the Art institute have decorated a five room model apartment in Chicago. Curtains, wall paper, paint, light fixtures, upholstery, furniture and accessories were selected and arranged entirely by the students. This made a practical problem which the students solved in a professional and successful manner.

London Sees Weddings of Social Note

St. Margaret's Is Popular Place for Them.

LONDON.—[Special.]—With so many young people in the Guinness clan, marriages are numerous and the in-laws are becoming legion. The most recent marriage is that of Miss Elizabeth Kindersley to J. P. Phillipps. Miss Kindersley is the sister of Philip Kindersley, who married Miss Oonagh Guinness and is the daughter of Sir Robert and Lady Kindersley. J. P. Phillipps is the son of Sir Laurence and Lady Phillipps.

The marriage took place at St. Margaret's church, Westminster, and the bride wore a supple silver lamé designed in the Greek style. Ropes of pearls and crystals bordered the V neck and crossing and recrossing, back and front, formed the outline of the classic model. The four yard train was cut in one with the skirt and fell from beneath a pouched fold. The veil was of palest parchment tulle and the silver helmet headdress, trimmed with pearls and orange blossoms, was the most unusual and becoming headdress seen on any bride this season.

Lady Kindersley's dress was of black chiffon printed with a sweet pea design and it had one of those new coats with shoulder panels bordered with black fur.

Mr. and Mrs. Kindersley will live in a modern house on Sloane avenue which boasts, under her guidance, every convenience. So many household gifts arrived that the furnishing of the house is almost complete. This has left the bride free to concentrate her energies on decorations and the search for attractive fabrics. All the rooms have painted walls and in the dining room this is made to look like pine panelling. It is wall paper painted with knots and grainings so that it deceives the most experienced eye.

Another Important Nuptial

Another wedding of importance in the English scheme of things is that of Miss Maureen Guinness to Lord Ava. Miss Maureen Guinness is the daughter of the Hon. Ernest and Mrs. Guinness, and the earl of Ava is the only son of the marquess of Dufferin and Ava.

Miss Guinness is popular with the younger set in Mayfair and in her retinue will be some of the prettiest debutantes of the season. She has chosen an all white wedding. Her gown will be of heavy white satin and of medieval style, very long and the skirt merges into a four-yard train. All around the full skirt are little frills of plaited tulle. The sleeves are tight to the elbow and there they widen out and become cascades of white tulle flowing down to the ground. The gown is hand embroidered with satin lilies, gold leaves and pearls.

Her bridesmaids' dresses will be of white tulle with wide capes of the same material covering the shoulders and falling below the elbow. Each frock will contain sixty yards of tulle, which is arranged in circles of fine plaits, the center of each being embroidered with pale gold stars. Gold headdresses and Victorian posies of gold flowers will complete the ensemble.

The names of the bridesmaids have not been announced yet, but I know that Miss Tanis Guinness is one and Miss "Baby" Jungman and Lady Veronica Blackwood two of the others.

The bride and groom will spend their honeymoon in Brioni but it will be interrupted when Lord Ava has to fly back to Oxford and complete his examinations. He will literally fly back and after a few hours will fly again to Brioni. In August Lady Dufferin will entertain for them at Clandeboye, Ireland.

Famous Paintings to Be Sold

When the Marquess Curzon of Kedleston died in 1926 the title became extinct, but his other titles were inherited by other members of his family. The title of Lord Scarsdale went to the present holder, his nephew, and the title of Baron Ravensdale was capable of inheritance through the female line so that Lady Irene Curzon, his eldest daughter, became Baroness Ravensdale.

The courts have been dealing with the question of the death duties ever since and only recently have they authorized Lord Scarsdale to dispose of certain of his family heirlooms. The death duties approach 100,000 pounds and it has been decided to meet them by the sale of pictures. Most of the pictures are from Kedleston and are part of the collection made by the first Lord Scarsdale about 1760. Some are from the collection made by Marquess Curzon and I understand they were selected by the former Marchioness Curzon of Kedleston, who was Mary Leiter of Chicago. The pictures will be offered for sale at Christie's on July 15.

They include: Jacopo Bassano, "The Adoration of the Shepherds"; Canaletto, "The Canareggio, Venice"; Claude Le Lorrain, "The Tower on the Tiber"; Thomas Gainsborough, "A Grande Pastoral Landscape," "The Market Cart," "Portrait of Lady Impey"; John Hoppner, "Portrait of Lady Waldegrave"; J. Van Eyck, "The Holy Family, with St. Elizabeth and the Infant St. John"; Sir Henry Raeburn, "Portrait of Mrs. Blair"; Raphael, "The Death of the Virgin"; Sir Joshua Reynolds, "Portrait of George Dunk, 2d Earl of Halifax," "Portrait of Lady Dashwood and Child," "A Girl with a Goldfinch"; Jan Steen, "The Blind Beggar" and "The Card Players"; Tintoretto, "The Holy Family and the Saints"; Constable, "On the Stour."

Of Interest to Anglo-Americans

One of the biggest weddings in the Anglo-American colony was that of Miss Maysie Gasque to Roland Robinson on July 9. Miss Gasque is the daughter of the late Clarence Gasque and Mrs. Gasque of the Elms, Hamstead Heath. Mrs. Gasque was formerly from Winnetka, Ill. Mr. Robinson is a young barrister from Blackpool.

There were twelve bridesmaids, chosen from among Miss Gasque's school friends, which means they came from all the countries in which she has studied. They were Miss Helen Reese from Seattle, who is engaged to Mrs. Gasque's nephew, Larned A. Meacham, who is studying at Cambridge; Miss Pia Damerini, the Italian pianist, who is a protégée of Mrs. Gasque; Miss Evelione Taglione, another talented Italian pianist from New York; Miss Virginia Rothermel, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Royden Rothermel of New York and London; Miss Geraldine Ollier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ollier of London; Miss Carola Goya, a Spanish school friend; Baroness von Muffling, a German school friend; Miss Nancy Brown, Miss Heath Leslie Wison, and Miss Velma Stephenson, English friends; Princess Marina Chavchavadze, a Russian school friend, and Miss Imogene Earpe of New York.

The wedding was at St. Margaret's, Westminster, and Hubert Parsons, Mrs. Gasque's brother-in-law, gave the bride away. Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Parsons arrived on the Leviathan a few days before the wedding. He gave his beautiful home on the Avenue du Bois in Paris to the bride and groom for the first part of their honeymoon.

The Savoy hotel seems to be the headquarters for Chicagoans in London. Staying there at the moment are Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Harriss, Prof. Charles E. Merriam, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Rosenberg, and Mr. and Mrs. William T. O'Donnell.

One of the most interesting Americans at present in London, staying at the Savoy, is John Philip Sousa, the band conductor and composer. He is going to present to the 2d battalion, Royal Welsh Fusiliers, the original manuscript of the march he wrote to commemorate the association of that battalion with the U. S. marines in China in 1900.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark.

Chicago, Aug. 10, 1873.

DEAR JULIA:

Thanks so much for the subscription to Godey's Lady's Book. The first number has just arrived, and I have devoured it, this morning. The fashion pages are especially fascinating, and that lovely dress for a three year old child (described as "blue cashmere, made with one skirt and basque waist, trimmed with three rows of blue velvet") makes me wish I had a three year old girlie to dress.

As you ordered, the publishers have sent me the chromo, "Our Darling," for a premium. It is all ready to frame, and I shall be glad to have it for our new home. Godey's Lady's Book is an excellent magazine, I think, full of sensible, entertaining reading, which is always distinguished by pure moral sentiment.

The fancy work pages are useful, too. I am going to begin a comforter for Will, like the one described on page 75. It will be his Christmas gift, and, though it is so warm today, I know he will be glad to wrap it around his neck when he takes out the sleigh next December. It will be quite stylish, with the new tassels finishing the ends and the shaded red and green border.

We aren't in our new home yet, but hope to be settled by September. We think we shall like living on Rush street.

The north side seems to slowly coming back into public favor. For a long time after the fire the most far sighted could not predict how the wheel of chance would turn there. Indeed, its future looked quite dubious. The tide set toward the south side, and good residence property along the southern boulevards doubled in value every fortnight. Whenever young people talked of the north side they generally did so with a shrug of the shoulders and remarks to the effect that they were sorry for the old settlers who owned property there. Indeed, some of these very old settlers went out to the south side and built there, and every one waited to see what some one else was going to do. But then a great manufacturing company proposed to put up a large structure, to occupy a block, and the citizens decided not to allow such a sacrilege. A committee waited on the board of public works, induced the board to withhold a permit, and a meeting of the old residents resulted in a decision to occupy this site with homes, instead of allowing it to be given over to business.

The north side has passed the Rubicon, Will says, and now is rising into a beautiful residence quarter, exceeding in beauty what it was before the fire. There will be fewer of the handsome private gardens, Will thinks, but more real city homes, so that we shall not be able to call ourselves with truth "Urbs in horto," but we shall look more like a metropolitan center. The swell front is coming into fashion, and some fine effects are produced by its introduction.

Dearborn street is beginning to loom up grandly and prices there are tending upward, Will says. John de Koven is building at the corner of Elm and Dearborn a handsome residence with a good barn, the whole to cost $40,000. A house for Eli Bates is going up at the corner of Goethe street and Dearborn—a modern Gothic brick, with stone trimmings.

Rush street, too, is having a little building along its northern borders. Mrs. Joseph Kirkland is finishing a handsome three story brick on Rush street near Superior, at a cost of $10,000. Nearly opposite W. K. Nixon has begun to excavate for the erection of two handsome residences, to cost $30,000.

By the way, I must stop here to say that Mrs. Nixon is to have a butler when she takes possession of this new home. He is spoken of already with bated breath, for he will be the first of his species in our city. How does one comport oneself when the door is opened by a man instead of a maid? I know you have butlers in New York, but we have lived in simple, small town style here, so far, and some even resent the new title of "maid." That euphemism is pretty well established, however, now. But a butler! Will simply froths at the mouth, when this innovation is mentioned in his presence. He calls it aping English ways and speaks darkly of the fate of Greece and Rome.

Well, to return to the progress made by the north side. The Fourth Presbyterian church, a magnificent structure to cost $100,000, is approaching completion at the corner of Rush and Superior streets. On Cass street, near Ontario, Joseph T. Ryerson is laying foundations for a handsome residence to cost $30,000.

La Salle street divides honors with Dearborn in the matter of fashion, as it did before the fire, and it, too, is making progress. As an aristocratic thoroughfare, it begins at Chicago avenue. Trees have been planted along its borders, and all the old pleasant features are returning. Mr. Adams, of the well known firm of Crerar, Adams & Co., has nearly completed a residence that bids fair to be pointed out as perhaps the handsomest in town. On the northeast corner of La Salle and Elm streets O. B. Green is finishing a splendid brick house, particularly pleasing in its outline. It will cost about $30,000.

At 387 La Salle street, near Elm, Mr. Hjortsburg has nearly finished erecting a striking residence, which has attracted much favorable comment. It is of dark brick, with a liberal admixture of brown stone trimmings. A great variety of dark-hued gables makes the roof quite conspicuous. It cost $20,000, we hear.

Isn't it wonderful that such a splendid college for women is to be built in Northampton? Massachusetts will be proud to have such an institution in her borders. It was surely a noble legacy left by Miss Sophia Smith. I notice a recent item in a magazine says the fund left in her will has been augmented by interest and by a grant of $25,000 from the town of Northampton, to the large sum of $360,000.

I should like to have young Martha attend Smith college when she is prepared, but Will thinks college undesirable for women—making them blue-stockings.

I wonder if you are singing in New York "Mary, My Beautiful Angel," and "The Broken Lily." They are rather pretty, but I have never got over my preference for "In the Hazel Dell," by George F. Root.

I must close. We all send love.

Your old friend,
MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

Foot Notes.

Miss Mary Pomeroy Green still lives in the handsome old house built by her father, O. B. Green, in 1873 at the corner of La Salle and Elm streets.

The Fourth Presbyterian church at the northwest corner of Rush and Superior streets, regarded as so magnificent in 1873, was outgrown by its congregation in forty years, the present imposing building on North Michigan avenue having been erected in 1914.

Chicago was beginning to "put on airs" in the seventies, as may be seen by the mention of the Nixon butler. The "Nixon houses" are the white stone houses on Rush street near Huron, in later years occupied by the John Alden Carpenters and the Joseph G. Colemans, respectively.

The de Koven house at 1150 North Dearborn street is still occupied by Mrs. John de Koven.

Church Leaders of World Groups Meet in England

Congregational, Anglican Sessions Held.

By the Rev. John Evans

WORLD leaders of Congregational and Anglician churches are waving greetings to each other this summer in England. Three hundred and fifty Anglician [Episcopalian] bishops from all over the world are holding sessions under the presidency of the Archbishop of Canterbury at Lambeth palace, while 600 American Congregationalists are meeting with thousands of their denomination from all other nations at Bournemouth.

In each church, world meetings are held every ten years and the importance of the conclaves has been growing until at this time great significance is attached to them. Church union is prominent on the agenda of both meetings, and hope is expressed by liberal Anglicans and by the rank and file of Congregationalists that the rift in Queen Elizabeth's time when Congregationalists withdrew from the established English church some time will be healed.

The Congregationalists originated as the "Separatists" or "Independents" who were the extreme radical wing of the Puritan movement in England and began to separate from the Anglican church of the Church of England during the reign of Queen Elizabeth. The Congregational churches have consistently advocated democracy in all matters of both doctrine and church government and each individual, local church is independent and self-governing in all respects.

The first Congregationalists in this country were the Mayflower pilgrims, who founded Plymouth, Mass., in 1620. The Puritans, who founded Boston ten years later, in 1630, joined with the "Separatists" of Plymouth in establishing Independent or Congregational churches, although in England the Puritans had been in full affiliation with the Anglican church.

Dr. Cleland Boyd McAfee of Chicago, former moderator of the Presbyterian general assembly, has accepted the post of secretary of the Presbyterian board of foreign missions and will begin his duties at the headquarters of the board, Presbyterian building, 156 5th avenue, New York City, early in September.

He will resign his post as professor of systematic theology at the Presbyterian Theological seminary in Chicago. His work with the foreign missions board will be administrative and supervisory, and he will also particularly be responsible for the correspondence with the foreign stations formerly carried on by Dr. Arthur J. Brown, recently retired.

Dr. McAfee was elected moderator of the general assembly at St. Paul, Minn., in May, 1929. He preached the sermon opening the assembly at Cincinnati, O., May 29, 1930. His father, Dr. John Armstrong McAfee, founded Park college, Parkville, Mo., and he himself was a professor there before becoming a pastor in Chicago and Brooklyn, N. Y.

The Very Rev. Matthew T. O'Neill, president of Mount Carmel High school, will preach today at the services of the solemn annual novena in honor of Our Lady of Mount Carmel and St. Therese, the "Little Flower," at the Carmelite Fathers' church, 64th street and Woodlawn avenue.

The hours of the six daily services are 3, 4, 5, 6:45, 7:45, and 8:45 p. m. Indications during the last week were that upward of 30,000 persons will have attended the novena before it closes on Wednesday. Wednesday, the feast of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, will be celebrated by special services, bringing the novena to its close. The preacher will be the Very Rev. Leo J. Walter, former president of the seminary at Niagara Falls, N. Y.

The Very Rev. Anselm Werner of Tenafly, N. Y., a former Chicago priest, will speak at all services on Monday, and the Rev. Martin O'Donnell, assistant pastor at St. Cyril's church, will preach on Tuesday.

NEWS OF THE CHURCHES

THE REV. PAUL T. SHULTZ JR.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

The Rev. Mr. Shultz is the new assistant on the staff of the St. James cathedral, Cass and Huron streets. He will assist the Very Rev. Duncan H. Browne, dean of the cathedral, having charge of the services during the summer months while Dean Browne is abroad.

The Rev. Mr. Shultz received his bachelor of divinity degrees from Cambridge Theological seminary, Harvard university, in June, and was ordained on June 10 by Bishop Babcock of Massachusetts at Grace church, Salem, Mass. Mr. Shultz had assisted at this church during his seminary course.

The new cathedral assistant is a graduate of Princeton Theological seminary and also received his master's degree from Princeton university. He is the fifth generation of his family in the ministry.

It may seem strange to church people of Chicago that the most hopeful point in the world today for union is in south India, and that the basis of the south India movement which seeks to unite Presbyterians, Congregationalists, Episcopalians, and Methodists among the converts of that country originated in Chicago in 1886, at a general convention of the Episcopal church. Later the Chicago proposals were considered by all the bishops of the Anglican communion at Lambeth palace in 1920 and commended. They came to be known as the "Chicago-Lambeth" proposals.

Now, at the present Lambeth conference the bishops will face the first practical application of the principles of the proposals when the south India plan for reunion comes in for discussion. Church leaders of all communions will watch the deliberations of the bishops as a test case of genuine reunion sentiment among them. Bishop George Craig Stewart, coadjutor of Chicago who is now in London, and perhaps the majority of the clergy of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago are said to have declared themselves against the south India scheme.

At the Bournemouth-Congregational meeting the Rev. Dr. William E. Barton, pastor emeritus of the First Congregational church, Oak Park, was one of the outstanding leaders. President Albert W. Palmer of the Chicago Theological seminary also had a leading place on the program.

Approximately one hundred American bishops, including several from the middle west, are now in London to take part in the Episcopal deliberations. Bishop George Craig Stewart left last week. Bishop R. H. Weller of Fond du Lac, Bishop Joseph M. Francis of Indianapolis, Bishop H. S. Longley of Iowa, Bishops W. W. Webb and B. F. P. Ivins of Milwaukee, Bishop Campbell Grey of northern Indiana, Bishop Herman Page of Detroit, formerly of Chicago, Bishop W. L. Rogers of Ohio, Bishop J. N. McCormick of western Michigan, will be among those in attendance from the middle west.

Bishop Stewart of Chicago will be the "baby" bishop of the conference, from the standpoint of the length of time he has been in the episcopate. It will be less than a month after his consecration here on June 18, when he sits in the councils of Lambeth. He is expected to take a leading part in the discussions, because of his interest in such questions of church unity, social problems, unemployment, crime, the home, youth, etc., and also because of the fact that he was one of the American representatives at the Lausanne conference which met three years ago in Switzerland and brought together representatives of most of the major Christian communions of the world.

The opening of the conference will have a note of sadness from the American, and particularly Chicago, point of view, in the absence of the late Bishop Charles Palmerston Anderson. Bishop Anderson was the primate of the American church at the time of his death, Jan. 30, and had he lived would have headed the American delegation to the conference. His presence had been looked forward to by the leaders, including the archbishop of Canterbury and the bishop of London. And Bishop Anderson had looked forward to climaxing his career with a ranking seat at Lambeth.

Saturday Nights to Be Joyous if Rome Has Way

ROME.—(AP)—Prince Boncompagni-Ludovis, governor of Rome, intends to make the Eternal City citizens as clean in body as he hopes to have their streets and public buildings.

In other words, he is trying to revive the grand old days when such public baths as those of the Emperor Diocletian were the wonder of barbaric visitors like the Angles, Goths and Germanii.

Although there are no funds for modernistic reproductions of the antique establishments, the governor wants to be sure that there are enough popular pliced bathhouses to satisfy the needs of Rome's 900,000 inhabitants.

Detroit's Negro Moslems Hunt Jobs in Turkey

ISTANBUL.—(AP)—An American Moslem Negro who wanted to lead his people into a promised land of free farms and no color line, is stranded and hunting for a job in jobless Istanbul.

Mehmed Ali Bey, a gray haired Negro who embraced Moslemism several years ago, came from Detroit with nine other Moslem negroes to try to obtain Turkish citizenship and free farms for 85 other Negro families who, he claims, are waiting in Detroit to follow him.

He states that 20,000 Negroes in America embraced Islamism to escape "mental slavery," because that religion is devoid of the color prejudice which still obtains among many adherents of Christianity. All except 85 families "back-slid," however, because they found the prejudice against Islamism in America even stronger than the color prejudice.

Offers Solution.

His solution for the race problem in the United States is for the Negroes to adopt Islamism enmasse and migrate to some sparsely-populated Islamic land.

As he had been head of the Michigan branch of the Turkish Society for the Protection of Children, his group was aided by that society when they arrived almost penniless in Istanbul. They were sent to Angora to talk their project over with Turkish officials.

Job Hunt Hard.

There they learned that they must reside two years in Turkey before they can obtain citizenship, and they also learned that even though there is no color prejudice in Turkey, the mere fact of being a Moslem does not cut much ice with the Turkish republic, which abolished the Caliphate, separated church and state, and destroyed Islamic traditions by the dozens.

Now the ten "refugees from mental slavery" are hunting jobs in Istanbul. They are finding the hunt a hard one both because of their ignorance of the language and because of the serious unemployment situation here. They say they will not return to America, however, until all hope of supporting themselves in Turkey is lost.

Mexico Hard Hit When Silver Price Takes Big Slump

MEXICO CITY.—(AP)—The steady fall in world market quotations on bar silver has brought Mexico, the largest silver producing country in the world, face to face with a crisis.

It is affecting not only the mining industry but many allied enterprises.

While the decline in silver prices last year brought about an increase in Mexican production, the further slump this year has had the opposite effect. When the prices started going down the miners hit upon greater production as a means for making up the loss, but that could not last, and now production is being cut everywhere.

The great silver mines around Pachuca have reached such a state that the owners are studying a three day week proposal rather than cut the scale of wages. They are unable to produce the metal in sufficient quantities to maintain full time shifts at the present scale.

Peons Discover Fortified Village of Older Mexico

OAXACA CITY, Mexico.—(AP)—Ruins of a prehistoric military city, which may exceed in archeological value the vast Mayan relics at Chicken Ixta and Uxmal, in Yucatan, have been discovered here.

They were revealed by peons engaged in constructing a new highway at Monte Alban, a suburb.

The apparent vastness of the area, combined with the fact that the ruins are apparently of the Zapotec régime, which predated the Aztec era, and the easy accessibility combine to give the discovery great potentiality.

Considerable damage to the ruins was done by the peon workmen who proceeded with their road excavation without regard to fine pieces of pottery and carved stone. A considerable quantity of the relics were carelessly thrown aside or carried away before the true worth of the find became known.

Newport Society Shows Interest in Cup Trials

NEWPORT, R. I., July 12.—[Special.]—The colony here has been interested all week in the America's cup trials. The presence of the secretary of the navy, who has been piloting the Yankee, has lent a semi-official touch to the various gatherings. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney had a party of guests on their yacht, Whileaway, on the occasion of their first visit to Newport this summer and cruised out to watch several of the contests.

An occasion of the week was the opening on Tuesday of the fourth season at the Casino theater, the initial presentation being the farce "And So to Bed." Also occupying the attention of the colony was the annual flower show of the Garden association, which was held on Wednesday and Thursday in the Casino. Many entertainments were given in honor of the various clubs and their officials. Mrs. Hugh B. Auchincloss, vice president of the association, gave a luncheon at Hammersmith farm in honor of the women judges. Col. and Mrs. Francis L. V. Hoppin gave a luncheon for Albert C. Borrage of Boston, who had a special orchid display, and William Brigham of Providence, who aided in judging the flower pictures.

Mr. and Mrs. William L. Mellon of Pittsburgh attended the races on the yacht Vagabondia. Mr. and Mrs. Aymar Johnson had a party on board the Enchantress, their guests including Admiral Kerr, R. N., Admiral Cameron McR. Winslow, George Rutledge Preston, and Sylvia Hillhouse.

The polo season at Mrs. Moses Taylor's Sandy Point farm will soon begin. Frederick Prince of Prides Crossing has brought his stable of a full score of ponies to Oakland farm. Others who will play are Bernard H. Wood III., William H. Wood, Ralph M. C. Howard, W. Thorn Kisell, William Goadby Loew, W. H. Vanderbilt, W. H. Van Alen, and James Van Alen.

ART NOTES

Frederick A. Blaschke, a sculptor living in Cold Spring-on-Hudson, New York, is finishing a life size group representing the Misohippus, one of the small early species of horses, for the Field museum. The group will be installed in the Ernest R. Graham hall.

The Field museum bulletin announces that a white rhinoceros is on exhibition in hall 15. The specimen used in the preparation of the exhibit was obtained by H. B. Conover, R. H. Everard, and J. T. Zimmer during the Conover-Everard African expedition of 1926-'27. The Field museum is greatly indebted to British officials whose permission to take the specimen was courteously granted.

A catalog of the Inness landscapes, presented to the Art institute by the late Edward B. Butler, is now in preparation. For the first time the paintings are being catalogued separately. A reproduction of each painting with descriptive matter, bibliography, size of canvas, year of execution, and when and where obtained, will make the catalog of unusual importance. The collection was presented to the museum by Mr. Butler in 1911 and remains one of the finest acquisitions of the institute.

The summer term of the school of the Art institute opened June 30 and will continue to Aug. 8.

Come along this summer when it's hot at home. Let the winds of the north blow clear the cobwebs of fatigue and worry.

A-A-A-1 Salesmen $25 TO $50 A DAY NOW $25,000 TO $50,000 PER YEAR AS SOON AS YOU CAN QUALIFY

New patent specialty. National campaign started in May. New men in a dozen different states have earned $25 to $50 per day. Chicago sales branch just being organized by owners of business. Men in field here already making big money. Field for several hundred thousand sales here. One sale often leads to a dozen—sometimes to a hundred. One or two little sales daily will make average income. Producers can make $25 to $50 per day from the start as we are giving men a special new deal in Chicago this week.

This business is being rapidly developed nationally and we have right now waiting over a dozen positions for State Managers which will pay men who can fill them $25,000 to $50,000 per year. These positions will be filled wherever possible from men who learn the business and demonstrate their ability with the Chicago sales organization. This is the home office of the company. Permanent business which should get better and bigger over a period of long years.

This deal shows every indication of growing into one of the leading specialty propositions in the history of selling. We closed one contract the day this ad was written for more than one-half million sales with heavyweight principals who had carefully investigated deal from nearly every angle for nearly one month. During this time they made 14 tests of the merit of our specialty of which 13 tests exceeded our representations and guarantee, and the one other test equaled our guaranteed standards.

We give a free demonstration each morning to prospective salesmen, purchasers and distributors, proving results which nine men out of ten men say are incredible until they see the actual performance with their own eyes.

We have something real to sell, and we are selling it.

Applicants must have splendid personality, good appearance, be clean-cut, high caliber men, who have made $100 a week or more over a period of time. We prefer men of families who have held one job two years or more. Gilt edged references are necessary. To such men we will furnish a tremendously effective sales kit and give them an opportunity for a generous immediate income with a future limited only by their own ability and efforts.

If you are ready to take advantage of this kind of an opportunity and can meet the above requirements call at once—write or wire.

PIANOS TO LOAN.
With the removal of one of our factories to St. Charles, Ill., and the loss of several thousand feet of storage space, we have a large number of COMBINATION PIANOS to loan to reliable families until we need them. These pianos must be moved at once. They have been priced for sale at greatly reduced figures so that any one contemplating the purchase of a piano within the next year can hardly afford to miss this opportunity.

Instruments not sold will be loaned in homes to those who may be interested in owning a piano soon. We, of course, reserve the right to select homes to which the pianos are to be loaned—YOU PAY NO RENT—merely the cartage only. Ask for our Shop Foreman, AL KLUSENDORF.

LANDSCAPING OF COUNTRY HOMES NOT EXPENSIVE

First Steps Require but Little Outlay.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Contrary to the general impression, rural homesites may be developed into attractiveness with very little expense.

With the slackening of work in late summer, opportunity of planning for improvements and effecting a general betterment of the house and yard presents itself. When it is realized that the labor item is by far the most important, and that this may be supplied from within the family or with little outside help, there is sufficient urge in providing more pleasant living quarters and the increased value of the place to warrant rearrangement, planning and planting in the weeks approaching.

This urge is voiced by R. B. Hull, extension specialist in landscaping at Purdue university, who states that the first steps in improving the homestead do not involve the expenditure of any money. Most home grounds, he finds, need first a rearrangement of parts.

Revamp Buildings and Yard.

Poultry runs, pig pens, machinery sheds and other outbuildings are sometimes in the wrong location with reference to the house, both for attractiveness and convenience. Removal of old machinery, fences in poor repair, stock pens too close to the house, or the gardens and yard in need of reconditioning—all these require only a little thought and home provided labor. Such work may be done at any season of the year as time permits.

"Good drainage means much in comfort and appearance," says Mr. Hull, "while regrading and tiling where necessary constitute first steps that are important in the improvement program."

The farmstead should have a good system of walks. These may be constructed during the few days of the year when field work is not practicable. Native ledge stone, waste concrete slabs, brick or concrete are suitable materials, he advises.

Prepare for Shrub Plantings.

And, the summer improvement work might well include the preparation of shrubbery beds for the planting to be done later. The general plan for such plantings, as well as general homesite arrangements, may be provided by a landscape architect or by consulting government and state college bulletins, available without cost.

"The buildings should not all be seen in the same view from positions near or in front of the house," cautions Mr. Hull. "The planting should secure the effect of screening the stable group from these positions. It should be placed so as to show the house as the most important building, while some planting of shrubs may be done about the base of the barn, where it doesn't interfere with doors and windows."

Every farmstead, he believes, should have a good windbreak against winter blasts. Two and three year old pines, Norway spruce and other hardy trees will provide the means of increasing future comfort and beauty of the homestead as well as its possible sale value. A day in summer might well be spent in preparing an area for such a windbreak to be planted in early spring.

Advises Screens for Unsightly.

"Careful study of the grounds will show that many unsightly features may be hidden or their appearance improved by tall screen plantings," continues Mr. Hull. "The material used for screen planting may be native hawthornes, witch hazel, dogwoods, sumac, etc. Vines such as native woodbine, trumpet creeper, grape vine and others may be collected locally for such uses.

"With a good plan to work toward every detail of improvement added from time to time will contribute to the desired result—a farmstead increasing the enjoyment and comfort of the owners from year to year, and in every case the sale value of the farm."

CARE OF TULIP BULBS.

I have some tulip bulbs stored in a dry place, but they are beginning to rot. There is a white fungus growth and the bulbs are becoming soft. Is there any way in which to stop this? W. B.

REPLY.

The care of tulip bulbs generally recommended is that they should be permitted to make as full a growth after flowering as possible, then permitted to dry out and should be stored in a dry and cool place until planted in the fall or preferably in the spring. Evidently your storage place is dry but possibly too warm to keep the bulbs from rotting.

CHILDREN TRAMPLE GRASS.

Please advise me if grass called Chewing's fescue will grow in Chicago, and does it require much care? Or could you advise me what grass there is which will stand trampling? MRS. J. S. T.

REPLY.

Fescue is adapted to Chicago growing conditions and is recommended especially for shady or partly shady lawn areas. The general mixture advised consists usually of Kentucky blue grass with some clover and fescue mixed with it. Shady lawns are difficult to keep in shape when children play on them as the shade usually keeps the soil and turf too soft to stand much disturbance.

KILLING POISON IVY.

Would you kindly give me information as to killing poison ivy? H. D.

REPLY.

Where there is an extensive area of poison ivy to be killed it is best to plow the ground up and destroy the roots. Where this is not possible and where the ivy can be sprayed, apply, in quantities equal to an application of 50 gallons to the acre, either one of two sprays. One is made by using three pounds of crude salt to a gallon of water, and the other consists of one pound of either calcium or sodium chlorate in one gallon of water.

CABBAGE APHIDS.

Something seems to be eating the leaves and heads of my cabbage plants. The foliage is full of holes. I haven't found anything on them, but I guess I don't know what to look for. W. H. C.

REPLY.

It is probable that the grayish plant louse called the cabbage aphid is eating the foliage and retarding development of the heads. Spray or dust with nicotine.
